William Donald Young Jr., 15 years old, was shot and killed early today by one of two St. Louis police officers who were chasing him as a suspect in an attempted burglary.

Young, whose mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Kennedy, live at 8816 Brown Circle drive, Berkeley, was observed shortly after midnight attempting to force a side door of a Kroger store at 6121 Wells avenue, which is just east of the Wellston city boundary.

Wellston Patrolman Roger T. Spreck, who had followed the youth until the attempt was made on the door, identified himself as a police officer and ordered Young to halt, he said. However, the suspect fled across a parking lot toward Wells avenue, and then east in Wells. Spreck fired one shot in the air and another at the fleeing boy.

The shots attracted the attention of two St. Louis policemen. Patrolmen Alonzo Hoffman and Russell Leach, who had been standing at Hodiament and Easton avenues, joining in the chase, the St. Louis officers also fired two warning shots and two shots at the fleeing boy as he emerged on Easton from an alley west of Hodiament. He fell, with a bullet in the back of his head, in front of 6200 Easton in Wellston.

He was taken to St. Louis County Hospital where he died at 4:50 a.m.

Records in the Missouri Highway Patrol showed he was convicted of the burglary of a Wentville Kroger store in January, 1952, and paroled for an indefinite period to Jones' Town of Missouri at St. James.

Enrolled in a parochial school in Berkeley, he was 5 feet, 11 inches tall and weighed 165 pounds.

At one point in the chase, Officer Hoffman made an unsuccessful lunge at the fugitive and fell, injuring his right leg and scratching his face. He was treated at City Hospital and released.

FRENCH RESCUE
ALGERIAN REBELS

ALGERIA, Jan. 4 (AP)—Two thousand French troops scaled hills within sight of Algiers today in an attempt to rescue a French officer and 12 men abducted by Rebels 48 hours before.

They recovered three of the captured men. All were still living but they had been heavily slashed by rebel knives. They were rushed into the city by ambulance.

Officers would not say immediately whether those rescued were some of the seven Frenchmen or the six Algerians seized by the rebels from a hilltop post 20 miles from Algiers Monday.

Strong French forces pushed deeper into the broken mountain country of Djebel Bou Zegza whose crowning peaks can be seen from the streets of Algiers.

All but two of the prisoners, whom the French had expected to find shot down or knifed by the retreating rebels, were known to be still alive as late as yesterday. The bodies of the other two were found within a few hours. Sixteen of the rebels who took part in the attack have been captured.

FUND REQUESTS TOP STATE
BOND ISSUE BY $50,000,000

Total Rises to $125,192,962 — Higher Education Institutions Alone
Seek $62,597,702.

By ROYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City, Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 4.—Complete preliminary requests of Missouri eleemosynary hospitals, penal, higher education and other institutions for state appropriations for estimated building and equipment requirements now total $125,192,962. Assistant Budget Director William B. McGregor said today.

These estimated needs by institutions heads, which later may be revised up or down, are $50,192,962 in excess of the $75,000,000 proposed state bond issue, which is subject to approval or rejection by voters in a special state election Jan. 24.

Funds sought by all of the various institutions eligible for legislative appropriations for buildings, equipment and repairs from the bond funds, if approved, were made public today by McGregor, who is conducting preliminary closed conferences with institution officials this week.

The state division of budget and comptroller then will submit its findings to Gov. Phil

M. Donnelly, who will submit appropriate recommendations to the Legislature within the estimated funds available. Donnelly has said he would call the Legislature into special session if the bond issue is adopted.

McGregor today said the requests of the state institutions eligible for the special building, equipment and repair funds, under the constitutional amendment providing for the bond issue, were as follows:

Seven state eleemosynary hospitals $39,343,560.
Higher educational institutions, $62,597,702.
Penal institutions, $19,508,000.
State Training Schools for Boys and Girls, Booneville and Chillicothe, $1,322,200.
State Cancer Hospital, Columbia, $88,000.
Missouri State Sanatorium, Mount Vernon, for tubercular patients, $2,000,000.
Federal Soldiers Home, St. James, $333,000.

The penal rehabilitation program, submitted by James D. Carter, director of the Department of Corrections, includes a major proposal of $12,000,000.

WILSON SLIPS UP,
KEEPS ON PLAVE
FACTORY BADGE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson returned today from an inspection of West Coast aircraft factories where some of the nation's new and secret weapons are made. He said he was pleased with what he had seen.

"I saw all the newer stuff," he said, but he refused to list all the plants and places he had visited.

He laughingly told how he slipped up in trying to keep secret a visit to one factory. He said that at the factory he was given an identification badge to wear in his inspection. However, Wilson said, he left the factory in such a hurry that he forgot to remove the badge, with the name of the plant, from his lapel. He wore it to a public luncheon, remembering it too late.

TONGAY ESCAPES
IS RECAPTURED

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 4 (AP)—Russell Tongay, convicted of manslaughter in the diving death of his aquatist daughter, escaped from a passenger train in downtown Mobile last night but was recaptured 45 minutes later.

Tongay broke from his guards on a Louisville & Nashville train and led pursuers in a chase through Mobile streets. After city detectives caught him they put him in solitary confinement until he resumes his journey back to the Florida state prison at Raiford tonight.

Tongay, a former St. Louisan, was being returned from Los Angeles where he recently surrendered after an escape in New Orleans.

At city jail, Tongay said he escaped because transfer agent Cid Powledge "was drinking and threatened me." Powledge denied this. Tongay said he was "just looking for the police" when he escaped.

ARSON 'BOMB' DEVICE FOUND ON TWA PLANE

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 4 (AP)—An Army bomb disposal expert said today that a small metal object found aboard a TWA airliner carrying 32 persons, was "some sort of incendiary device" and that it was "loaded."

Capt. G. A. Sather of the 145th Bomb Disposal Detachment said the object was similar to a shotgun shell in that it had to be set off. He said that no firing device was found in the instrument.

The device was discovered yesterday afternoon in an aisle of the plane by the pilot, Lyle Ryan, after the plane took off from Columbus, O. He turned it over to an airport official at the next stop, Wheeling.

ROBBER STEALS
AT 715 CHESTNUT

Forces Two Employees of Loan Firm to Lie on Floor and Escapes on Foot.

Two employees of the Lafayette Federal Savings & Loan Association, 715 Chestnut street, were held up today by an armed man, who fled with $1300 in currency he stuffed in his jacket pocket.

Walter Wax, 1501 Westmont place, University City, a cashier, told police the man entered the building, brandished a pistol and said: "Give me the money. I'm desperate; give me all of it."

Wax handed the man the contents of a cash drawer. The robber then ordered Wax and Mrs. Zelma Pickett, 8539 Rock lie avenue, Brentwood, another cashier, to lie on the floor. He ran out and went west to Eighth street, where he turned south.

The robber was described as 25 years old, five feet 10 inches tall, weighing about 160 pounds and having blonde hair.

Sylvester A. Koster, manager, said the association's accounts are insured by the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp.

A drug store at 2836 Chouteau avenue was robbed of $800 today by two men, both armed with revolvers, who entered the store when no customers were in it and forced the operator to open the safe.

Ralph Soule, operator of the establishment, reported the men, Negroes, came into the store shortly before 11 a.m.

Two indictments charging three St. Louis county youths with statutory rape and kidnapping were returned today by the grand jury at Clayton.

The boys are charged in the indictment with kidnapping and raping a 14-year-old University City girl last Dec. 6.

The indictments, returned to Circuit Judge Raymond E. LaDriere, named Joseph Hastings Jr., 6100 block of Bermuda drive, Airlie, 6100 block of Airlie avenue, and George Lawson, 6100 block of Emerald avenue, Judge LaDriere set bond for each youth at $5000 on each charge.

Another indictment voted by the jury charged Raymond Holobrier, Maplewood fireman and former policeman there, with common assault in the beating of Kenneth O. Buercklin Jr. of Webster Groves, a student at the University of Missouri, in the Maplewood Police Station last Aug. 27.

He said the object was "some sort of incendiary device" and that it was "loaded."

REALTY DEALER DEFENDED USE
WIDOW ASSERTS

Thomas G. Gilpin Said
He Was Putting Money in 'More Valuable' Properties, She Testifies.

Mrs. Christine Steiner testified today that when she became suspicious of the way Thomas G. Gilpin, head of a real estate firm, was handling her money, he assured her he was placing it in "more valuable investments."

Her testimony was given in a hearing before Circuit Judge Waldo C. Mayfield on a petition to extend the receivership suit against Gilpin's firm to include him as well.

Mrs. Steiner, who estimated she invested about $200,000 in deeds of trust handled by the Gilpin Co., 6615 South Kingshighway, from July 1949 to December 1954, said she first experienced difficulty in August 1954.

Put It in Other Loans.

She was not receiving payments on loans secured by deeds of trust placed with Gilpin, she testified. When she confronted him with her complaint, he said he did not have the money because he had placed it in other loans he said were better investments, Mrs. Steiner said.

"He did this whether I wanted to do it or not," she added. Finally, an acquaintance told her her investments were in virtually worthless property and showed her the property on which she had deeds of trust, she said. She found vacant lots and poor buildings instead of the valuable property which she had been led to believe was security for her loans, Mrs. Steiner testified.

Gilpin assured her she had nothing to worry about, that her money was in more valuable investments, she related. He showed her land on Clayton road which he said was being held by his company for possible use as supermarkets, the witness continued, and indicated she would benefit from such investments.

Gilpin Not to Testify.

Henry G. Morris, an attorney for Gilpin, told the Post-Dispatch his client would not testify at the hearing on the ground his answers might incriminate him in the emergency plan.

He did take the stand, however, but he declined to answer such questions as whether he was president of the Gilpin Realty Co., and whether he had in his possession certain deeds of trust and promissory notes. When he left the jury 1949, the lawyers went into conference in the judge's chambers.

Gilpin assured her she would not lose any money and he would back her investments 100 per cent with his firm, she testified. The suit alleges the company assets and those of Gilpin are so commingled that the receiver, Spero B. Boudoures, cannot separate them.

Mrs. Steiner went to Gilpin in answer to a newspaper advertisement inviting investments. That the suit alleges the company assets and those of Gilpin are so commingled that the receiver, Spero B. Boudoures, cannot separate them.

Mrs. Steiner, a widow, said she "trusted" Gilpin and accepted investment advice from him. In response to a question from an attorney, she said she never authorized Gilpin to make investments for her without first consulting her.

"He failed to consult me many times," she said. "Often I would have to wait three or four months before getting a statement on my investments."

Mrs. Steiner ended her business relationship with the Gilpin firm in December, 1954. In that month, she said, she discovered $60,000 of her money was invested in an undeveloped area described to her by Gilpin as "Spotless Town," which is in Normandy and bounded by Bermuda, San Francisco and San Diego avenues.

Husband Dead 28 Years.

The 60-year-old woman, who lives at 3303 Sidney street, told the Post-Dispatch her husband died 28 years ago. He left her enough to live on, but she said, "about 15 years ago I decided to put my money to work."

She said she was very careful in making investments on property, always choosing a Gilpin building with potentially good rental returns or land that could be readily developed.

"I was lucky," she said. "On two plots of ground I quadrupled my money."

In testifying the receivership hearing last July, Mrs. Steiner said Gilpin would show her a building and suggest she buy deeds of trust on it.

"My eyesight was bad," she said, "but when I saw the building I knew it was a good investment. But I came to find out six or eight months later that I didn't have that property. I had some vacant lot instead."

PRESIDENT WILL
20 PCT. CUT IN 4 BASIC CROPS

Farmers Would Reduce Acreage, Be Paid in Kind or in Cash Under Proposal to Be Sent to Congress.

By WILLIAM M. BLAIR
The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—President Eisenhower will send to Congress next week a new plan designed to cut by as much as 20 per cent the big surplus-producing crops of corn, wheat, cotton and rice.

The special farm message will be delivered Monday "under present plans," the White House announced today. The plan would permit the Government to reward farmers in cash or in kind for reducing their already allotted acres of the four crops.

A farmer who voluntarily cooperated with the Government by cutting his allotted acres would be given two choices. He could take a Government certificate which he could turn in to cash. Or he could receive from the Government's surplus stocks a quantity of the kind of crop he grew and dispose of it as he saw fit.

Two-Way Attack.

The plan thus would attack the surplus problem in two ways: it could reduce future plantings and help eliminate existing surplus stocks.

The idea will be an emergency part of an over-all "soil bank" provision in the Administration's projected farm legislation.

The second section of the "soil bank" will be geared to long-range conservation. Payments also would be made to farmers for acres under present production and planted to soil-building grasses and trees.

This long-term conservation phase involves $350,000,000 for the first year of a five-year operation. This will be coupled with the existing agricultural conservation program of $250,000,000 to provide a total of $600,000,000. Under the latter program, farmers are paid specific amounts for installing certified soil and water-saving practices.

Key Is Payment in Kind.

The Administration's emphasis in its emergency plan for the surplus problem will be an acceptance of surplus crops as payments to farmers to underplant their individual allotted acres. Farm planners believe that most producers will take the payment in kind rather than the negotiable certificates.

The Administration still is working on details of the farm program to go to Congress, but at present the new proposal would work this way for wheat:

A wheat farmer who has been allotted 1000 acres under present control programs would agree to reduce his planting to 800 acres. His average yield would be calculated on his county basis. If the average yield were 20 bushels to the acre, he would be entitled to a basic payment of 2000 bushels of wheat from the Government.

The national average federal support price is $1.81 a bushel. Thus the wheat farmer's 2000 bushels would be worth $3620. Subtracted from the $3620 would be the negotiable production expenses for the 100 acres the farmer agreed to take out of his allotment. If his production expense is calculated at an average of 80¢ a bushel, a total of $1600 would be deducted to give him Government wheat equal to $2020.

Use or Sale of Wheat.

The farmer could take the wheat and sell it on the open market or feed it to livestock on his farm. If he took the certificate, he could cash it at his bank. The bank would be reimbursed by the Commodity Credit Corporation, the Government price support agency.

Administration farm advisers do not foresee that open market sales would further depress prices. They base their belief on curtailed production and the continued reduction of Government holdings.

The plan would apply only to the four so-called basic crops that receive mandatory federal price support between 75 and 90 per cent of parity. Parity is a formula designed to give the farmer a fair return on what he sells in relation to what he buys. Two other basic crops, tobacco and peanuts, would not be covered. They are regarded as specialty crops without overriding surplus problems. Tobacco has its own program at present.

By the Associated Press.

A general idea of what to expect in the way of Administration agricultural plans was presented today to a Republican members of the House Agriculture Committee by Secretary of Agriculture Benson at a private breakfast get-together.

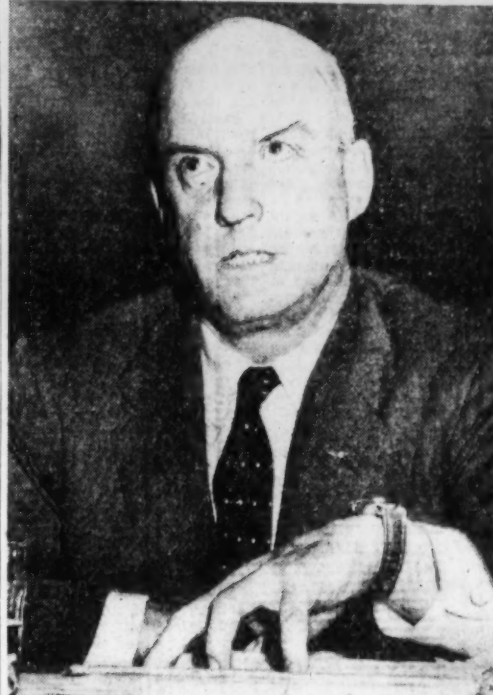

Those attending the Benson breakfast were pledged to secrecy.

Chairman Ellender (Dem.), Louisiana, told reporters that he agreed today to try to have his new program on the President's

ILLNESS, SENATE GROUP IS TOLD

Situation Could Result in Chaos, Oklahoman Asserts — Lee Tells Background of Ouster as CAA Head.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Senator A. S. Mike Monroney charged today that certain Commerce Department officials assumed presidential powers during the illness of President Eisenhower, a situation which, he said, if continued, would result in chaos in the Government.

The Oklahoma Democrat's assertion was made during a Senate subcommittee investigation over which he is presiding into the forced resignation last month of Frederick B. Lee as administrator of the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

Monroney's rather caustic observations about alleged usurpation of presidential powers came during a brief exchange with Senator Andrew Schoepel (Rep., Kansas), as the subcommittee session got under way.

Schoepel insisted that the hearing should start off on the premise that the President has the right to fire and appoint his subordinates without interference from Congress, a position to which Monroney subscribed.

Assumption of Powers.

"There is no question that the President has the right to terminate any appointment he has made," the Oklahoman added. "It will be developed in these hearings, however, that the motivation for this discharge did not originate at the White House. It originated in the Commerce Department."

Since the President alone has the right to terminate an appointment, we will show that there was assumption of presidential powers by those not entitled to them.

"I want to protect the right of the executive branch to terminate policy and fit personnel into proper positions," Schoepel replied.

"So do I," Monroney said. "But the powers of the President are not to be casually assumed by other government agencies. That could only result in a chaotic condition."

Lee, a career public servant with 10 years service in the CAA, was forced to quit by Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Under Secretary of Commerce Louis Rothchild. He was replaced by Charles J. Lowen Jr. of Denver, on Rothchild's recommendation. All involved are Republicans.

Monroney has charged that the ouster of Lee was prompted by his reluctance to agree with Rothchild on certain procedures within the area of aviation safety and plant development on which Lee, not Rothchild, was better qualified from experience to pass judgment.

Rothchild said the action was taken to improve "leadership" in the CAA and in the interest of "teamwork."

Sought More Money.

Under questioning by Monroney, Lee, a native of Woodstock, Vt., and a graduate in physics and law at Harvard University, indicated that his testimony that the basis for his trouble in the last two years with top Department of Commerce officials was his insistence that more money and not economy, was required to keep aviation safety and airport development in tune with present-day requirements and the future demands of the jet age.

He said he had incurred Rothchild's displeasure by testifying "too strongly" in favor of an airport construction bill which was before Congress last summer. Under this program the Government was committed to matching funds with municipalities on a four-year plan for developing field facilities.

Lee said also that it was apparent to him that Rothchild did not look with favor on his opposition to a management consulting firm's recommendation to the Commerce Department that 300 of the CAA's 500 ground-to-air communication stations be abandoned.

He told also of having discussed with Weeks in 1954 about cuts which the Commerce Secretary was recommending in CAA funds. He said he informed Weeks that Congress had determined that airport development was in the national interest and that failure of the department to seek sufficient appropriations was "freezing" cities around the country from proceeding with plans already set and for which the localities

MAJOR CONGRESS QUESTION: WHAT WILL DECISION OF EISENHOWER BE?

Both Parties' Plans to Be Influenced by Announcement as to Whether He Will Run Again.

By JAMES RESTON

The New York Times News Service, Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Company

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Nothing illustrates the political power of President Eisenhower like the return to Washington of the Congress.

The legislators were back in the lobbies yesterday scattering opinions to port and starboard, but they all came back to the question: "What's he going to do?"

Reporters were buttonholing them all over the place about what they expected on farm policy, foreign policy, education policy and all the rest, but most of the interviews ended with the legislators asking the reporters about the President's plans.

Midwesterners' Plight. Take the Middlewestern Senators up for re-election: Seven of the eight are Republicans and all moaning about the plight of the farmers. Did the legislators want to know about the President's new farm program? Sure, but what they really wanted to know was whether he'd head the ticket they have to run on in November.

Same with the Democrats who are spilling for a fight on foreign policy. They think they can bite into the Republican "peace and prosperity" slogan by attacking Secretary of State Dulles and Secretary of Agriculture Benson, but if the President is going to be available to carry the battle into the presidential campaign against them, they're not so sure.

It was the legislators from "blue" constituencies like Texas and Georgia who were most outspoken yesterday. Senator Richard B. Russell, Democrat of Georgia, who is not up for re-election until 1960, slammed the Administration's foreign aid plans, and Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, in the undercurrent of the day, said he "was not very happy" about the foreign situation, but the legislators from the "close" districts were saying very little.

May Affect His Program. This wait-and-see attitude is likely to have a profound effect on the President's legislative program. The officials in the White House responsible for legislative affairs do not want the President to declare himself too early. Their assumption is that the longer they wait the more they will neutralize the opposition and the better their chances will be of getting the President's program accepted on the Hill.

The Democrats were saying yesterday, however, that both parties could play the waiting game. They want to see the dimensions of the presidential campaign before plunging too deeply into the legislative program.

Consequently, there is a difference between the parties on legislative timing right from the start, and the chances are that there will be a lot of stalling until the President has that important "final" checkup in mid-February.

If anything, there seemed to be less confidence among Republican legislators than among Republican top officials here that the President would back a second term. They conceded that they had not been in touch with those who had been seeing the President and therefore had no basis for judgment, but they were inclined to be pessimistic.

Pressure on Eisenhower. As a result, the pressure is really going to be on the President to seek another term when he comes back. Cabinet members and other officials of the Executive branch have done what they could to make clear that they hoped the President would stand for re-election but their intervention has been indirect.

The Republican Senators and Congressmen who have to stand for re-election themselves, however, are not likely to be so restrained. In many cases their political futures will depend on his decision, and it can be taken for granted that they will not be shy about pointing out to him that he is the difference between defeat and victory for the Republicans in their constituencies.

This kind of pressure is already being felt at the Republican National Committee and by the states where an effort is being made to carry out the President's advice to "get the best men possible" to represent the G.O.P. in the campaign for Governor and other state offices.

In case after case, the response of the men being urged to run for office on the G.O.P. ticket is the same as the Congressman's: "What's he going to do?"

Decision Affects All. This pressure within the Republican party, more than any stalling tactics used by the Democrats on the legislative program, is likely to bring about an announcement some time in February, or early March at the latest.

For until the President makes the big announcement, all politicians interested in the 1956 campaign and all legislators interested in the Administration's legislative program are bound to do a certain amount of stalling.

'I Know in My Heart' He Did Not Go Over to East Willingly, She Asserts.

MRS. OTTO JOHN

Otto John, the former West German security chief, has been described as a double turncoat since his return from the Soviet zone to West Germany last month. His wife, in the following interview, granted to the Manchester Guardian, gives his story for the first time.

(U.S. Rights Reserved by United Press)

COLOGNE, Germany, Jan. 4 (UP)—In her three-room Cologne flat, which she rented last October in the belief that her husband would sooner or later escape and rejoin her, Frau John said: "I always knew in my heart that Otto did not go over to the East of his own free will—now I know this for certain."

"There are," she told a Manchester Guardian correspondent, "four good reasons why my husband could never have handed himself over to a totalitarian regime. He fought against Nazism as a member of the German resistance. He dealt firmly with Communist plotters in his job as head of the West German security service. Finally, he was both religious and a Westerner."

Since John returned to West Germany, Frau John has been to see him twice for half an hour and to confirm the belief which was built on her knowledge of her husband's character and on the hints which he repeatedly made in the strictly censored letters which he was allowed to send her, that he was time by time by the East German authorities.

What Wife Says Happened. This, Frau John believes, is what happened to her husband on July 20, 1954, the tenth anniversary of the failure of that resistance movement to Hitler.

On the afternoon of July 20, John went to the surgery of a friend, Dr. Wolfgang Wohlgemuth, in the Uhlendamm strasse in the British sector of Berlin. His object was to inquire into the case of the widow of a former friend, Wohlgemuth was known as a dabbler in left-wing politics, but the doctor's evidence found him amusing. He was also a friend of Hitler's physician, Dr. Morell, and like him made extensive use of dangerous drugs and injections.

Wohlgemuth gave Otto John a cup of coffee prior to taking him to his apartment in order to find documents relating to the case of the widow in question. Still wearing his white surgery coat, Wohlgemuth began to drive John in his own car through West Berlin. John remembers saying to him "For God's sake, Wovow, don't go at this pace or we shall have an accident." He then suffered a sudden and complete blackout.

John says that he came to in a darkened room in the Soviet headquarters of Karlshorst, in East Berlin, feeling extremely weak and being scarcely able to breathe. There was a nurse, and he was under Russian orders, at his bedside, and he was told that he had been unconscious for two days.

Guarded All the Time. From then on, according to John's own story as told by his wife, he was guarded all the time. He was induced to make a short broadcast "to the German people," after twice being given injections, and his friends in West Germany noticed that, over the radio, he was still struggling for breath. On Aug. 11, he held a big press conference in East Berlin in which he talked glibly of the dangers of "American militarism" and of the urgent need to reunify Germany.

His broadcast and press conference convinced the public that he was over to the East Germans of his own accord. "I still knew that he was fighting for his own life," Frau John said. "And that he knew he would get no chance of escape until he had won the confidence of his captors."

Frau John explains away the bitter things her husband said by pointing out that, in the first days after his disappearance, he was accused in print of being a drunkard, a British Secret Service agent and an inefficient fool who failed to carry out his governmental duties.

It was also noted by many newspapers that he had been in a state of almost hysterical excitement on the day of his disappearance, and it was presumed this showed that he was about to make some spectacular decision.

Frau John is able to refute this assumption. At the memorial service to Hitler's victims of the resistance, the officiating clergyman was foolish enough to suggest that their deaths were pre-ordained, since "man shall not kill." The implication was that the men of the resistance deserved to die for conspiring to kill Hitler.

John was weeping when he came out of the parish church of Dahlem. His dead brother Hans had been Jonathan to his David, and his mother had died car waiting for him at the pre-arranged place. The East Berlin police "checked the question at the sector boundary, but at one let it drive on when they realized that it was owned by a Dane."

Four Indiscretions.

Frau John maintains that in 17 months her husband gave away no secrets of any value and that he committed only four deliberate "minor" indiscretions in order to ingratiate himself. The exact nature of these indiscretions cannot be disclosed while John's case is still being investigated by the German authorities.

The charge against John is that "he entertained relations in East Berlin or the Soviet zone with a government or institution outside the region of the federal republic and with people who worked for such a government or institution." It is admitted that he may have been under duress at the time, but he still is accused of having given information which was not necessarily forced out of him.

Not Allowed Bail.

John is not being allowed bail on the ground he has valuable contacts abroad and especially in Britain, and that he might therefore attempt another escape. The specific mention of Britain in the "order of arrest" is surprising. He could obviously be extradited from there at the request of the federal government.

It is, moreover, been clear that John wished to put himself at the disposal of the federal German authorities and tell them all he knew. He indicated this to Mr. Brandt, minister in East Berlin Dec. 12 when he was taken to Bonn by train from Tempelhof airport. He further indicated to his wife that he wanted a full examination of his case, in order to be rehabilitated.

There is still uncertainty about the facts of the "John case" but there can be no doubt that Frau John is convinced of her husband's innocence of any intention of betraying his country and the government for which he worked. This is why she decided to break the silence which she has observed since flying from Britain Dec. 13 in order to be near her husband.

The federal German government has so far had to act with extreme discretion, although it has been subjected to heavy criticism by political rather than strictly judicial reasoning. But it has given Frau John protection.

It has kept John's whereabouts unknown in order to avoid the sort of publicity which could have damaged his case. It has ordered a judicial inquiry which involves full publication of the facts afterward.

BRITAIN SEEKING TO LIFT PRESTIGE IN MIDDLE EAST

Its Experts Confer on Question in Preparation for Eden's Pending Visit to U.S.

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd today conferred with Britain's senior diplomats from the Middle East to find a way to bolster the nation's influence in the area.

Lloyd's purpose in holding the conference is partly to prepare for an examination of the situation when he accompanies Prime Minister Eden later in the month to Washington for meetings with President Eisenhower and United States Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

The governments of Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Jordan and Israel object bitterly to some aspects of this country's program. The Arab countries object particularly to efforts to expand the Baghdad defense alliance.

In Britain, a political storm has burst over the Eden government's export of old and new arms to the region. Opposition Laborites have charged the Eden government mistakenly is favoring the Arab countries at the expense of Israel.

The Eden government is also concerned over Soviet economic and political infiltration in the Middle East, once considered a preserve for British influence.

Meanwhile Eden's waning prestige with the Conservative Party has been a new low when the Daily Sketch advised him either to supply the "seat of leadership" or quit.

The tabloid strongly supported Eden and his Conservative party in the national election only eight months ago. Today, in a front-page editorial, it accused him of "feebleness and fumbling" toward foreign policy problems and Britain's worsening inflation.

"If he does not tackle inflation, his days in Downing street the official residence of the Prime Minister are numbered," the Sketch declared.

The editorial added that members of Eden's own party are saying, "If he cannot make up his mind to govern, let him make up his mind to go."

In later editions the Sketch toned its editorial down considerably but still said the Prime Minister's critics complain that he "will do nothing until he is shoved into it, that he drifts rather than makes decisions."

Faure Says Center Parties Can Form an Effective Government

Expects It to Cover Wide Range of Views — Assays People's Opposition to Parliamentary System.

PARIS, Jan. 4 (AP)—Premier Faure said today that France's next coalition government probably will represent the full range of the center parties from Socialists on the left to Independents on the right.

This would include both the big center blocs led by Faure and former Premier Mendès-France, which fought each other bitterly in the campaign before Monday's elections.

Faure, speaking to the Foreign Press Association, said the election results only confirmed a known opposition to the French parliamentary system. The vote produced a National Assembly even more divided than the last one elected in 1951.

Nevertheless, the Premier continued, the center parties uniting in the assembly should be able to form an effective government.

Analysts Public Temper. He listed three possible causes of hostility to the present parliamentary system among the people: the "game of masses" which had caused a change of cabinet approval every eight months; the multiplicity of parties encouraged by frequent government changes and the attacks on the system even by some center parties working under it.

The United Press quoted Faure in a very reference to Mendès-France, as saying "I like milk, but I can't digest it." His reference to Mendès-France's efforts during his premiership to wear France from wine to milk was made in reply to a question about the possibility of their reconciliation.

Faure said the election law, which gave the Communists fewer seats in the old assembly than the popular vote indicated they should have had, had given France "a false sense of security."

NEW NEWSPAPER IN ENGLISH BEING ISSUED IN MOSCOW

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Moscow radio announced the publication today of the first issue of an English language newspaper, Moscow News.

The radio quoted the paper's initial editorial as saying: "Our task is to give information about the many-sided life of the multi-national U. S. S. R."

The paper is published by the society for cultural relations with foreign countries.

The broadcast said nothing about the former paper, Moscow News, which abruptly ceased publication before the death of Stalin by most famous dissident, the late Michael Borodin, who was sent to communicate China between the two world wars. Shortly after the Moscow News ceased publication Borodin mysteriously disappeared from Moscow. His death was reported last year.

NEHRU PLEASED BY RED BACKING ON GOA, KASHMIR

Decides India Was Not Embarrassed by Russians Who 'Said Correct Things.'

By A. M. ROSENTHAL

The New York Times News Service, Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Company

NEW DELHI, Jan. 4.—Prime Minister Nehru made it emphatically clear yesterday that he fully welcomed Soviet support on the two territorial controversies in which India is involved.

The Indian leader told a public meeting in Agra that India was "naturally pleased" at the fact that Premier Bulganin and Nikita Khrushchev, Soviet Communist party chief, had backed India in its claims to Goa, a Portuguese possession, and to Kashmir, now divided between India and Pakistan.

During their four in India last month and after they returned home, the Soviet leaders not only supported India's stand but denounced the Portuguese rule as a shame to civilization and questioned Pakistan's very right to exist.

The Nehru speech, in Agra, also demonstrated once again that Indian foreign policy and Indian reaction is not determined until the Prime Minister has made up his mind and has had his say. The fact that some Indians were embarrassed by the Russian becomes almost insignificant, in terms of Indian foreign policy, because Nehru has decided that the country was not embarrassed.

Here is what Nehru had to say about the Russians:

"They said some very good things. I never asked them to do that. But they said the correct things. We are naturally pleased."

"Our friends living in other countries did not like these speeches. They have said and written in newspapers that the statements made by Bulganin and Khrushchev did not please even Nehru. The Soviet leaders have expressed their opinions after due consideration, and great deliberation. It is foolish to think that I or any of us did not like these statements."

Nehru also said some foreign countries—presumably West—had been maneuvering behind the scenes in Goa, had found themselves in a "dilemma" and wanted a way out.

'POOR TRAGIC FOOL' ASSAILS OTHER EX-REDS WHO TAKE BOWS

'Journalistic Prostitutes Ought to Be Ashamed,' Ex-Editor Says—Protests Having 'to Bare my Soul.'

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—James S. Glaser, an old-time Socialist and for two years in the thirties editor of the Communist Daily Worker, gave investigating Senators today an intimate glimpse into what it means, in his words, "to be sucked into the political underworld of the Communist party."

Glaser, who protested that he left the party in 1936, had never capitalized on his former association with it and now could not understand why he had to "be excavated to bare my soul." He was congratulated by Republican members of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee for having performed a valuable service to the country by his testimony.

Appearing before the subcommittee at the opening of an inquiry into alleged Communist infiltration of the press, radio and television, Glaser, white-haired and spectacled, drew a picture of himself as an idealist disillusioned by his experience with Communism.

Eisler Controlled Policy.

He related incidents, sometimes tragic and sometimes humorous, to illustrate how the policies of the Daily Worker were controlled by Moscow through Gerhart Eisler, then known as Mr. Edwards, a Russian agent who fled from the United States several years ago on the Polish liner Batory.

Glaser testified at a private session of the subcommittee in New York some weeks ago. Other witnesses at that session were staff members of the New York Times, who apparently will testify at the current hearings.

Glaser was a copy editor on the times from March 21, 1929, to June 30, 1934, before going to the Daily Worker. He quit the Daily Worker in disgust in 1936. He said he had worked for the New York Post and earlier for the Bronx Home News, which was absorbed by the Post for the last 18½ years.

In reply to a question by Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (Dem., St. Louis), a committee member, Glaser asserted it was certainly true that the New York Times never had followed a Communist line.

Criticizes Exploiters.

Glaser spoke bitterly of persons who have left the Communist party and have won fame and fortune by lecturing and otherwise publicizing their adventures.

"They are journalistic prostitutes," he said, "and they ought to be ashamed of themselves. I entered the party as a matter of principle and I left it because of principle. I want to destroy Communism and I must use realistic methods. You can't do it by this type of investigation because it enhances the reputation of questionable characters."

"I haven't prostituted myself. I've never made a penny. I had fabulous offers after I quit the party 23 years ago. I'm no expert on Communism. I was a poor miserable tragic fool. I became a victim of the Communist party."

"It is very easy to be sucked into a political underworld and very difficult to get out. I would try to resign and they would talk to me and I would capitulate. I said I would rather sell peanuts at Coney Island, but I didn't have the backbone to leave. After a time the party came to resemble a deformed child; I was always hoping for a cure."

Red Boss Ruled the News.

Glaser said that on one occasion a woman in charge of a bazaar to raise funds for a Communist cause insisted that he make the bazaar his lead story of the day in the Daily Worker.

"I didn't think a bazaar rated a page-one line," said Glaser. "Soon I got a telephone call from a party functionary advising me to the contrary. I said it was absurd to give a bazaar an eight-column line. Later Eisler telephoned and said it was necessary. He added I wouldn't argue about things like that when I knew more. The bazaar got the eight-column line."

Auto Victim Saved by Bystanders—Man Killed in Another Collision.

Two persons were injured seriously in a collision involving three automobiles at Jamieson avenue and Chippewa street last night. The clothing of one of the injured was ignited by blazing gasoline following the crash and the flames were extinguished by two bystanders.

In an accident in East St. Louis, a filling station manager was killed when his automobile collided with a Trailways bus making a turn at Ninth street and St. Clair avenue. The victim was Clifford P. Pfland, 47 years old, 4750 North Park drive, East St. Louis.

Injured in the three-car accident in south St. Louis, which attracted hundreds of spectators, were Miss Frances Lombardo, 4321 Hanover court, Gardenville, and Earl Wilson, 3014 Mo. Miss Lombardo was thrown to the pavement and her clothing caught fire. The driver of the automobile in which Wilson was a passenger, left the scene.

William Buechner Jr., 118 West Adams avenue, Kirkwood, told police he was westbound in Chippewa (U.S. 66) and stopped at Jamieson to await the electric signal for a left turn. His automobile was struck from the rear by Miss Lombardo's automobile and shoved across the intersection. Buechner suffered shock, but was not seriously injured.

A 1955 Cadillac, also westbound, crashed into Miss Lombardo's machine, which was splashed with gasoline from one of the cars and set afire. Miss Lombardo, a 30-year-old clerk, was thrown to the pavement, and her clothing caught fire.

Ralph Walcott, co-owner of a filling station at the northwest corner of the intersection, and Ronald Blumenfeld, an attendant at the station, ran into the street and beat out the flames in Miss Lombardo's clothing with their jackets. At City Hospital she was pronounced suffering from first-degree burns of the body, and a skull injury.

Wilson, seated in the Cadillac, was taken to City Hospital with chest and head injuries, and shock. The driver of the Cadillac, who left before police arrived, is being sought. He is reported to be a resident of Salem, Mo.

MOSLEY ORDERS 7 LEAVE POLICE HALT ON FIREARM FORCE IN DISPUTE PERMIT INQUIRIES IN COUNTY TOWN

Instructs Deputies Not to Investigate Applications Pending Legal Study.

Sheriff Arthur C. Mosley of St. Louis county today ordered his deputies to stop investigating applications for firearm permits until he has made a study into whether his office has a right to do so.

Albert E. DuBois, superintendent of county police, told the Post-Dispatch yesterday he considered the continuation of such investigations by Mosley's office "a direct violation of the law" in view of an opinion from the county counselor.

Mosley said he would ask for a copy of an opinion given DuBois Aug. 1 by Assistant County Counselor C. Wheeler Detjen, who held that investigations of persons seeking permits to buy pistols should be made by the police department.

DuBois informed Mosley's office Sept. 14 that his department was taking over this work, but the sheriff's deputies continued to make many such investigations. The total up to Saturday was 24.

The continuing checks by the sheriff's office after Sept. 14 were disclosed when inquiry was made to determine how Mrs. John B. Zavis of Affton got the pistol with which she shot and killed her two young sons Thursday.

It was found she obtained the required recommendation for a permit to buy the pistol from a deputy sheriff two days before DuBois notified the sheriff's office his department was taking over this work. The permits actually issued by the circuit clerk.

Mrs. Zavis was charged with first degree murder in each of two indictments returned today by the grand jury at Clayton in the deaths of her two sons, John, 9 years old, and Kevin, 21 months. The indictments replace warrants that had been issued against her.

The jury returned the indictments to Circuit Judge Raymond E. LaDriere, who set bail at $5000 on each indictment. Mrs. Zavis, a former mental patient, is being held at the County Jail.

First Ranger Dies.

FORT COLLINS, Colo., Jan. 4 (AP)—William A. Kreutzer, the nation's first forest ranger, died here Monday of a heart ailment. He was 78 years old. Kreutzer was appointed a ranger at Denver in 1898.

Breckenridge Hills Department Cut by Half in Row With Chief Robert Stokley.

The Breckenridge Hills Police Department was reduced by one-half early today when the assistant chief and two patrolmen, all full-time officers, a part-time patrolman and three women school crossing guards quit in a dispute with Police Chief Robert Stokley.

The seven resignations occurred at the end of a meeting of the village board of trustees which failed to settle the dispute between the full-time men and the part-time chief.

As a result, Patrolman Glenn Dobbs, a part-time officer, was called from his home and began patrolling the city of 7000 people, with the St. Louis County police alerted and on a standby basis.

Former Assistant Chief Harold Fitzgerald said Chief Stokley, appointed last April, allowed "authority to go to his head." Fitzgerald charged Stokley, a part-time employee, had behaved in an autocratic way toward the other men on the force.

Stokley said he considered the complaints petty, while Harry W. Boyts, chairman of the board of trustees, said the major complaints seem to be over the scheduling of the men, a job taken over by Stokley when he was named chief. It had been done formerly by Fitzgerald.

The board met last night for more than five hours, hearing both groups of disputants. As the meeting broke up about 1:30 a.m., the trustees were trying to agree on another date at which to arrive at some settlement.

At this point, Fitzgerald, two full-time patrolmen, a part-time officer and three of the four women crossing guards handed in their badges. Another crossing guard was hired immediately, and with the other who remained, was patrolling the two school crossings on St. Charles road.

Boys, who contended the board had not been given a full opportunity to settle the dispute, said efforts were being made to get replacements. The part-time men average about two nights a week, usually on weekends when the full-time staff is off duty. The part-time men and the women crossing guards receive $50 a month. The chief is paid $60 a month.

VICTIM OF POLIO WITH BABY JOINS HER FAMILY HERE

Mrs. Dorothy Mosey, who was stricken with polio last month, two weeks after the birth of a daughter, was flown to St. Louis from California yesterday in an Air Force plane so that she might be near her family here.

Mrs. Mosey, 25 years old, was taken to the polio ward at St. Anthony Hospital following her arrival at Scott Air Force Base. She was accompanied on the flight by her husband, Sgt. First Class George R. Mosey, who is stationed at Sacramento, Calif.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis co-operated with the Air Force to make possible the transfer of Mrs. Mosey to St. Louis. Expenses for her treatment will be paid by the National Foundation.

WOMAN IS GRAND JURY WITNESS IN 'PAY-OFF' PROBE

Mrs. Constance Kaplan, of the 4300 block of West Pine boulevard, was a witness yesterday before the Circuit Court grand jury in its investigation of reported pay-offs to some policemen. There was no indication whether she testified or refused to give information.

Mrs. Kaplan had been served with a subpoena previously, but it was suppressed last week by Circuit Judge J. Casey Walsh on grounds it had not been properly issued. Another subpoena was issued and served, and it was in response to this one that she appeared yesterday.

ARMY RESERVES MAY USE BARRACKS AREA

Defense Department Taking Steps to Acquire Tract for Maneuvers.

The Defense Department is taking steps to acquire a wooded 236-acre tract in the northern portion of Jefferson Barracks to use for weekend maneuvers by Army reserve units, federal officials said today.

The land, which is Government property being held by the General Services Administration, is being surveyed by the Army Corps of Engineers.

The survey will provide a legal description of the tract, a preliminary to actual transfer of the land, the officials said at Kansas City. They added that it would probably take several months before the transfer could be made.

The G. S. A. also is holding 16 adjacent acres where 21 homes and apartments, housing 43 families, are located. A spokesman for the agency here said presumably the Defense Department would want only the wooded acreage, where there are no houses.

The entire tract, totaling 252 acres, was deeded to the city of St. Louis in 1951 by the Government to be used as a hospital site. However, because the city decided not to go ahead with the project, the land reverted to federal ownership in 1955.

In 1954, the city attempted to transfer the property to St. Louis county, which wanted to use buildings there to house indigent juveniles.

However, the transfer procedure was halted when officials learned that terms of the deed required that the land be returned to the Government, if not used for the specified purpose.

Jess Merritt, head of the G.S.A. surplus property section at Kansas City, said no official request for the land has yet been made by the Defense Department. Federal agencies have prior claim on such surplus tracts, he said, adding that a request by defense officials probably would take precedence over any made by other agencies.

the base, accompanied by his brother and Robinson.

Mr. Eisenhower will receive President-elect Juscelino Kubitschek de Oliveira of Brazil tomorrow at breakfast in his living quarters, Hagerty announced.

First Stop in U.S.

Kubitschek was scheduled to arrive at 7:30 a.m. at Boca Chica naval air station near Key West, his first stop on an informal visit to this country. From here he will go to Washington and then New York.

It was understood Kubitschek originally planned to arrive in the United States last Sunday, but the trip was postponed for a few days after the State Department, it was reported, refused to receive him officially until results of the Brazilian election were certified.

He will be accompanied by a party of nine, including Brazil's ambassador to the United States, Joao Carlos Muniz, and a representative of the Brazilian foreign office, Barbosa da Silva, both of whom will be at the breakfast with Mr. Eisenhower, Hagerty said.

Others at the breakfast will be Dr. Milton Eisenhower; James C. Dunn, United States ambassador to Brazil; John F. Simmons, State Department chief of protocol; R. Adm. H. H. Benson, commander of the naval base; Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, the President's personal physician, and Gen. Gruenther.

Brazil's President-Elect to Visit
Washington Tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (UP)—Brazilian president-elect Juscelino Kubitschek de Oliveira will arrive tomorrow for a three-day visit to the nation's capital.

The chief executive elect of South America's largest nation will fly here after a brief visit with President Eisenhower at Key West, Fla.

The State Department said that while in Washington, Kubitschek will confer with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, be honored at a state dinner given by Vice President Richard M. Nixon, and place a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier.

The State Department described his visit as an official one and said Kubitschek would be given "a most hearty welcome" by the American Government.

The Brazilian president-elect will stay at Blair house, the guest home used by visiting officials. He will leave for New York Saturday night. He will spend Sunday and Monday in New York before departing for Europe.

for construction of a new medium security prison on a location apart from the main prison in Jefferson City. No suggestion was made as to the site, which likely will be determined by the Legislature if the proposal is adopted.

Other proposals in the penal plan include $1,100,000 for construction of new buildings for the women's division of the prison, $1,165,000 for repair and remodeling of existing cell blocks, $200,000 for hospital repairs, $80,000 for residence facilities for prison personnel, and an extensive repair and rebuilding program within the main prison.

Second Plan.

The second alternative prison plan, scaled down to a total of $12,973,000, has been prepared by the Department of Corrections, McGregor said.

The 1955 Legislature appropriated $1,500,000 for construction and equipment of convict shops in the penitentiary, to replace shops destroyed by convict-set fires in the riot on Sept. 22, 1954. This is separate from funds sought from the bond issue program.

Requests of the hospitals for funds, totaling $39,343,560, McGregor said, are headed by the request of St. Louis state hospital for $12,531,300. This includes $10,810,000 for buildings and equipment and $1,721,300 for repairs.

Principal construction sought for the St. Louis state hospital, formerly operated by the City of St. Louis, is a $6,000,000 clinic and administration building, a 500-bed infirmary for aged patients, estimated to cost $2,000,000, and housing for nurses, estimated at $1,000,000.

St. Louis State Training School, for the care, training and treatment of mentally defective and epileptic individuals, requested $6,626,500, including $6,336,000 for buildings and equipment, and $290,000 for repairs.

Other eleemosynary institution requests, McGregor said, include:

State Hospital No. 1, Fulton—$2,916,000 for new buildings, repairs and fireproofing.

Hospital No. 2, St. Joseph—$7,464,000, including $3,000,000 for a surgical hospital and equipment, and $3,000,000 for new buildings for senile patients.

Hospital No. 3, Nevada—$2,366,000 for new buildings and $1,471,300 for repairs of existing buildings, a total of $3,837,300.

Hospital No. 4, Farmington—New buildings, $2,167,000, and repairs, $880,460, a total of $3,047,460.

State school for mentally defective and epileptic, Marshall—$2,921,000, including $1,983, 000 for new dormitories and $968,000 for repairs.

School Requests.

McGregor today made public the fund requests of the higher educational institutions, for buildings, equipment and repairs totaling $62,597,702, as follows:

University of Missouri, Columbia, $26,550,000.—Major requests include new fine arts buildings, $1,800,000; completion of engineering building, $1,800,000; additional agricultural building, $2,100,000; completion of university library, $4,000,000; veterinary clinic, $1,000,000; dormitories, $2,500,000; additional classroom buildings, $3,000,000; arena, $2,500,000; business and public administration building, $1,500,000.

Missouri School of Mines, Rolla, $4,925,000, including a new $1,500,000 civil engineering and mechanics building, and $1,000,000 for completion of the engineer laboratory building.

Lincoln University, Jefferson City, $5,250,000, including $1,450,000 for gymnasium and playing field, and $800,000 for an auditorium wing of the fine arts building.

Northeast Missouri State Teachers College, Kirksville, $5,279,594, including $1,485,000 for a new physical education building.

Northwest Missouri State College, Maryville, $4,180,000, including $1,500,000 for dormitories and $1,000,000 for a new science building.

Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, $6,736,252, including $1,250,000 for an applied arts and science building and $802,000 for a new education building.

Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau, $4,348,836, including $1,691,280 for a science building and $777,020 for a practical arts building.

Southwest Missouri State College, $5,326,700, including $875,000 for a fine arts building, and $1,540,000 for new dormitories.

McGregor held conferences with the teachers college officials this afternoon. He will hear University of Missouri officials tomorrow and Lincoln university officials Friday.

had made appropriations or voted bond issues.

Once Refused to Resign.

Lee said he was not consulted when Rothschilde named Lower first as consultant to him and later as deputy administrator. He said he refused to accede to Rothschilde's request for his resignation last October. Later, he said, he saw Weeks and asked him what complaints he had about the way CAA was functioning.

Weeks apparently had no complaints, he related.

Abruptly last Nov. 29, Lee continued, Weeks notified him at 11:30 a.m. that he wanted his resignation before the close of business that day. Still Weeks offered no reason why he should be ousted, Lee said, though he did offer him a position "for a limited time" as a consultant.

Subsequently, Lee said, he delivered to the "office of Sherman Adams" at the White House a letter dealing with the entire situation.

Hearing Recused.

His testimony was interrupted by a recess in the committee session until tomorrow morning when, it is expected, Monroney will go into the White House handling of the case by Sherman Adams, assistant to the President.

The Lee ouster has been strongly criticized by representatives of practically every segment of the aviation industry, from private pilots to major aircraft manufacturers.

The case, involving as it does, all Republicans, has provided the Democrats in the Senate with a ready-made vehicle for an early-session take-off against certain top Eisenhower aids.

As a result of the Lee ouster, Monroney tomorrow will introduce a bill in the Senate to take control of the CAA from the Commerce Department and give the agency independent status, answerable primarily to Congress and its committees.

The Lee ouster has been strongly criticized by representatives of practically every segment of the aviation industry, from private pilots to major aircraft manufacturers.

AIR BOARD DELAYS OATH FOR MINETTI

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (UP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board has avoided a fight with Senator A. S. Mike Monroney (Dem., Oklahoma), by postponing the swearing in of G. Joseph Minetti as a board member.

The CAB had planned to swear in Minetti yesterday shortly before Congress opened its new session. Monroney questioned the legality of the plan.

Monroney said last week that he also was checking whether Minetti, a New Yorker appointed to a Democratic vacancy on the board, really is a Democrat. He said a question had been raised as to Minetti's party affiliation.

The law states that not more than three members of one party may serve on the CAB.

Monroney said the CAB was "wise not to try to circumvent the process of confirmation through a technicality in the law" as to swearing in Minetti.

Minetti, now a member of the Federal Maritime Board, was given a recess appointment to the CAB to replace former Senator Josh Lee (Dem.), Oklahoma, whose term expired Dec. 31.

A recess appointment is made by the President when Congress is not in session. It allows the appointee to take office temporarily without Senate confirmation.

Monroney said Congress is "checking Minetti's understanding of aviation and whether he meets the bipartisan qualifications required by law."

He said by Feb. 15, Ellender said key points would be:

1. Some form of "fertility bank" which would put from $400,000,000 to more than a billion dollars additional cash into pockets of farmers who withdrew production of acres in crops now surplus.

2. A revision of the Administration's flexible price support program so that it could move upward from 90 per cent of parity "for quality commodities," instead of downward.

3. A combination "of gadgets" to dispose of huge surpluses in which the Government now has some seven billion dollars invested in price support loans.

4. A "trial balloon" of the two-price system on rice, one of the six basic commodities. Under it rice used domestically would be supported at 90 per cent of parity or higher, while that exported would be sold at world price levels.

Look Her on Outings.

While she was investing money with the Gilpin firm, she said, Gilpin and his wife frequently saw her socially. "They often took me to their farm in Illinois for outings," she said.

In addition to Mrs. Steiner's receivership suit, another complaint has been filed against Gilpin, who lives at 8 Walchshausen court, St. Louis county.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kettler, 75 Union road, St. Louis county, alleged he misrepresented a $10,000 first deed of trust to them. Gilpin was arrested Dec. 24 and booked suspected of obtaining money under false pretenses in this case. He was released on bond.

The Gilpin firm has been expelled from the St. Louis Real Estate Board for alleged unethical conduct. A hearing on revocation of Gilpin's and his firm's state real estate licenses has been set for Jan. 12 at Hotel Jefferson by John W. Hobbs, secretary of the State Real Estate Commission.

TONY LOPIPARO'S TERM ENDS;
HE FACES U.S. TAX CHARGE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Jan. 4.—Anthony (Tony) Lopiparo, St. Louis gangster, was released from the federal prison here today after completing an 18-month sentence for criminal contempt of court.

Lopiparo's term was reduced by 108 days for good behavior in prison, where he did general maintenance work. Upon his release, he was turned over to a federal marshal for return to St. Louis on an income tax indictment.

The contempt sentence was imposed on Lopiparo by United States District Judge George H. Moore for failure to produce books and records of the Twin City Distributing Co. before the federal grand jury. The income tax evasion charge, naming Anthony Giardano and Ralph Calles along with Lopiparo, was based on their operations of the company. Giardano and Calles also are St. Louis gangsters.

WESTINGHOUSE
STRIKERS SEEK AID POLITICALLYHands-Off Policy by Administration Felt by Union—Contrast to Other Years.By JOSEPH L. LUTTEN
The New York Times, New York, Jan. 4, 1956.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Hard-pressed at home at Westinghouse Corp., now turning to political channels to find a solution to their long and bitter strike.

Their quest has not yielded any effective results to date, probably because their political channels are so limited.

The strike is a clear illustration of the limitations of many unions which to political support of the collective bargaining level.

Westinghouse headed into the strike last October in a relatively weak position and competitive position. It is probably figured to the union's advantage. The strike shut down about 40 plants, so the company's book position probably is worse than it was in October. But it has shown a surprising resistance.

Strike in 10th Week.

It is apparent to most observers now that the AFL-CIO International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers is in a difficult position as the strike staggers through its twelfth week. The accomplishment of victory is not promising. The union president, J. P. Carey, the IUE president, has returned in several different ways, but the company has shown no sign that it will collaborate in giving the union even a face-saving settlement.

The union is feeling the absence of a sympathetic National Administration, and the presence of a "hands-off" policy. A mediator from the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service is working on the case, but that is a routine course.

In other years, notably those of the New Deal and the Fair Deal, both sides would have been called to Washington even before the strike had reached this stage. Management would have felt the presence of a not too hospitable host. Everybody's feet would have been held to the fire until a settlement was reached.

No Call to Washington.

This course must have been acceptable to the union. They usually acquiesce in it even when they feel the political potency to resist is effectively. It is a course the IUE presumably would embrace with alacrity now. However, such a course runs counter to the Eisenhower Administration's policy of keeping labor-management disputes as far away from the White House as possible. Hence no call to Washington is likely.

In the meantime, the union has been beating what political bushes remain available to it. In Washington, some individual members of Congress have lent a hand. In the field, three governors and mayors and mayors-elect of 15 cities have been persuaded to support a union demand for arbitration of the strike issue.

The latest product of the union's lobbying was a statement issued Monday by 10 Senators who said the apparent failure of collective bargaining caused them "to feel that the public interest requires an early Senate inquiry into the dispute."

The senators, all Democrats known for their friendliness to union causes, are: Paul H. Douglas, Illinois; James E. Murray, Montana; Herbert H. Lehman, New York; Hubert H. Humphrey, Minnesota; Wayne L. Morse, Oregon; Matthew M. Neely, West Virginia; Pat McNamara, Michigan; Harley Kilgore, West Virginia; Mike Mansfield, Montana; Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Wyoming.

Three governors have come to the aid of the union in separate arbitration proposals. They are George Leader of Pennsylvania and Everett Harrison of New York, both Democrats, and Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin of Maryland, Republican.

The strike involves also the United Electrical workers, an unaffiliated and relatively weak union that was expelled by the Congress of Industrial Organizations five years ago for following Communist policies. The IUE shut down 30 plants employing 4,000 workers on Oct. 7. The U.E. joined the strike on Oct. 26, shutting down 10 plants employing 9,000 workers.

Westinghouse and Union Chiefs to Meet Again.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4 (AP).—Top level disputants in the Westinghouse strike meet in Philadelphia today in the hope of settling a 12-week walkout.

By the United Press.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio said today the state would step into the labor dispute at Westinghouse "if necessary" to maintain law and order.

New strike violence flared briefly in Mansfield, O., today as 300 strikers pushed, punched and started returning workers. One plant was struck and injured by a worker's car.

DATA OF HEARING ON HUGH CROSS TO BE DISCLOSED

Symington Talks With McClellan, They Agree Record Should Be Made Public.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The record of subcommittee hearings which led to the resignation under fire of Hugh W.
Cross as chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission will be made public soon, it was indicated today.
Senator Stuart Symington
(Dem., Missouri), told the Post-Dispatch that he had discussed with Senator John L. McClellan (Dem., Arkansas), the testimony that Cross and others gave in closed sessions of the Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee and that they were in agreement that the complete hearings record should be made public. McClellan is chairman of the subcommittee.
Symington said that McClellan would recommend such a course as soon as the subcommittee can be convened.
Cross, of Jerseyville, Ill., resigned last Nov. 25 after the subcommittee had held two days of closed hearings on a conflict-of-interest case in which Cross was the principal figure.
Questioned on Influence.
The ICC chairman was questioned as to whether he had used his ICC influence to help persuade the railroad industry to transfer passengers and baggage among Chicago's eight railroad stations.
In submitting his resignation to President Eisenhower, Cross said the allegations against him were "baseless" but the fact they had been made impaired his usefulness in the ICC chairmanship.
Symington told the Post-Dispatch today that "after studying the testimony, it is clear that someone was not telling the truth, and especially in that Mr. Cross stated any charges against him were baseless, the testimony should become a matter of public record."
Symington declined to disclose the names of other witnesses questioned in the subcommittee hearings since they are part of the unreleased record. He said, however, that "most people estimated very high in the railroad structure of the United States."
Asked if the recommendation to the subcommittee would be to have the complete record of the hearings published, Symington said that "of course, any editing of the record would, in effect, mean that the true record was not being given to the public."
"The theory of the goldfish bowl also applies here," he said.
Symington was in Missouri when the subcommittee hearings were held, appearing for himself and Senator Thomas C.
Hennings Jr. (Dem., Missouri), at subcommittee hearings being held in the state on the administration's handling of the farm program. Hennings was unable to attend the Missouri hearings because he was presiding at a session of the Senate subcommittee on Constitutional Rights, of which he is chairman.
Symington from the start has favored publication of the record of the Cross hearings.
Mrs. Alice C. Good Dies.
NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—
Mrs. Alice Campbell Good,
Democratic national committeewoman for 19 years and delegate-at-large to eight national Democratic conventions, died of a heart attack yesterday. She was 74 years old.

SCHOOLS REVISE COURSES LEADING TO OFFICE JOBS

New Program Designed to Answer Criticism That Students Were Not Prepared.

Two revised courses in business and office skills for public high school students were approved yesterday by the Board of Education, meeting as a committee of the whole.

The courses, which will replace existing programs, will give students a better opportunity to prepare themselves for secretarial and office jobs, board members were told by Superintendent of Instruction Philip J. Hickey.

He said the program had been revised to answer criticism that high school graduates were not sufficiently prepared to fill such jobs without further training.

The new program will be given with equal emphasis in both the academic and the technical high schools, Hickey said. In the past, he added, business education has been emphasized in the technical schools.

One of the new courses consists of training in such office skills as stenography, typewriting and bookkeeping. The other course provides for instruction in business problems, including insurance, taxation and money and banking.

Hickey said the new courses would be "a little more extensive" than the existing program, but that there would be no considerable increase in the school time devoted to business training.

The new courses were planned in the last three years by groups of teachers, with the advice of business men, Hickey said. He said the program would be put in effect after the board gives it formal approval at the regular monthly board meeting next Tuesday.

Meeting in executive session, the board approved sites for one large elementary school, three smaller primary schools, and three extensions to existing school playgrounds. Location of the sites will be announced after the ground has been acquired.

Board members also approved expenditures from the contingent funds of their executive officers, including an item of $147 for the board's private dinner held prior to the Dec. 13 public meeting.

STATE OF UNION MESSAGE TO BE READ TOMORROW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Congress was in recess today, awaiting President Eisenhower's State of the Union message tomorrow.

There was no advance word on exactly what legislation Mr. Eisenhower will propose in a 7500-word message that clerks will read to the two houses at noon.

The President probably will send a school construction message to Congress lawmakers Jan. 12 or 13, lay down his budget proposals Jan. 16 and follow with a special health message Jan. 19.

White House aides briefed Republican leaders yesterday and several of those who attended said they expected no surprises in the President's State of the Union recommendations.

UTILITY TUNNEL BLAST SETS FIRE, BREAKS WINDOWS

An explosion in a utility tunnel in the 100 block of North Jefferson avenue last night damaged two plate glass store windows, blew a manhole cover off and caused a fire which sent flames 25 to 30 feet high into the air, police reported.

The blast shattered a 6-foot-square window of a beauty parlor at 115 North Jefferson and cracked another window of a barber shop at 117 North Jefferson. Union Electric Co. officials said the blast was caused by a spark from a short circuit in a cable, igniting an accumulation of gases.

Traffic was rerouted two blocks either side of the explosion. Firemen removed several manhole covers in the area in order to extinguish the underground blaze. Electric service was not interrupted.

THREE AIRMEN ARE KILLED IN B-47 STRATOJET CRASH

AMARILLO, Tex., Jan. 4 (AP)—Three airmen were killed yesterday when a B-47 Boeing stratojet crashed and exploded about two miles southwest of Amarillo Air Force Base.

The six-engine jet bomber, a Strategic Air Command plane on a routine flight from Altus Air Force Base, Okla., hit a telephone pole while practicing blind landing approaches.

The crewmen were identified as Capt. Rex H. Witzel, 35 years old, Oklahoma City, pilot; Capt. Edward H. Stien, 33, Raymond Center, Wis., co-pilot, and Airman Second Class C. P. G. Stratford, 20, Livonia, Mich.

JULIUS LA ROSA TO MARRY

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—Singer Julius La Rosa who bounced into the headlines when he was fired from Arthur Godfrey's television show became engaged New Year's eve to the secretary of singer Perry Como. News of his engagement to Rory Meyer did not become public until today.

Miss Meyer, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Meyer of Manitowish, Wis., came to New York for a year to study psychology and liberal arts at Columbia University. She dropped her studies for secretarial jobs, becoming secretary to Como two years ago.

70 ARRESTED IN YEAR BY U.S. NARCOTICS AGENTS

Federal narcotics agents arrested 70 persons here last year, approximately twice as many as the year before, Assistant United States Attorney Robert C. Tucker reported yesterday.

Six major sources of heroin for this area were cut off, five of them in Chicago and one in New York. The heroin would have brought approximately $250,000 on the retail market. Fifty-three persons were given sentences ranging from two to 13 years, a total of 281 years. Four were placed on probation and 13 are awaiting trial.

BAR DENIES 'POLITICS' CHARGE BY FISHER

Committee Explains Proposed Reforms Which Top Magistrate Criticized.

The Executive Committee of the Bar Association of St. Louis denied today a contention by Chief Magistrate-elect P. Donald Fisher that "politics" inspired action initiated by the association in the Missouri Supreme Court toward promulgation of a new set of rules for the 10 magistrate courts in St. Louis.

The committee, after a special meeting, described its report seeking reform in the magistrate's courts as "accurate and sound" and "obviously not politically inspired."

The committee stated: "The report of the Magistrate Courts Committee of the Bar Association of St. Louis is an accurate and sound one, prepared by a committee experienced in magistrate court practice, and obviously not politically inspired."

"The report and suggested rules were made in the interest of justice in the Magistrate Courts and were properly submitted to the Supreme Court of Missouri for appropriate action. It is our hope that the Magistrates and all concerned will join the bar association and the Supreme Court of Missouri in endeavoring to achieve that end."

T. Hartley Pollock, president of the bar association, pointed out that the report had been approved not only by the association's executive committee but at a general membership meeting several months ago. Copies also were furnished, he recalled, to all members of the association, including Fisher and several other magistrates.

Prior to filing the report with the Supreme Court last Thursday, Pollock said, no one had expressed opposition to it.

REDS CRITICIZE REGIONAL GROUP IN FARMING AREA

MOSCOW, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Soviet Communist party is tightening discipline in preparation for its twentieth congress here next month. Regional, district and city organizations are the target for sharp criticism.

The latest blast, reported in Pravda yesterday, was aimed at the regional committee in Gorky, center of an important industrial and farming area on the Volga. The officials were accused of indifference to the welfare of the workers, outmoded industrial and agricultural methods and bureaucracy.

However, no dismissals were announced among the committee personnel. The head of the Sverdlovsk regional committee was removed last month and the membership of the committee shaken up after similar accusations were presented against them.

Pravda quoted the committee's second secretary, identified only as Kochedykov, as saying instructors sent by the party organization buried themselves in paper work instead of getting to grips with the situation on the collective farms. It charged that decisions were made without knowledge of conditions on the farms.

JORDAN TRIBUNAL VOIDS DISSOLVING OF PARLIAMENT

AMMAN, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Jordan Supreme Court ruled today that the dissolving of Parliament last month was unconstitutional. The court's decision was unanimous and binding, meaning the life of the old Parliament is extended.

Its dissolution was ordered Dec. 20 after riots throughout the country protesting against Jordan's possible membership in the British-backed Baghdad alliance.

King Hussein had announced that elections for a new Parliament would be held in the next four months but no date had been met.

It is expected that the present caretaker government led by Ibrahim Hashim will resign now to allow formation of a new government. Hashim's cabinet took over after the resignation of that headed by Hazza el Majali, who favored Jordan's joining the Baghdad alliance with Britain, Turkey, Iraq, Iran and Pakistan.

Leading candidates for the premiership are Samir el Rifai and Fawzi el Mulki, both former premiers and now members of the caretaker government.

SLAUGHTER IS TOLD TO POST $40,000 IN ALIMONY BOND

Enos Slaughter, former St. Louis Cardinal outfielder now with the Kansas City Athletics, was ordered by Circuit Judge Quentin Spivey at Belleville yesterday to post a $40,000 bond to assure payment of $17,500 in alimony he still owes his fourth wife, who lives in Belleville. Slaughter's counsel said $3000 has been paid. Mrs. Slaughter, who obtained a divorce Nov. 21, asked the court to order posting of the bond. Slaughter was married again in Maryland Dec. 22.

HEARING ON DEEDING SHAW'S GARDEN PLOT

Tucker, Shepley, Kaufmann for Giving Garden Clubs Tract for Offices.

Hearing on a suit to determine whether trustees of Missouri Botanical (Shaw's) Garden will be permitted to deed six acres of garden property to the National Council of State Garden Clubs continued today in the court of Circuit Judge Ivan Lee Holt Jr.

Mayor Raymond H. Tucker and other civic officials testified yesterday in support of the proposed action, which would enable the garden club organization to construct a $300,000 national headquarters at Shaw's Garden.

Trustees of Missouri Botanical Garden, established under the will of the late Henry Shaw, filed petition last June seeking construction of the benefactor's will, which provided that the Shaw property was to remain in public use.

Mayor Tucker told the court the establishment of the National Council headquarters here would be "a definite asset to the garden." He said the move would attract botanical experts to St. Louis and enhance the reputation of Shaw's Garden.

Also testifying for the proposed action were Chancellor Ethan A. H. Shepley of Washington University, a member of the garden's board of trustees for 30 years, and Aloys P. Kaufmann, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis.

Shepley said the garden itself could not develop the acreage under consideration because of lack of funds. The six acres are on Magnolia avenue, facing Tower Grove Park, in an area relatively remote from the main garden buildings.

In their petition, the garden trustees pointed out that the land would be deeded to the National Council of State Garden Clubs only for use as a headquarters site. The acreage would be returned to Shaw's Garden in the event it ceased to be used for that specific purpose, the trustees said.

Announcement that the national garden club group would set up headquarters at Shaw's Garden was made in April 1954, following a determined effort by St. Louis leaders to attract the group. Design for the new headquarters was approved in October 1954.

SOLDIER GETS 199 YEARS FOR KILLING CHICAGO GIRL

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (AP)—A young Army private who admitted he raped and strangled a girl he met at an anti-aircraft unit party in a South Side park was sentenced to 199 years in prison yesterday.

Judge Thomas E. Klinecynski of Criminal Court sentenced Henry Matthews, 18-year-old Detroit Negro, after his plea of guilty to a murder charge.

Matthews related he slapped and strangled Joanne Pushis, 17, a white girl, in the park Aug. 6. Matthews said he drank 14 or 15 cans of beer at the party, held in the mess hall of Battery A, 734th Anti-Aircraft Artillery Battalion, in Calumet Park on the shore of Lake Michigan. His statement led to an order prohibiting sale of liquor at Army posts in city parks.

Seabees Building Tiny Village for Scientists Take Time Out for Commissioning of Base.

By SAUL PETT

LITTLE AMERICA V, ANTARCTICA, Jan. 4 (AP)—Little America No. 5 was formally dedicated today on a gently rolling desert of endless snow, four miles south of Kainan bay and some 30 miles east of Adm. Richard E. Byrd's four previous Antarctic camps.

For the brief commissioning ceremony today, only three tents and assorted orange-colored tractor vehicles were on the scene. It looked like the last tiny outpost of civilization lost in a white infinity.

Within two months Seabees will have completed a small modern village of 17 buildings, spread over five acres, which for the next three years will be the main base for "Operation Deepfreeze." Here scientists during the 1957-58 International Geophysical Year will study the mysterious phenomena of Antarctic skies, winds, ice and waters.

All you can see from the base site to the east, south and west is the snow-covered Ross Sea ice shelf, a bigger area than California. But to the north on a clear day can be seen Kainan Bay, which is one reason the site was chosen. The view of something more than snow is expected to have a helpful psychological effect on the 76 Seabees who have volunteered to spend the winter here.

The view won't make any difference after April, when the sun goes down and the party is enveloped in total darkness for six months. Before long the entire base likely will be covered with snow. The men will have to travel between the buildings in tunnels.

But they will have comfortable quarters with carpeted floors, movies, radio, high fidelity phonographs, a well-stocked library and just about everything experts can devise.

Lt. Comdr. Peter Bol of Arcadia, Calif., the Protestant chaplain who will winter here, said he expects the most biggest problem will be boredom. To help combat it, he hopes regularly to plant "seed thoughts" to stimulate thinking and conversation.

Shortly before the commissioning ceremony, the site was enveloped in a mild whitout, cutting visibility to 100 yards. But as the yellow-suited Seabees lined up in formation, the sky cleared, the sun came out and an Antarctic heat wave hit—38 degrees, and plenty hot when you're wearing gear intended for 60 below.

Byrd, director of the United States Antarctic program, and R. Adm. George Dufek, commanding officer of the Navy task force, briefly congratulated the Seabees on laying the trail for the expedition's ships to the site and wished them well for the winter.

"Little America No. 5 is now in commission," said Comdr. Herbert Whitney of Arlington, Mass., who will command the winter base. Then the flag was raised and the main base was in business.

Dufek later observed that the entire operation, both at Little America and 400 miles west at McMurdo Sound, was now a week ahead of schedule.

"We've been lucky in getting good ice weather and base sites," he said. The Bay of Whales area, where Byrd built his four previous Little Americas, was unsuitable this year because of changing ice and difficult unloading conditions.

Shortly after the ceremony the icebreaker Glacier headed for McMurdo Sound, where air operations are expected to begin soon.

JEWISH HOSPITAL RECEIVES
2 RESEARCH GIFTS OF $3930

Two gifts totaling $3930 have been received by Jewish Hospital to support scientific research, it was announced today. A total of $3000 was contributed by Mrs. Clara K. London to be applied to a fund established in 1939 in memory of her late husband, Louis H. Monheimer. The money will be used for research on glandular function in problems of aging, conducted by Dr. Herman T. Blumenthal, director of the hospital's division of laboratories.

A gift of $930 has been received from the St. Louis Heart Association for a research project in conjunction with the City Hospital Artery Bank. The project, under direction of Dr. Morton D. Pereira, is concerned with studies of changes in the graft arteries produced by various methods of preservation. Dr. Pereira is director of Jewish Hospital division of surgical services and its surgical research laboratory.

SPANISH STUDENTS OPPOSED TO FRANCO

82 Pct. at Madrid College Against Totalitarianism.

By CAMILLE M. CIANFARRA
The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

MADRID, Jan. 4.—The results of an officially-sponsored poll made available yesterday that the great majority of Madrid university students are opposed to Spain's totalitarian rule.

A conclusion drawn from the poll by Spanish experts was that dissatisfaction with present social and economic conditions and a "lack of political experience" have made the youths an easy target for communist propaganda.

The poll was conducted by the Institute of Public Opinion, a department of the Ministry of Information.

Because of aspects considered here to be disquieting, the results of the poll have not been published. However, a detailed report written by Jose Maria Pinillos, professor of experimental psychology at Madrid University, who analyzed the answers and wrote the conclusions, has been distributed privately in official and diplomatic circles.

It is understood that Generalissimo Franco has been informed of the results of the poll.

The results suggest, according to the report, that 70 per cent of the students do not agree with "the present social and economic structure in Spain."

"In other words, an obvious mood of disapprobation of the ruling classes is taking over the university," the report said.

Of the students consulted, 20 per cent supported a totalitarian form of regime, while an equal percentage was politically indifferent.

The report said 80 per cent of the students declare unreservedly that they have no confidence in the present authorities. Sixty per cent of the students who hold that view are divided equally between monarchists and republicans, it pointed out. The term republican is used in the report as synonym for leftwinger. Both groups are "waiting for a political change that will permit 'collective action,'" the report said.

ICC HEARINGS ON T.P. & W. PROPOSED SALE ORDERED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday ordered public hearings at Peoria, Ill., starting Feb. 1, on the proposed sale of the Toledo, Peoria & Western Railroad.

The ICC has two rival petitions for authority to buy that line, an important connecting railroad traversing northern Illinois and bypassing the congested Chicago area.

The Pennsylvania and Santa Fe railroads are seeking to obtain ownership of T.P. & W. through purchases of outstanding stock. The Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad Co. wants to buy this stock for sole ownership. Most of the stock is held by the estate of the late George P. McNear Jr., former president of T.P. & W.

$75,000 CHECK HE GAVE WIFE JUST GAG, MAN CLAIMS

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—A Philadelphia lawyer's estranged wife said yesterday it was no kitchy gag on his part that gave her possession of his check for $75,000.

Mrs. Maude Lennox Zink said that, as a mature lawyer, her husband wasn't that playful a type. She claimed the check was part of a real estate deal she entered into with her husband after marriage.

The husband, Albert, recently obtained a temporary stay in state supreme court against his wife cashing the check. He claimed he gave it to her Christmas day, 1945, for a gag and made it payable 10 years later, or this last Christmas.

Justice Benedict D. Dineen put off until later a decision on whether the check is valid.

6836 STRICKEN FROM COUNTY VOTER LIST; MANY RESTORED

Canvassers from the St. Louis County Board of Election Commissioners struck 6836 names from the list of registered voters in a two-day canvass in each of the county's 378 precincts last Wednesday and Thursday, Chief Democratic Clerk C. M. O'Sullivan announced today.

The names were stricken when the canvassers found no such person listed at the addresses from which they were registered, but O'Sullivan said about 2000 of the names probably would be restored. Those removed from the list were notified they could show cause yesterday why they should not be restored to the lists. About 400 appeared in person at the board and about 1500 sent in written explanations, he said.

Prior to the canvass, the total of registered voters was 220,000. The canvass was made in preparation for the election Jan. 24 on the $75,000,000 state bond issue and for the Feb. 7 election on a Maline Creek sewer bond issue.

BERTH IN MAJORS IN FIVE YEARS IS MIAMI GOAL

AGREEMENT ON STADIUM ANNOUNCED

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 4 (AP)—Miami will replace Syracuse when the International Baseball League opens its 154-game schedule April 18.

This rapidly growing resort city was officially voted into the far-flung Triple-A circuit at a board of directors meeting here yesterday.

The league unanimously endorsed the proposal of Sid Salomon Jr., St. Louis insurance executive, to transfer the Syracuse franchise to Miami after Salomon received a verbal agreement from the city commission on the club's use of Miami Stadium.

(The United Press reported: "When play begins April 18, everything will be settled," said Commissioner B. E. Hearn. "We will work out terms for purchase of the park and will draw up a lease with the ball club as soon as possible.")

Otis Shiver, one of the two commissioners who opposed provisions of the agreement at an informal meeting yesterday, said today's decision was unanimous.

Salomon and his associates, Bill Veeck, who was president of the Browns and the Cleveland Indians, and Elliott Stein, St. Louis investment banker, bought the franchise from Martin Haske for a reported $100,000.

Ultimate Goal. The ultimate goal is to get Miami into the major leagues, Salomon said, and he hopes that possibility will materialize in four to five years.

Members of the league gave Miami a solid endorsement because they feel it will give Triple-A baseball solid support and because it will break up the long trip the teams must make from Richmond, the southernmost United States member, to Havana.

President Roberto Maduro of the Havana club predicted that Miami would draw 400,000 customers in its first season in the league.

Montreal will be at Columbus, Toronto at Richmond, Buffalo at Miami and Rochester at Havana in the league's opening games. Northern cities will open at home May 2, with Columbus at Montreal, Richmond at Toronto, Miami at Buffalo and Havana at Rochester.

Park Owned by Cuban. Miami has a two-year lease with a purchase option on Miami Stadium, which is owned by Jose Aleman of Cuba. Aleman has refused to extend the lease but will sell the property for $850,000.

Salomon told the city commission a lease of at least 10 years would be required. If the club were evicted from the stadium in two years, he said, the owners would lose a quarter of a million dollars.

Mayor Randall Christmas assured Salomon the city either would buy the stadium and give the club a 10-year lease with an option for 10 more years or turn its purchase option over to the club six months before the expiration of the current two-year lease.

With this assurance, the league voted Miami in.

29 Points for Bobby Thym in Vanderbilt Win

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 4.—Bobby Thym, Vanderbilt's junior forward from St. Louis, paced the Commodores to a double overtime victory over William and Mary here last night, 89-80.

Thym scored 29 points, his high for the year, before fouling out in the second overtime. When the slim forward left the game there was no doubt as to the outcome, the Commodores being out in front, 87-77.

Seventeen of Thym's points came in the opening half when Vanderbilt left the floor at intermission with a 43-31 bulge. In addition to pacing the scoring, Thym gathered in 15 rebounds, third high for the evening.

Vanderbilt, the fourth ranked team in the nation in this week's Associated Press poll, had to come from behind in chalking up its eighth victory in nine starts. William and Mary enjoyed a 67-60 edge with six minutes remaining.

Brehenys and Kutis in U.S. Amateur Cup Game Sunday

By Dent McSkimming

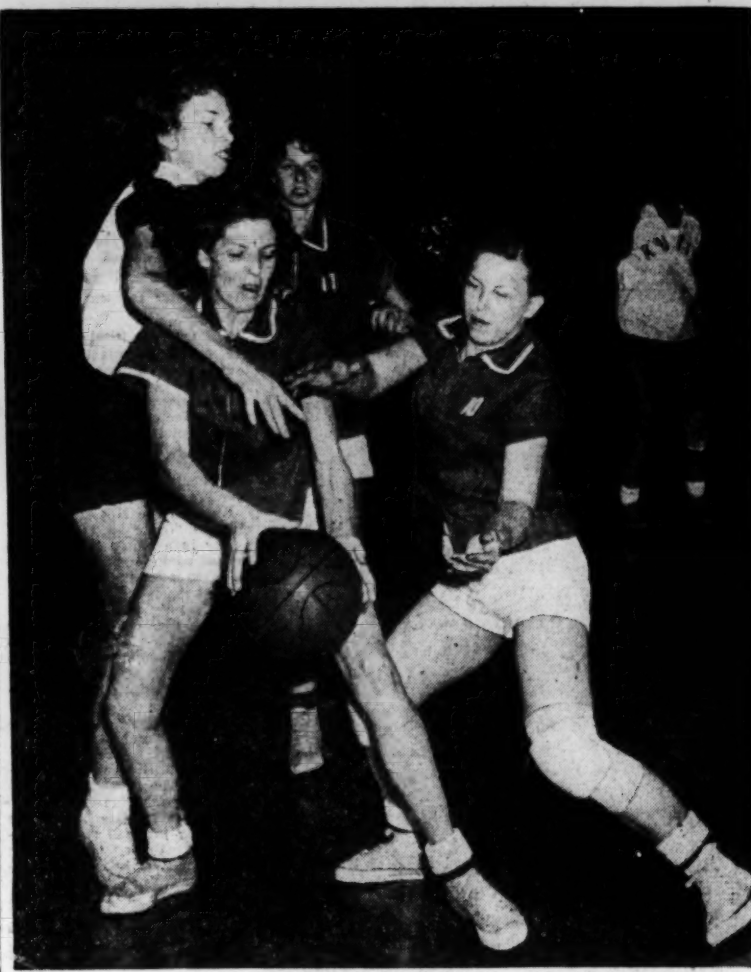

Mike Brehenys' scrappy, young soccer team that upset Simpkins last Monday gets a chance to prove that result no fluke when it opposes Kutis, Sunday, in the local final of the national amateur championship tournament.

Agreement to play the game this weekend was announced today. It will be the featured portion of a doubleheader at Oakland Stadium, home of the non-league Kutis club. The Brehenys are a member of the Khoury League.

Winner of this local final will wait to oppose the survivor of a three-cornered series involving the Lincoln (Nebraska), Kansas City and Dallas, representatives. The Kansas City-Lincoln part of this debate will be settled Sunday when these clubs replay their earlier match in which a Kansas City victory was wiped out by a protest.

St. Louis fans were happy over the news that six of their

Southpaw Lehman Signs; May Be Groomed to Replace Lefty Podres

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—Southpaw Ken Lehman, who served as "stand in" for Johnny Podres last September, was expected to be groomed for a starring role with Brooklyn as soon as the Dodgers lose their "leading man."

Brooklyn, which faces the loss of Podres to the Army shortly, is casting around for a suitable left-handed pitching replacement. The 27-year-old Lehman, a 22-game winner with Montreal of the International League last season, looks like the logical man.

Lehman, who signed his 1956 contract with the Dodgers yesterday, never got the chance last fall but he'll certainly get an opportunity in view of the fact that Podres has been reclassified 1-A by his draft board and faces military induction, perhaps even before the season starts.

The blond, six-foot Lehman led the International League with 21 complete games and six shutouts during the past season. His earned run average was 2.76 and he included a perfect seven-inning game against Columbus in his record.

Lehman, now pitching for the Escogido club in the Dominican Winter League, is the fourth Brooklyn player to agree to terms for 1956. Those who signed previously were Pee Wee Reese, Don Newcombe, and Karl Spooner.

Adcock in the Fold. Elsewhere along the major league front, the Milwaukee Braves reported the signing of First Baseman Joe Adcock, who said that his broken arm had healed "100 per cent." Before he was sidelined by the injury last summer, Adcock had compiled a .264 average, with 15 home runs and 45 runs batted in, in 84 games.

Four players, including First Baseman Vic Power, signed their contracts with the Kansas City Athletics. The others were Third Baseman Hector Lopez, Outfielder Tom Saffell, and rookie infielder Alex George.

Power was second in batting only to Detroit's Al Kaline with a .319 average last season.

Right-hander Johnny Klippstein came to Cincinnati from his Chicago home to sign his 1956 contract with the Redlegs. General Manager Gabe Paul said Klippstein received a "sizeable increase" over his 1955 salary. Paul also announced that pitcher Hal Jeffcoat had signed. Jeffcoat was obtained in a trade with the Cubs last month.

Score and Moss Sign. The Cleveland Indians announced that Herb Score and

Virdon in Florida to Open Baseball School

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 4 (AP)—Bill Virdon, St. Louis Cardinal outfielder, who was the 1935 National League rookie of the year, isn't worried about the sophomore jinx which hits so many promising baseball men in their second major league season.

Just the same he's going to be sure to be in good condition for the start of the 1956 season. He won't take anything for granted.

Virdon arrived here yesterday from his home in West Plains, Mo. He will be chief instructor in the baseball school run by Lou Haneles.

The school opens Thursday for enrollment, with first workouts set for Friday.

Virdon said the first week will be devoted to batting, fielding and running. The second week practice games will begin.

Venice A.C., Meramecs Win Basket Titles

Setting a new tournament game scoring record, the Venice A.C. piled up 72 points in the second half to defeat Sullivan, Mo., 131-95, last night in the men's final of the Salvation Army holiday basketball tournament.

In the women's title game, the Meramec Caverns repeated as champions with a 48-45 overtime triumph over a stubborn Kutis team.

Dick Cash of Sullivan was high point man in the men's game with 36. Jack Hanvey led Venice with 29 and teammates Bob Dubnick and Jim Ossola, former St. Louis U. players, tallied 26 and 21 respectively.

Speedy Phyllis Drikow of Kutis sent the girls' game into overtime by picking up a loose ball at center court with only eight seconds remaining and dribbling in for a layup. That made it 44-41, but Kate Cordes, tallied 26 and 21 respectively.

Henken recovered a loose ball and made a hook shot to give the Meramecs the victory. Center Lila Lipp was the Caverns' rebounding star before fouling out just before regulation time ran out.

Wrong Signal By Referee in Rose Bowl Game

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4 (UP)—Commissioners Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson of the Big Ten and Victor O. Schmidt of the Pacific Coast Conference issued a joint statement today admitting that the wrong signal had been called on a penalty in the hectic closing seconds of the Rose Bowl Game on Monday.

"The wrong signal was given on the play," said the statement. "The referee (Ross Dean of the Big Ten) moved two arms in a diagonal manner, indicating grounding of the ball.

"This would have meant a safety and given Michigan State two points, thus eliminating the field goal attempt. This penalty is from point of action which is behind the goal line."

However, the actual penalty was for hitting an ineligible receiver, and the penalty for this was five yards to the one-yard line.

The penalty was called when Ronnie Knox, U.C.L.A. passer, threw to Lineman Gil Moreno, an ineligible receiver.

This eventually set up the play in which Dave Kaiser kicked a 41-yard field goal to give Michigan State a 17-14 last-second victory.

"The players knew what the penalty was for and so did the benches," said Bernie Hammerbeck of the P.C.C. Commissioner's office. "But the wrong signal obviously confused the people in the press box and the few fans who understand the signals."

Landy Defeated By American

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 4 (UP)—Lon Spurrier of Delano, Calif., the world record holder for the half mile, defeated John Landy, the world mile king, by inches tonight in a match race in which the winning time was 1:51.8.

Landy, who has been in comparative retirement, was so pleased with his showing that he announced after the race he would compete in the Olympic Games at Melbourne this year.

The crowd of 8000 which watched the runners duel on a wet track did not know until five minutes after the race who was the winner because Landy and Spurrier crossed the finish line virtually locked together.

It was Landy's best performance at this distance but the California speedster was considerably off his world record time of 1:47.5.

The Aussie's performance was considered remarkable since he had laid off competitive running for 13 months. Spurrier said he was amazed at Landy's showing.

Veteran Bob Zuppke Continues to Improve

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Jan. 4 (UP)—Bob Zuppke spent Monday watching the bowl football games on television and he "continues to improve" from a stroke suffered several weeks ago, his housekeeper said yesterday.

The famed "Flying Dutchman" who coached football at the University of Illinois for 29 years before his retirement in 1941, finished his day before the television set in his apartment by watching Illinois beat Michigan State in basketball, the housekeeper, Miss Leona Ray, said.

Zuppke, 76, returned to his apartment here the day before Christmas after spending several days in a hospital following the stroke.

Tennis Pros to Hold Youngsters' Clinic On Program Here

All four performers in the professional tennis troupe that will play here Jan. 12 will take part in a clinic for young players before the matches get under way. Promoter Jack Kramer announced. The clinic was suggested by the St. Louis District Tennis Association, sponsor of the event.

Featured players at the Kiel Auditorium show are Professional Champion Pancho Gonzales and Tony Trabert, winner last season of the Wimbledon, French and American singles titles. Also in the show are Pancho Segura and Rex Hartwig. Gonzales leads Trabert, eight matches to three, in their nation-wide tour.

A special price of 50 cents has been arranged for young St. Louisans. They may attend the clinic shortly before the matches begin, and the pros will explain their techniques. A selected group of the area's best young players will be permitted to take the court during the instruction. They are Earl Buchholz Jr., Neil Drury, Dick Horwitz, Rodney Susman, Chuck McKinley and Cliff Buchholz.

THE NEW BEL AIR SPORT COUPE—one of 19 high-priced-looking Chevrolet models.

Who wouldn't mistake this handsome new Chevrolet for a high-priced car!

It looks strictly "upper bracket" with its bold new Motoramic styling . . . its longer, lower hood . . . its proud new grille that spans the full front end.

Even the details would do credit to an expensive car . . . like the sleek, high-fashion taillights (the left one swings down to uncover the gas cap!).

And, inside, mink coats look right at home with Chevrolet's fine new interiors.

But, even beyond the costly appearance of its Fisher Body, Chevy gives the high-priced cars a run for their money. For it's one of the few great road cars built today!

You'll see what that means when you take one out on the highway. You'll feel the added security of Chevrolet's nailed-down stability. It wheels around tight turns as footsure as a cat on a carpet!

When you need a quick sprint for safer passing, or a power punch to flatten out a hill—you've got it! V8 horsepower now ranges up to 205. And there's a new, sweet-

Jim Vrenick Bowls Season's High Three for U.S. With 825 Series

Buckles Finishes With 299

Jim Vrenick, a member of the Griesediecks of the All-Star League, took over first place in the national high three-game bowling standings, when he hit 825 in a league round on the Floriss Lanes, last night.

In hitting his big total, Vrenick put together games of 238, 288 and 279 as the Griesediecks counted 3407 to win three of the four.

The Budweisers needed 3301 and won two of three from the Thurners with 3189. Billy Weh had 715 and Pat Patterson 703 for the Buds, while Bud Anderson of the Thurners totaled 749.

Authorized (295) won three of the four (296). Chuck O'Donnell's 699 was the high series in this match.

Olympic Official Says He'll Sue 'Phog' Allen for Libel

DR. F. C. (PHOG) ALLEN, left, University of Kansas coach, who has been notified he'll be sued for libel by HARRY D. HENSEL, chairman of the Olympic basketball committee. Allen termed Henshel an "Olympic hitchhiker"; Henshel warned Allen "You have popped off once too often."

LAWRENCE, Kan., Jan. 4 (AP)—Olympic official Harry D. Henshel says he intends to make Coach F. C. (Phog) Allen "pay dearly" for lambasting him in a recent speech on the Amateur Athletic Union (A.A.U.).

Henshel cabled the University of Kansas basketball coach yesterday that he was planning legal action and added:

"I was shocked to learn through the press of your (1) libelous attack on me as a permanent hitchhiker to the Olympic games at public expense, (2) your libelous reference to my military service as a 'colonel in the Brooklyn band' and (3) your gratuitous slur on Brooklyn obviously intended to insult me and many of my fellow New Yorkers, including those of us who never had the honor of living in Brooklyn...."

"If you stopped to consider my military service as a 'colonel in the Brooklyn band' and (3) your gratuitous slur on Brooklyn obviously intended to insult me and many of my fellow New Yorkers, including those of us who never had the honor of living in Brooklyn...."

Henshel, who is chairman of the Olympic basketball committee and vice chairman of the A.A.U. Olympic finance committee, sent the cable from San Juan, Puerto Rico, where he has been on vacation.

He told Allen that in 45 years of activity in the A.A.U. as athlete and committee member and in 20 years on Olympic committees "I have not received a dollar directly or indirectly from either organization."

In reference to his military career, Henshel said he was awarded a bronze star combat medal in 1945 and earned five campaign stars in the European theater of operations from November 1944 to May 1945.

"You have popped off once too often," he told Allen.

Henshel cabled that he had instructed counsel "to give me quick action to make this an expensive lesson to you."

New Floor and New Star Help Jr. Bills Win

By Harold Tuthill

There's nothing like a new gymnasium to perk up a team's basketball fortunes. St. Louis U. High, opening its beautiful field house last night, defeated Assumption, 72 to 58, and Hazelwood High started the new year with its first triumph in its new gym, turning in a 71-to-57 triumph over Lindbergh.

Emmett Hanick's Junior Billikens looked like their old selves largely because their big post-man came through for them. Bob Nordmann, 6-6 1/2, junior, poured in 27 points and that reminded the fairly large crowd of Bevo Francis of Rio Grande College for the student body kept on chanting, "C'mon, Bevo." Big Bob undoubtedly has acquired a nickname to last him a lifetime.

Nordmann, in eight previous games during which the Junior Bills broke even, scored a total of 18 points, so his performance against Assumption should win him a regular starting job at center. If he can score consistently, that should help St. Louis U. High which will lose one of its regulars soon. Ken Miller is expected to move out of the state.

Assumption made a contest of it for the first half when the score tied six times, but St. Louis' 22 points in the third quarter, as compared to 12 for the Pioneers of Johnny O'Brien, swung the game heavily in favor of the Blue and White. The teams all but leveled in the last eight minutes.

Aided by Nordmann's close-in shots, St. Louis hit at almost 47 per cent, 29 field goals out of 62 attempts, while Assumption averaged 35 per cent in 35 tries.

The Pioneers now have a record of 14 by Tom Fessler helped by St. Louis cause. Little Dick O'Brien tallied 27 and Mike Magare 19 for Assumption.

Hazelwood, which had been thwarted three times in its effort to record a victory in its new plant, was paced to its triumph by Orren (Ozzie) Snavely who scored 25 points. Dick Mueller, with 17 and Al Gilbert, with 14, led Lindbergh.

Two games were put over until tonight—Sumner at McBride and St. Mary's at Cleveland. In league games tonight, East St. Louis will renew its quest for a Southwest Illinois conference championship at home to Wood River and Belleville. St. Francis de Sales in a Catholic League opener.

RUSSELL SAYS STATE DEPT. IS STERILE OF IDEAS

Assails Spending to Counter Red Moves — Warns Congress
Will Cut Foreign Aid.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Senator Richard Russell (Dem.) Georgia, said yesterday the State Department is "sterile of ideas," except for spending money to counter the new Russian cold war tactics in the Middle East and Asia.

Russell is chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. He made it clear in an interview he believes Congress will deal sharply with the Administration's request for $4,900,000,000 in new foreign aid money.

"The State Department is so sterile of ideas that the only answer they have to the Russians is to ask for more money," Russell declared.

"If Khrushchev and Bulganin keep on traveling around the world, they may succeed in bankrupting this country."

Senator H. Alexander Smith (Rep.) New Jersey, called meanwhile for a "solid front on foreign affairs" by Democrats and Republicans in the new Congress session that began yesterday.

House Speaker Rayburn (Dem.) Texas, commented generally, and somewhat gloomily: "I'm not happy about our foreign relations as things stand. The general situation in the world is not good."

Russell's announced aim is to eliminate economic aid to other nations. However, he said he was "well satisfied" with the Eisenhower Administration's reported plan to boost the United States military budget to 35½ billion dollars in the fiscal year beginning next July 1. This would be an increase of a billion dollars over the current year's spending.

Smith, a Senate Foreign Relations Committee member, said in a separate interview that Democrats will be making a political mistake if they engage in any "all-out, frontal attack on the foreign policies of President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles."

"I am not afraid to defend our foreign policies," Smith declared.

He added he regards as "non-sense" recent charges by Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem.) Minnesota, that Dulles has "played politics" by keeping foreign aid appropriations requests low while the assistance pipeline was being drained.

"Dulles doesn't play politics at all," Smith said.

The New Jersey Republican said he thinks the Administration's request for new foreign aid appropriations "can well be defended when it is understood fully."

(Senator Santonast of Massachusetts, senior Republican on the Armed Services Committee who made a world inspection trip in the congressional recess, said in a United Press interview he concluded that if the United States "quits or lets down" its foreign aid program, "many free nations will have difficulty carrying on.")

MURDLES FACE ST. LOUISAN SEEKING RED CITIZENSHIP

Howard B. Spears, who has applied for Russian citizenship, cannot be accepted as a citizen of the Soviet Union until he renounces his United States citizenship, a consular official at the Russian embassy in Washington said yesterday.

The consular official said it was up to Spears, a Negro, 1913 Jaffin avenue, to find a way to give up his American citizenship, after being informed that the State Department holds that an American cannot renounce his citizenship while in the United States.

Spears, an Air Force and Army veteran who received a bad conduct discharge, could apply to the Union Tours and Cosmos Travel Agency for a ticket and tourist visa to the Soviet Union, the official said. Once in Russia, he could renounce his citizenship under United States law, by submitting a sworn statement to the United States embassy. Spears said he plans to write the Soviet embassy and the travel agency for more detailed information.

BRITAIN TO BEGIN TALKS ON WEST INDIAN MERGER

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP)—Britain has summoned a conference of Caribbean leaders in London Feb. 7 to work out final details for merging its West Indian possessions into one self-governing federation.

Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd will preside over the talks, which are slated to reach final decisions on all outstanding issues and agree on settlement machinery for ironing out last minute snags. No date has been fixed for setting up the federation.

The new Caribbean federation will include Jamaica, Antigua, St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla, Montserrat, Dominica, St. Vincent, Grenada, Barbados and Trinidad and Tobago. The plan calls for a governor general, a nominated senate and a wholly-elected house of representatives.

Russia Puts OK on U.S. Jazz, It's Flooding Stage and Radio

Ministry of Culture Admits Argument Is Over — Everybody Is Listening to Popular Music.

MOSCOW, Jan. 4.—The Soviet Union's great debate over jazz is over. Mass audiences on radio and at variety theaters are eagerly applauding syncopated tunes that were once anathema in this country.

This final verdict of acquittal in the case against jazz which began shortly after World War II is handed down in the current issue of Sovetskaya Muzika, organ of the Union of Soviet Composers and the Ministry of Culture.

"Fruitless discussions on whether jazz is necessary," the journal said, "and whether one should foxtrot and tango have already lost any point."

The truth of this observation is reflected in the eyes of almost any young Soviet boy or girl when you mention jazz. Indeed, most of them make an American visitor feel uncomfortably ignorant when they reel off the names of Nat (King) Cole, Benny Goodman, "Satchmo" Armstrong and lesser known band leaders.

Voice of America.

In view of the virtual impossibility of obtaining records of American jazz, Soviet jazz lovers have taken to listening to the Voice of America, BBC or other foreign radio stations in order to hear popular music programs. Political propaganda does not seem to interest them.

Some enthusiasts, according to Sovetskaya Kultura, even took to making recordings on exposed X-ray film and selling them to the highest bidder. Yuri Milyutin, composer of light operettas, said in Sovetskaya Muzika that one period in the history of Soviet music had closed and a new stage begun.

"Until recently light music was kept in the background," he wrote. "No one was really interested in it. On the contrary all kinds of obstacles were put in its path."

The composer bitterly attacked the "pseudo leaders" of the Soviet music world who entrenched themselves behind their office desks and blocked the development of popular music.

On Stage and Radio.

Now, he noted, light music is flooding the stage and radio. "Foxtrot and tango, rumba and blues and other dance music long in disgrace," Milyutin said, "has started to sound for mass consumption."

He complained, however, that almost all Soviet light music consisted of old western jazz tunes. The Soviet Union should not only imitate foreign jazz, he asserted, but should develop its own tunes different from the French, German or American genres.

Beginning around 1947, Soviet official organs anathema-tized jazz as the reflection of decadent bourgeois American society. It was never played over the radio or elsewhere. All dance music and other light music should spring from the Russian peasant folklore, it was said.

The most popular jazz orchestra in the Soviet Union is led by Leonid Utesov who came back several years ago after a period of eclipse. Recently he had been performing as a comedian also. He appeared this week in a popular New Year's television skit.

MEXICO (MO.) EDITOR NAMED

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (AP)—Robert M. White II, editor and publisher of the Mexico (Mo.) Ledger, has been appointed special consultant to Marshall Field Jr., editor and publisher of the Chicago Sun-Times.

Field said yesterday White would assume his new duties Jan. 16 on a temporary, part-time basis.

SURVEY SHOWS DISCRIMINATION BY FRATERNITIES

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—A survey of college fraternities indicates that most of them, acting openly or secretly, choose members on a basis of race, religion and national origin.

Dr. Alfred McLung Lee, president of the National Committee on Fraternities in Education and chairman of the department of anthropology and sociology at Brooklyn College, conducted the survey and made the results public yesterday.

Lee said 10 out of 61 leading men's fraternities still have written rules against members of certain races and religions. Only one of 32 leading women's sororities has such a restriction, he said.

Lee added, however, that although most fraternities and sororities do not openly acknowledge discrimination in their rules, "in most cases it is very much alive, even though underground."

DETROIT NEWSPAPER STRIKE 35 DAYS OLD, NO TALKS DUE

DETROIT, Jan. 4 (AP)—Detroit's newspaper strike, which has closed the city's three metropolitan dailies, entered its thirty-fifth day today with no negotiations scheduled between the publishers and any of three unions officially on strike.

A walkout of stereotypes Dec. 1, following expiration of their contract, closed all three newspapers. Other printing craft unions honored their picket lines, and since then the mailers and printers have gone on strike officially.

GOV. DONNELLY'S SON FILES

LEBANON, Mo., Jan. 4 (UP)—David Donnelly, son of Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, and the Governor's law partner, filed his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Prosecuting Attorney of Laclede county yesterday.

His father made his debut in politics in the same office. He was elected Prosecutor in November 1916.

FIVE RAG FIRM OFFICERS FINED IN NAVY FRAUD CASE

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 4 (UP)—United States District Judge Mel G. Underwood fined five officers of Grossman & Sons, Inc., a total of $31,000 and sentenced them to suspended prison terms yesterday for attempts to defraud by selling the Navy inferior rags.

Judge Underwood ended a three-year legal battle waged in court and congressional hearings when he issued the following penalties:

Ben Grossman, $10,000, two years; Herbert Grossman, $10,000, two years; Arnold Grossman, $7,500, one year and one day; and Marvin Grossman, $2,500 and six months. Herbert Romanoff, a nephew of the firm's head who turned state's evidence in the trial last year, was fined $1,000 and placed on five years' probation.

The charges concerned a $1,358,962 contract to the Navy for engine wiping cloths. The prosecution testified that the defendants substituted inferior rags and piled Government inspectors with expensive entertainment and gifts.

SALT TREATMENT OF TREES DESCRIBED

Used Against Phloem Necrosis in Elms, Fire Blight in Pear Trees.

The salt technique for treatment of phloem necrosis in elm trees and fire blight in pear trees was described in detail today by E. R. Spencer, consulting botanist and plant pathologist of Lebanon, Ill.

Spencer last week reported to the Post-Dispatch that remarkable success had been experienced over the last three years in curbing the dreaded elm disease by treating soil around the roots with ordinary table salt.

"The salt is put in the ground 10 to 12 inches below the surface in one of two ways," Spencer said, adding that there was no danger of hurting tree or grass if the chemical was placed at the depth specified.

"The first way," he said, "is to dig a ditch around the tree, spade wide and spade deep, just beyond the reach of the tree's branches.

"The second way is to punch or bore holes in the area surrounding the tree, cut beyond the reach of the branches. Place the holes from three to four feet apart in all directions, and make enough of them to contain the amount of salt recommended. Pour a half teacup full in each hole. Do not hesitate to go as far as 100 or more feet from the tree, if it is a big one.

Spencer said large trees, measuring from 10 inches to 2 feet in diameter at shoulder height, should have 50 pounds of salt. Trees from 6 inches to 2 feet in diameter require 25, he said, while smaller trees should get from 10 to 15 pounds.

All elms should be treated, whether they show signs of phloem necrosis or not, Spencer said. He recommended putting in the salt before leaves started in the spring, but said the salt could be put in at any time of the year.

Spencer said one treatment should last eight to 10 years. He noted that the salt technique still is in the experimental stage, and asked that persons testing the technique keep data and report observations to him.

QUN CHEEANG SUN NAMED CAMBODIA'S NEW PREMIER

PHNOM-PENH, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Cambodian National Assembly today inaugurated Qun Cheeang Sun as Premier. He replaces ex-King Norodom Sihanouk, who had accepted the post only temporarily.

The new Premier was chosen by a congress of the people's Socialist Community party, formed by Norodom after he stepped down as king. It later swept to an electoral victory, capturing all 91 seats in the national Assembly.

The new Premier also is interior minister, controlling the police system.

PRINCIPAL'S OUSTER REVERSED BY COURT

Judge Terms Removal of Thomas J. Fagen 'Against Weight of Evidence.'

The ouster of Thomas J. Fagen, veteran Negro educator who was removed in March 1954 as principal of the Garrison and J.M.D. Brown elementary schools, east south of East St. Louis, has been reversed by Circuit Judge William Juergens of St. Clair county.

Fagen's ouster by majority vote of the Board of Education, School District 182, was appealed to the circuit court under the Administrative Review Act of Illinois. The Illinois Association of Teachers and the AFL Teachers' Union, Local 1214, backed the appeal.

At the school board hearing, witnesses charged Fagen, 54 years old, with incompetence and insubordination. Judge Juergens ruled that the board's decision was "against the manifest weight of the evidence."

John M. Ferguson of East St. Louis, one of Fagen's attorneys, said the practical effect of the circuit court ruling was to reinstate Fagen, presumably with back pay totaling $9783. Fagen was drawing $315 a month during the school year, Ferguson said.

Fagen, who lives at 1820 Gaty avenue, East St. Louis, said he had been unemployed since the ouster. He had been with the school system 13 years. He is

Mrs. Corintha Cross, executive secretary of Local 1214, said Illinois teachers had donated $800 to Fagen's defense. At the time of the hearing, the union said charges against the principal were inspired by a political group seeking to dictate appointments at the schools.

LEO DUROCHER BUTTINS LIP AS REAL ROBBER STEALS $20

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 4 (AP)—Leo Lippy Durocher, former manager of the New York Giants, isn't kidding these days

when he says: "I was robbed."

Durocher was closing the garage door at his Beverly Hills home last night when a voice said: "Don't move."

Leo turned his head just enough to see a man holding a pistol. Then Lippy did a rare thing.

"I said nothing. I was too scared to talk," he said. "The man said 'Give me your money.' I gave him $20. All I had on me. If I had had $1500 I'd have given him that."

Durocher, now a $50,000 a year NBC executive, said his wife, actress Laraine Day, was asleep in the house.

57 SPECIES OF BIRDS SEEN IN WILDLIFE AREA CENSUS

A total of 6520 birds of 57 species were seen by 19 observers in the annual Christmas bird census Monday at the August A. Busch wildlife area, near Weldon Springs, it was announced today.

Members of the Webster Groves Nature Study Society and St. Louis Audubon Society saw more than 1800 juncos and 1500 tree sparrows. Some of the rare birds observed included the Kridler's Hawk and the spotted towhee, both strays from the West.

Although the first robin of the year is mistakenly believed to be a sign of spring, 261 were counted in the census. Many spend the winter in this area in places where there is enough food and shelter.

FOUND DEAD, PISTOL NEARBY

Herbert Weaver Sr., a retired bank guard, was found shot to death yesterday in his apartment at 3525 Osage street. He was shot once in the head and a .38-caliber revolver was found near the body.

Weaver, 67 years old, had been despondent because of ill health, his wife, Mrs. Minnie Weaver, told police.

DUKE'S LAUNDRY STIRS BLAST AT ROYAL WARRANTS

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Daily Mirror today denounced the ancient custom of royal warrants and asked if a London laundry was going to get more business because it washes for the Duke of Edinburgh.

The complaint was raised after the Duke, husband of Queen Elizabeth II, issued his first list of tradesmen and individuals to whom he gives his business. It included 29 firms, among them two barbers, four tailors and a laundry.

The Mirror called the custom of issuing royal warrants "silly and obsolete" and "royal patronage at its most undignified."

This was the first time the consort of a reigning British Queen has given out royal warrants. Prince Albert, husband of Queen Victoria, never had the privilege.

Heavy pressure was put on the Duke, one of the tradesmen said, by people who are favored by his business and he finally gave in. The 29 firms are allowed to display the Duke's coat of arms.

The Queen issued her first list last June. It included everything from bootmakers to manufacturers of dog food.

PICKETING HALTED AT NEW WATER PLANT IN COUNTY

The four-week-old work stoppage at the new $1,500,000 plant of the St. Louis County Water Co. under construction on the Meramec river near Fenton ended today.

Under terms of a stipulation filed in United States District Judge Roy W. Harper's court, the AFL Pipefitters' Union, Local 562, which established a picket line around the construction project Dec. 7, agreed to refrain from picketing, or in any way interfering with work on the project. The agreement further provides that, if the union violates its terms, the court may issue a temporary injunction against the union without hearing.

An injunction to restrain picketing was asked for last week by Ralph E. Kennedy, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, pending a final decision by the board on a complaint of unfair labor practices brought by the company against the union.

BILL IS OFFERED FOR NEW FEDERAL BUILDING HERE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 — A bill to authorize construction of a new $19,800,000 Federal building in St. Louis, to be financed by the Government, was introduced yesterday by United States Representative Frank M. Karsten (Dem.) of St. Louis.

The proposed legislation would authorize the Administrator of General Services and the Postmaster General to acquire a suitable site and enter into contracts for construction. A new building to house Government offices now scattered at various locations in St. Louis has been under discussion for years.

Karsten said the cost of the new building would be more than $43,000,000 if it were put up under the 1954 lease-purchase act. One that set, a private interests and leased to the Government, the title going to the Government after a specified number of years. Karsten has opposed the lease-purchase plan as too costly.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Pauline Piening, of the Rose Bud avenue address; two sons, Orville L. and Harold O. Piening, and two daughters, Miss Bernice Piening and Mrs. Ethel Kroepel, all of St. Louis.

ADENAUER 80 TOMORROW, FIVE-DAY FETE TO BE HELD

BONN, Jan. 4 (AP)—Chancellor Adenauer will be 80 years old tomorrow—and for the first time he has agreed to a big birthday celebration.

For five days, Der Alte (the old one) as he is called by the Germans, will be feted by foreign diplomats, Government leaders, old friends and his large family.

In previous years, the busy Chancellor set aside only a few hours to receive birthday felicitations and then plunged back to work.

RAYMOND VON BRUNN DIES

Funeral services for Raymond von Brunn, curator of Campbell House Museum at 1508 Locust street, will be tomorrow at 3 p.m. at Kriegerhauser's undertaking establishment, 4228 South Kingshighway. Burial will be private in Sunset Burial Park.

Mr. von Brunn, 66 years old, died yesterday at his home, the former carriage house of the historic mansion. He had been with the Campbell House for about 10 years. # MIKE FINK TO BE SUBJECT OF TALK FOR YOUNGSTERS

Mike Fink, the braggart riverman in the Davy Crockett legends, will be the subject of the Missouri Historical Society's weekly talk for youngsters on Saturday.

Mrs. Jack Carpenter will tell children stories about Fink's adventures and give them some of the history of the frontiersmen who operated keel boats. Souvenirs, including Mike Fink tattoos (which wash off), will be passed out at the program, which begins at 10:30 a.m. at the Jefferson Memorial in Forest Park.

The talk is one in a series given by the society on Saturdays in the school year. The programs are held for children from 7 to 12 years of age.

ARGENTINA TO TRY 52 CONGRESSMEN ON TREASON COUNT

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 4 (AP)—Fifty-two former members of congress, accused of treason for handing ex-President Juan D. Peron dictatorial powers, were ordered held for trial yesterday by federal judge Luis Botet. The judge declared that it was evident that the 52 congressmen "granted extraordinary powers to the executive." This is a crime under the constitution and criminal code.

Meanwhile the Argentine press reported that 130 "troublemakers" rounded up earlier by the provisional government will be shipped to Rio Gallegos, at the bleak windswept southern tip of Argentina.

France Amazed to Learn Election Apparently Has Complicated Its Political Outlook More Than Ever

Whether Gains of Reds and Poujadists Will Force Moderates to Reunite Is Still Unanswered Question — Faure For Immediate Reform of Constitution.

By HAROLD CALLENDER

The New York Times News Service.
Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.

PARIS, Jan. 4.

THE FRENCH NATION took an amazed and puzzled look today at what it had done in the strangest national election in its recent history.

Designed to clarify the political outlook, Monday's election seemed to have complicated it further than ever, if that were possible. Premier Faure dissolved the old National Assembly to get a new one more capable of dealing with urgent problems at home and abroad. What he appeared to have got was an Assembly distinguished by divisions more profound than those that had come near paralyzing the dissolved Assembly.

The question asked everywhere was whether the increased pressure from the two extremes — the strengthened Communists on one side and the completely new bloc of 51 Poujadist heralds of discontent on the other — would compel the quarreling moderates to join hands as in war-time to save parliamentary institutions in France.

To this question there was yet no answer. Political observers predicted it would not be answered before prolonged deliberation and negotiation by party leaders.

This deliberation by the Radicals of Pierre Mendes-France will not begin formally until Jan. 16 when the executive committee of the party will meet to size up the outlook and fix its tactics. Mendes-France said the decision was for the committee to make.

The popular Republican movement's pre-election proposal for an alliance of all the moderate parties—rejected at the time by Mendes-France and his Socialist ally, Guy Mollet—was renewed yesterday by Robert LeCourt, leader of the Popular Republican members of the last Assembly.

Reds Renew Offer. The Communist party, considering itself a victor in the election, renewed its offer for an understanding with the Socialists, which Mollet rejected before the election. This proposal was a plea for the so-called-popular front that would include Communists, Socialists and Mendes-France Radicals.

Faure said the election underlined the need for "immediate" reform of the constitution. He had urged automatic dissolution of the Assembly if it overthrew a government in the first two years of its tenure.

It appeared difficult for Mendes-France to begin his on-again off-again campaign, whom he bitterly attacked in the campaign. Some suggested that Mollet might be a possible mediator and premier, the Socialists having more deputies than the Radical allies. Others suggested Christian Pineau, another Socialist. The party may make a decision tonight when its executive committee meets.

Perhaps a symbol of the confusion and uncertainty regarding the future Government of France was the fall of the franc from 335 to 395 to the dollar in Paris yesterday.

Cains for Right and Left. The outstanding winners in the election were the Communists and the ill-defined but highly dissident Poujadists, who counted on the extreme right.

The Communists won 147 seats in the Assembly in Metropolitan France and picked up several seats in the overseas territories. Their apparent victory in France was accompanied by a slight drop in their popular vote since the 1951 election, their gains in seats resulting from the division of the moderates.

The Poujadists, a new party starting from scratch, polled 2,413,240 votes or 11.4 of the votes cast and won 49 seats.

What they would do with them appeared somewhat obscure except that they seek to revive the States General of 1789 which would lay popular grievances to rest before the King but before the world. This movement is a reanimated version of the various semi-Fascist movements of the 1930s and is generally supposed to have captured many discontented voters from the disappearing Gaullist party, the Social Republicans, the outstanding losers in this election.

Mendes-France's Showing. In comparison with these two extreme groups, the one almost stable in its popular vote, the other the great surprise of the election, none of the remaining groups appears very triumphant—not even that of Mendes-France, who made the best showing among the moderates.

His Republican front stood better than that of Faure, the Popular Republican and the Independents. Mendes-France had a striking success in his argument in the Paris region and in the southwest. But the Radicals' popular vote was only slightly above that of 1951, and the successes of Mendes-France are difficult to measure in terms of assembly seats.

The popular votes bore only an indirect and often disproportionate relation to the seats won.

It is noteworthy that the figures reveal a remarkable relative stability of French voting from one election to another. The only notable exceptions are the Gaullists who lost and the Poujadists who won.

Joy After French Vote

PIERRE PUJADE (left) being embraced by unidentified followers yesterday on arrival at headquarters of his anti-everything party which made a strong showing in Monday's general election in France.

U.S. Regards Political Muddle As New Blow to French Prestige

By WALTER KERR

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch: Special Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.

UNITED STATES OFFICIALS were dismayed by the outcome of the French national elections. They feared a further weakening of the governmental structure and still another blow at France's position as a world power, especially in North Africa.

It was not so much that they were astonished at the results, though the results when they came were little softened by anticipation.

Washington expected about the same number of Communist voters would elect a greater number of Communist deputies. This is just what happened, though more were elected than had been foreseen here. It was bound to happen, given the electoral law and the fact that the coalition of center parties had gone to pieces before the campaign was under way.

Rightist Gains Expected. Washington also expected some gains for the right-wing followers of Pierre Pujade, though nothing like the 51 seats in the National Assembly which they won.

The dismay that could not be concealed by official silence was caused by neither of these developments. It was rather the fact that made these developments possible, the continued failure of a large body of French voters to agree on a few essentials or fundamentals, to work out among themselves the elements of a common program that would be pursued irrespective of differences between political parties or between factions of the same party.

For some years now American ambassadors to France have urged some such program.

ALSO U.S. Is Losing Its Air-Atomic Lead to Soviet

Reds Ahead in Four Major Categories of Combat Planes.

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON.

THE biggest, most disturbing feature of the present world situation can be rather simply summed up. The United States is now losing its air-atomic lead to the Soviet Union.

One indicator is the Soviet progress with intercontinental ballistic missiles. The ICBM is rightly called "the ultimate weapon," yet these vast rockets are such complex mechanisms that there will be no overnight revolution because of the mere testing of a prototype.

For some years to come, manned aircraft will continue to dominate the air-atomic weapons system. For the immediate future, therefore, the most important indicators of the present trend are the figures on Soviet and American production of combat planes of advanced types.

Soviet output is now far ahead of American output in three of the four major categories of combat aircraft, day-fighters, night-fighters and long range jet-bombers. These are the categories, moreover, of highest importance to this country. Concerning these categories, the figures speak for themselves.

Russian Output Going Up. In night-fighters, the United States has no advanced type worth mentioning except the F-102. About ten F-102s are now being produced each month, and no step-up is promised. The Soviet "Flashlight" night fighter, rated at least as good as the F-102, if not better, the Soviets are now producing at least 50 "Flashlights" each month—or five times as many advanced night-fighters as we are producing. Furthermore, the "Flashlight" output is going up.

In day-fighters, the United States has only two advanced types, the F-101B and the F-104, that are fit to meet the new Soviet "Farmer" fighter in the air. A great increase in output of these planes was promised by Secretary of Defense.

The tripartite Bermuda meetings were held in December 1953. Dien Bien Phu fell in the spring of 1954 and by June of that same year Sir Winston

Radical Changes in Civil Defense Urged, H-Bomb Progress Cited

Committee Says Time Is Near When U.S., Russian Weapons Will Equal 50,000,000 Tons of TNT.

By RICHARD SIZEMORE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (UP).

A SPECIAL GOVERNMENT COMMITTEE said yesterday "the time is close at hand" when the United States and Russia will have hydrogen bombs with the destructive punch of 50,000,000 tons of TNT.

The report was cited by Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson and two other high Administration officials in calling for revolutionary changes in the nation's civil defense planning.

The committee also said an intercontinental missile, sometimes called the ultimate weapon, very likely will be a reality in six to 10 years. It added that bigger H-bombs likewise have made atomic fallout "a much more serious problem."

The statement by Wilson, Civil Defense Administrator Val Peterson and Defense Mobilization Administrator Arthur S. Flemming was based on a review of military and civil defense conditions by a special 13-man committee, headed by Gen. Otto L. Nelson Jr.

Review of Progress. The committee reviewed atomic weapons progress since the so-called "Project East River Report" for civil defense planning was issued in 1952. The group called for widespread revisions to take into account the transition from the atomic bomb to the multi-megaton H-bomb.

The committee warned that in the last three years the delivery time of H-bombs has been greatly speeded up, posing "the threat of annihilation."

Present and future weapons may cause "lethal fallout over thousands of square miles," it said.

The report said there has been considerable improvement in continental air defense. But it warned that gains will be offset by continuing increases in plane performance, both in speed and in bomb-carrying capacity.

It said this country probably has reached the stage where a one- to two-hour warning against enemy bombers can be regarded as the average. But, the report warned, it will be necessary in the near future to prepare for a warning of only 10 to 20 minutes against guided missiles.

The committee found that the general public still is as disinterested in civil defense as it was in 1952.

Lacking in Prestige. The committee also said the federal Civil Defense Admin-

Aid on Agenda Of Kubitschek In Visit to U.S.

Brazilian President-Elect Called Good Friend of This Nation.

By DREW PEARSON

(Copyright, 1956.)

WASHINGTON. THE president-elect of this country's best friend in South America, Juscelino Kubitschek of Brazil, arrives in Washington tomorrow.

He might be compared with Gov. Lausche of Ohio, being descended from a Polish immigrant, as Lausche was born of Slav immigrants. Like Lausche, he has worked his way up from the bottom. His father died when he was a boy; he worked his way through school, also supported his mother, first as a telegrapher, then as a post office clerk.

He became one of Brazil's most successful surgeons, but, unlike most doctors, he went into politics. First elected mayor of Belo Horizonte, capital of the state of Minas Gerais, he later became governor of that state in 1950.

Now 54 years old, Dr. Kubitschek is a dynamic middle-of-the-roader in politics, likes to be known as a "conservative-progressive."

He will be the president of 60,000,000 in an area bigger than the United States. Elected Oct. 3, he takes office Jan. 31 for a five-year term following his visit to the United States.

In his campaign he promised his administration would strive for three major objectives: An expansion of electric power facilities; better communications of all kinds; greater food production and better transportation to deliver farm products to consumer markets. Due to poor transportation and lack of storage, it is estimated that about 40 per cent of the food raised on Brazilian farms never reaches consumers. Kubitschek will promote the building of more silos and food warehouses with government help.

Vargas Party Support. In his campaign for the presidency, Kubitschek was supported by the Brazilian labor party, founded by the late President Vargas, and the Social Democratic party, which helped to put Vargas back into the presidency in 1954 after his

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Keeping Taum Sauk Wild

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Picnic grounds, ball diamonds, camp grounds and all the usual developments in state parks serve well for mass-use and provide some recreation for many, however casual or superficial may be their interest in the parks.

On the other hand, one of the chief values of state parks is wilderness. This unfortunately is destroyed by mass-use, litter and development. Wilderness, especially that open to the public, is becoming quite scarce in Missouri. Yet it is the wild places that are truly enjoyed by the families visiting them, those willing, even glad, to fight the bad roads and other difficulties necessary to escape the crowd.

Wildness, then, is an important but delicate park attraction. But it is easily protected—protected it from good roads and developments and you have protected it from the crowds and litterbugs.

The new Taum Sauk park depends for its value to a very great extent upon its wildness. Here, it seems certain, is a park which should be kept wild, for only in that way would it serve most fully.

It would be a shame indeed to sacrifice its rare wildness to provide something which can easily be provided on almost any available acreage.

Streets Without Trees

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

You wrote a nice editorial regarding the saving of a tree at Crystal City. If you will drive slowly along any of our so-called boulevards and note the ugliness of the long treeless sections, I believe you will be prepared to write one about the destruction and lack of planting of trees in St. Louis.

Areas without trees tend to become slums. SUBURBANITE.

If Only They Could Fly

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

As an ardent exponent of the theory that the taxpayer is entitled to see exactly where his money is spent, I was pleased to see the parade of jet planes the other day from the airport to the river where, opportunely, barges were waiting. True, the planes weren't flying; in fact, they couldn't fly. However, they looked like they were flying and each I'm sure Orville and Wilbur would have been proud of them.

Am I correct in that these planes were headed for training fields so that cadets could have their first "This is an airplane" lesson? If so, I'm sure that they'll justify their cost. As to the planes remaining at the airport still to be disposed of, why not send them to children's playgrounds around the country? Give the kids a million-dollar thrill! S. A. WILNER.

Where It Starts

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Just heard the report of the total of accidents during the Christmas holiday. What a terrible thing. If only folks would get together and put a stop to some of the shenanigans, we would have lots less accidents. Seems like no one cares.

There are two taverns across the street from where I live. Watching some of the patrons get in their cars puts chills down my spine. DAILY READER.

Noise Beyond Dissent

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A few weeks ago some merchants along South Broadway joined forces and had loud speakers placed at vantage points over the street from about 7200 to 7600. Until Dec. 25, from 9 to 9 the area was inundated with music. The volume was excessively high, and the recorders sounded as though they were being filtered through several layers of loose tin plates.

To my knowledge, no resident likely to be stricken by this noise was consulted. I call this trivial incident to your attention not merely because it is another example of the continuous erosion of persons' rights we are experiencing, or to discomfit the persons responsible, because I am sure they thought they were adding to the Christmas spirit.

The affair seems more important to me as a symptom. A man in a crowd cannot feel physical injury done him. The point at which all too many Americans register their awareness of the existence of others, their privacy and rights, appears, alarmingly, to be at a similarly inaccessible level.

One of the greatest pleasures of TV and radio is the privilege of turning them off; our right to disinterest is complete. One wonders if this may be the next to dissolve, and if some day we shall be compelled by the forces of commerce to listen and view their choices, without the power to refuse? ROBERT OSTERMANN.

Not Exactly

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It's no wonder our foreign relations are what they are if "Uncle Sam" is giving other nations the same kind of deal he is giving the farmers here at home. "DOC" DUNCAN.

Essex, Mo.

Policy, Not Noise

It will be easy to beat the Dixon-Yates drums in the present session of Congress. On this issue the Administration is in retreat, and Democratic leaders can be expected to take utmost advantage of the fact. Thus Senator Anderson of Tennessee, is moving to have the Senate appoint special counsel to represent the Government in the suit by which the Dixon-Yates promoters seek to collect $3,500,000 for the trouble they took in cooking up a now repudiated power scheme.

All of the shouting over Dixon-Yates, however, will not affect the underlying issue of the future of TVA, which in the long run is more important. The Democratic leadership, with its control of both houses of Congress, would do well to recognize that its good faith and good intentions will be judged by something other than the volume of noise—justified as it may be—that is raised over Dixon-Yates.

The underlying issue is this: How shall TVA meet the growing demand for electricity in its market territory?

The Administration's first answer to this question was: "Not at all." So Messrs. Dixon and Yates were retained to build a privately financed power plant to take over the Memphis market hitherto supplied by TVA. Had the Dixon-Yates deal been put over, it might well have become the pattern by which TVA would be surrounded with private plants designed to choke off any further growth by the Authority.

As Dixon-Yates was collapsing last year, the Administration came forth with a second answer. TVA could expand, it suggested, by issuing its own revenue bonds, outside of the regular budget, to finance needed plants. This answer is better than the first, but still not one to be accepted on snap judgment. How much would such a plan give bond underwriters a voice in controlling TVA? How much would it weaken the control of TVA by Congress? Last year, Congress postponed coming to grips with these and other questions about the plan.

The third possibility is the straightforward one of appropriating federal funds—to be repaid along with other TVA power funds—for the construction of new steam plants as needed to supply the TVA market. On balance, this answer seems to make the most sense.

But Congress has rejected funds for a new steam plant to supply Memphis three times in the last three years, twice under Republican leadership and once under Democratic leadership. Last year, when President Eisenhower recommended total TVA appropriations of $27,500,000—less than one-fourth of what they had been the year before—the Democratic Congress trimmed his figure even further to $27,100,000.

Clearly, then, the great problem of TVA's future remains unsolved. Equally clearly, to solve it requires something more than criticism of the discredited Dixon-Yates contract. If Dixon-Yates was wrong—as it was—what is the right policy for the future of TVA?

That is the question to be faced by the Democratic leadership of Congress, as well as by all candidates for President.

One Place to Check Gun

Sheriff Arthur C. Mosley's decision to go on issuing county firearms permits was shooting from the hip. The county counselor's office had ruled that this task belonged to the new County Police. The Sheriff says he did not think the police were to have "sole responsibility," but how is it possible to control holding of firearms without unified responsibility? Two agencies mean two standards for issuing permits and complete confusion in controlling ownership of guns. The way to settle this dispute is for the Sheriff to holster his permits and to retire from the field. All firearms should be checked at the gate—of police headquarters.

On Top of Old Taum Sauk

That "wild frontier," of which Davy Crockett was king, is no longer very wild and not too much of it is left in Missouri. Hence we suspect many Missourians will sympathize with the letter on this page which urges keeping Taum Sauk wild.

The question arises because Joseph Desloge Sr. recently gave a 2400-acre tract in the Taum Sauk area to the state. This generous gift includes picturesque shut-ins or narrow rock formations below the old mountain. And State Park Board officers have talked of opening the tract to the public next summer, and of building trails and picnic grounds and even a lake. What will this do to what is left of the wilderness? Taum Sauk, about 130 miles south of St. Louis, is generally considered the highest point in Missouri at 1772 feet. Rising from the igneous granite boulders of the ancient and rugged St. Francois range (not really a part of the Ozarks), Taum Sauk is topped by a fire tower and not much else. Some geologists, however, have begun to suspect that more prosaic uplands in Webster county may be higher.

In plain fact Taum Sauk is not so very wild right now. It is mostly confusing. The mountain can be reached by gravel road from Highway 21 south of Arcadia, and the visitor may find cows grazing on its sides, but he will not easily find the top of the state's top mountain. The terrain is a puzzle. Broken trails lead to the precipices of Mina Sauk falls and down to the Devil's Toll Gate. Otherwise the contemporary frontiersman is on his own, and needs persistence and good shoes.

We hope the State Park Board can interest more citizens in the Taum Sauk country. But whatever the board does with the fine Desloge grant, Taum Sauk itself is not for the hasty visitor and quick picnicer. Even in these days many Missourians are looking for something to explore. Taum Sauk should remain worth the exploration.

Where the Responsibility Lies

Circuit Attorney Dowd's explanation of the Nance case is not likely to satisfy many of the voters who elected him to assume responsibility for the conduct of his important public office. William Silas Nance was held in City Jail for 266 days as the suspect in a $26 holdup while Dowd's office tried unsuccessfully to produce the prosecuting witness, a soldier from Fort Leonard Wood who had been shipped to Europe. The Circuit Attorney's office knew six months before it finally asked dismissal of the charges that its key witness was overseas.

Mr. Dowd says he would not have issued a warrant in the case "because of the obvious difficulty in finding a soldier witness." adding: "However, I must rely on my assistants and I am confident they acted in a manner they thought was proper."

Mr. Dowd's assistants are appointed by him and are responsible to him. And he is responsible for seeing to it that they act in a manner that he thinks proper. If he thinks warrants ought not to be issued in cases like the Nance case, he should set policy accordingly. Mr. Dowd, after all, is in charge of Mr. Dowd's office.

French Twilight or Dawn?

After Monday's voting, the French political situation is more chaotic than it has been at any time since the war. There will be no genuine center of power in the new Parliament which assembles 10 days hence. But there will be power enough to wreck almost any coalition formed in the meantime to take over the Government.

It is easy enough to blame the lunatic-fringe Poujadists, who won 51 seats at the expense of the two middle-of-the-road groups led by Faure and Mendes-France. But the loss of those seats must be attributed to the futility of many middle-of-the-roads.

Because of the "winner-take-all" aspect of the 1951 election law, it is virtually impossible to realize the desires of a majority of the voters. Knowing that this system might thwart them, many marked their ballots for minor party candidates. The Communists were the beneficiaries of many non-Communist votes. As a result, the law designed to reduce Communist representation did not work nearly as well as four years ago. Today more than ever, they are the strongest single political party in France.

Confusion of the center and the inordinate power which it gives to extremists were what Mendes-France sought to eliminate when he fought for electoral reforms. It was by this confusion that Faure hoped to profit when he dissolved Parliament and forced elections six months ahead of time—and under the 1951 law. Both men have been sadly vindicated. The results are as bad as Mendes-France predicted. His hastily arranged electoral coalition, with little time for campaigning, came out only a strong second. Faure's undependable coalition emerged a weak first. Alone, neither can dream of forming a strong government. The Communists, having gained more than 50 new seats, are about as strong as either coalition—and not internally divided.

Already it is being said that the best thing any new government can do is to rewrite the electoral law and then ask the people to vote again. But that, in effect, is what the Parliament was preparing to do when it dissolved.

That one of the great nations of the West should find itself in this political quagmire may be proof of the view that men rarely govern themselves by reason—even though Frenchmen like to consider themselves the most reasonable of men. The best hope may be in Mendes-France's optimism. "They say we are in the evening of our greatness," he recently told the French voters. "Really it is the dawn and we are just beginning to wake."

Gridiron Jurisprudence

Bigtime football, especially at the bowl level, packs its thrills, but it is getting terribly complicated. Thanks to new glasses, we still keep a fairly good eye on the ball even when handled by a really slick T-formation quarterback. And we take the referee's word on who recovered a fumble at the bottom of a 10- or 12-man pile-up. Matters of that sort do not bother us.

It's the jurisprudence of the game that has us thinking that maybe we should have a lawyer at our side as we watch the young Galahads and Lochinvars maim each other for honor and glory and unselfish love of dear old Alma Mammy. Take, for example, the last minute and a half of the Rose Bowl game. A U.C.L.A. assistant coach waved his arm in, well, sort of a passing motion to his hard-pressed trainees, and the team was penalized 15 yards for side-line coaching. A rule is a rule.

A minute or so later, however, Michigan State sent in a substitute with a kicking tee, and was penalized five yards for delaying the game. Now, in our unlegal innocence we might easily have interpreted the arrival of that tee from the side-line as a direct order from the boss-man for the play which won the game. Fortunately, the officials were sufficiently versed in football law to distinguish between the symbolism of a waved arm and a rubber tee. But it does seem that a layman might better appreciate such fine points with guidance of counsel.

Without Embarrassment

The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee has concluded that Harvey M. Matusow lied when he recanted the testimony which he gave as a hired Government witness against alleged Communists.

Certainly Harvey Matusow is a liar. He has published a book, "False Witness," to prove it. He was convicted of perjury in Texas after first swearing that a union officer was a Communist and then swearing that he was not.

It is much easier, however, to find that Matusow lied than to find exactly when he lied. The subcommittee under Senator Eastland of Mississippi concludes that this professional Ananias told the truth when he accused people and lied when he cleared them. The question is whether the committee believed what it wanted to hear.

Senator Hennings of Missouri, a subcommittee member, took exception to parts of the report. The Senator was a prosecutor in St. Louis and knows the rules of evidence. His analysis of the Matusow case should prove informative.

Meanwhile, the Eastland group might reflect on one point which is more important than the timing of Matusow's lies. That is the desirability or even the propriety of using such witnesses as Matusow for any official purpose whatsoever.

Matusow was on the Justice Department payroll. As a professional former Communist he performed in courts, congressional hearings and political campaigns. The nation might now expect those officials who used this discredited and incredible witness to show some embarrassment. The Eastland committee shows none.

In his new book, "Herblock's Here and Now," the cartoonist of The Washington Post, Herbert Block, poses the question for those officials who billed themselves as red-hot investigators and Communist-hunters:

Whatever Matusow is or was, how could they have been gullible enough to have placed any credence in him anyhow? Any child with a Dick Tracy badge might well have questioned the ability of this money-seeking, publicity-seeking fringe character to recognize, as he had claimed, 10,000 Communist party members in New York "by sight." And if they had known him for what he was, then the inescapable conclusion was that they had been more interested in prosecutions—or persecutions—than they were in justice.

Whether Harvey Matusow lied the first time around, the second, or all along, his employment as a witness by Government agencies was a disgraceful episode for Government. The use of witnesses with wholesale accusations and dubious backgrounds should not be repeated.

'You Load Sixteen Tons . . .'

Between Book Ends

The Mirror
Public Opinion

Composer of hit tune which sold a million records tells how he came to write a song of coal mining; he grew up in Kentucky coal fields where men worked hard and sang loud; no idea why man who "owes my soul to the company store" became so popular.

Merle Travis in the United Mine Workers Journal

You load sixteen tons, what do you get?
Another day older and deeper in debt,
Saint Peter don't you call me 'cause I can't go,
I owe my soul to the company store.

In our home in Kentucky the miner's Journal ranked alongside the family Bible and the "wishbook" (Sears-Roebuck catalogue). So you can imagine the honor I've had in receiving a personal letter from its editor. Here are a few things that might answer your request concerning the birth of my song, "Sixteen Tons."

I was raised in the southwestern coal fields of Kentucky. My father was a miner in the little town of Beech Creek, in Muhlenberg county. The two openings were known as "Number Five" and "Number Nine." From the latter came the reason for the line . . .

"I loaded sixteen tons of Number Nine coal
And the straboss hollered, 'Well bless my soul!'"

Dad's whole name was William Robert Travis. He was a big jovial red-faced fat man most people called Uncle Rob. Actually, he worked "on the outside" as a sulphur picker. The roar of the shakers finally affected his hearing and many is the time he'd call my brother John and myself out on the porch of the company farm we lived on, three miles from Beech Creek, and say as he pulled from his overall pocket a huge Elgin watch, "Now boys, you've got to be better ears than I have, so listen for the whistle I heard a coal-drag switchin' around over there today, and they jus' might run tomorrow."

When the thin sound of the whistle drifted to our alert ears, the Travis household was a brighter abode. Maybe Dad would take the old five-string banjo from the nail on the wall and sing:

"Jenny Weaver clumb a tree
Hopin' fer her Lord to see
Th' limb it broke and she did fall,
Never got to see her Lord a'tall."

But there was reason for gaiety. Tomorrow the mines was "runnin'." Maybe work would pick up. But supper was wonderful with the cornbread, new potatoes, buttermilk, blackberry jam and the ever-present "Miners' Strawberries"—better known as soup beans.

Then there were the strikes! To us and all the people we knew it meant "Root, hog, or die!" I became well acquainted with the "aid-hall." There we'd go to get whatever was to be given in the way of food to the miners on strike. Just enough beans and salt-pork to keep body and soul together.

The Wife of a Coal Miner

I have known the fruits of strikes. The bitter and the sweet. Hunger and music. Jokes and threats. Fist fights and murders!

Who deserves more credit than the wife of a coal miner? Mother was one. She never complained about the hardships that were hers in abundance. Lighting the coal-oil lamp long before daylight, and cooking breakfast for her children and husband. Filling the three piece aluminum "dinner-bucket" for Dad to take to the mine.

In the top compartment was a big slice of apple pie. In the middle she'd place a cup of beans, a spoon, three or four biscuits filled with butter, some fried potatoes and a few slices of fat bacon. In the bottom she'd pour spring water to wet the dusty throat of a man who was to spend that day grabbing sulphur from the black gold that was to go to its fiery duty of smelting iron and steel for a strong nation. There were four of us children—three boys and one girl. While I never worked in the mines, my two older brothers did.

My first year of high school went against my grain. I wanted to seek my fortune in the world of entertainment. I left home with a guitar under my arm. I landed a job with a little group playing on the radio in Evansville, Ind. Each job led to a better one.

I was appearing on a show on radio with Cliffie Stone when he suggested that I make an album of songs from my native Kentucky. Most of the traditional folk songs had been recorded, so I set about composing songs for the album that spoke of the mines and the miners. The album was called "Folk Songs of the Hills" by Merle Travis. It was a big success. I'm happy to say.

'It's Dark as a Dungeon'

In the album were the following: "Muskrat," "Nine Pound Hammer," "Dark as a Dungeon," "John Henry," "That's All," "Over by Number Nine," "I am a Pilgrim" and "Sixteen Tons." Mr. B. A. Botkin, collector of American folklore for the Library of Congress, printed, word for word, in his volume "A Treasury of Southern Folklore," one of the songs from my little recorded effort. It was "Dark as a Dungeon."

"I hope when I die and the ages shall roll
My body will blacken and turn into coal
Then I'll look from the door of my Heavenly home
And pity the miner a-wiggin my bones."

"Where it's dark as a dungeon and damp as the dew
Where the danger is double and pleasures are few
Where the rain never falls and the sun never shines
It's dark as a dungeon 'way down in the mines. . ."

A few years ago I met a young and talented man from Bristol, Tenn. He was just starting out in show business and was one of the finest singers I'd ever heard. His name was Ernie Ford. He used the name "Tennessee Ernie" and visits millions of homes daily via radio and television.

World Sits Up and Takes Notice

About a month ago he recorded one of the songs from my album titled "Sixteen Tons." It made history. It sold a million records in a shorter time than any other record in musical history.

A few days ago Cliffie Stone, Ernie and I had an interview for a write-up in one of the nation's top news magazines. The three of us wondered just what it was, other than Tennessee Ernie's great version of the song, that would make the hundreds of thousands of people in every part of the world sit up and take notice of a man who "owes his soul to the company store."

There's one thing I'm certain of. Things have changed. Coal mining is now an occupation to be proud of. A miner has the chance to provide his family with the things that were only a dream not long ago.

The sinking sun no more reminds the weary miner that he's—

"Another day older and deeper in debt . . ."

And when payday rolls around he can afford to answer Saint Peter, if he should call, and not have to explain—

U.S. 'Aid Only a Pittance'

THE PATTERN OF WORLD CONFLICT, by G. L. Arnold. (Dial, 290 pp., $4.)

Money talks. In American foreign policy as in other fields, writes G. L. Arnold, an editor of the English monthly The Twentieth Century, in this provocative study of world tension. He declares military aid and propaganda for democracy are not sufficient to gain America favor with the backward nations of the world. The primary need of new nations is capital, he writes.

This is true. The high standard of living in this country often makes us forget our political liberty is given full meaning only by our great economic resources. Because we have money to pay for a college education, freedom to travel is important. Backward peoples often emphasize the importance of economic progress as a means of achieving liberty.

What does America offer in economic aid? A pittance, compared to its resources, writes Arnold. Aid is often granted in such a manner as to create suspicion about American motives.

Russia offers the dramatic lesson of how a nation can change in one generation from a backward agrarian economy to front-rank industrial status. It is this image which often makes backward nations look to Russia as a model, whatever their opinions about its totalitarian government, he writes.

Arnold does not carry his analysis far enough to show how disenchanting flirtation with Russia can be. He might reply that not enough flirts have become disenchanting yet.

Ex-colonial nations want to safeguard their independence against encroachment by foreign nations. Because of this, they are not likely to fall into the Soviet orbit. But until the United States steps forward with large-scale economic aid for U.N. development plans, these peoples will likewise look askance at us. Unfortunately Arnold does not tackle the big problem: How can Congress be brought to appreciate long-range intelligent planning? His failure to consider this crucial, perhaps unanswerable, question, is not his fault. Rather, it is ours.

The Noble and the Bestial

WINTER HARVEST, by Norah Lofts. (Doubleday, 347 pp., $3.95.)

The spectacular thing, easily accomplished, had always been Kevin Furmage's aim. When he set out to carve out a new and easier passage over desert and mountains to California, his dream of establishing the Furmage Road was one born of the desire of a childless man to make his mark for posterity. But when his small party began the journey, they set their feet on a road that would lead to both disaster and triumph.

"Winter Harvest" had as its inspiration, the story of the Donner Party in their ill-fated and most awful battle against hunger and cold. But this is not their story. Against the background of a pioneer journey Norah Lofts fashions a series of character studies involving four people: Mahitabel Smith, who loved God; Nancy Jurat, who loved herself; Cordy Warren, who loved his fellows; and Dave Glenny, who loved no one.

The experiences which shaped these four people prior to the migration, are described at length. Since almost half the book is given over to these narratives, the reader may feel that by quantitative standards, the journey has been subordinated. And yet, so agonizing and vivid is the account of the trip, that it assumes the proportions of a minor epic. Relentlessly the small party is battered by cloudburst, Indians, snow and starvation. As their small supply of food disappears and they are left in cannibalism and even worse contemplations, the predominant characteristics of the victims, previously held in relative check by civilization, come into exaggerated focus. The story in the final analysis is a study in disintegration and, more important, the human nobility of man.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Success Bolsters Russian Boasts

WASHINGTON. THE SPEECHES MADE LAST WEEK in Moscow by the Soviet leaders are indeed very different in tone from their speeches six months ago. The difference is not mainly or really in the Soviet position on the biggest issues.

Nothing happened at Geneva six months ago to justify any one in thinking that the Soviets were getting ready to yield anything substantial for the sake of an agreement. Moscow was as uncompromising in July as it is today.

The difference between the speeches then and now lies elsewhere. It lies in their confidence. It is new and recent, that the Soviets are winning the cold war in Asia and Africa, and that they have us, so to say, over a barrel.

More Than Mere Talk.

It is because they feel so strong on this account, that they can afford to talk so roughly to us. In fact, they are acting now as if they were convinced that the more roughly they talk to us, the more they will be applauded in South Asia. They must have been mightily pleased not only with the big crowds but with what the leading personalities in the region said to them privately.

Over the Barrier.

In the broadest and simplest terms what has happened is this. Between Moscow and the Atlantic ocean and Indonesia in the South Pacific, across North Africa to Egypt to the Middle East to South Asia to South-East Asia, there live a great mass of human beings who during the past four centuries were under the imperial rule of the great powers of Western Europe. Many of these peoples have, all of them will soon have, achieved their independence.

But until now the issue of their independence has been one between them and the old empires. Russia, which has long tried to have a hand in this area, was successfully excluded throughout the nineteenth century and, in fact, until this past year.

The Russians have now broken through more accurately they have jumped over the barriers which excluded them. For the first time they have become a principal power in the Middle East and in South Asia.

This is the achievement about which Bulganin and Khrushchev are so exuberantly pleased with themselves. They feel as Mr. Dulles might feel if he had suddenly come back from a triumphant tour of Prague, Warsaw and Peiping.

Not Out-Bidding West.

To my mind a most significant thing about these speeches is that they say so little about economic matters and so much about political matters. The Soviets are not offering to out-bid the West in the field of economic aid, that is to say of capital export.

They are for a little aid, not very much; one might say just enough to establish the fact that the West is not the sole supplier of economic aid.

Their heavy cards are political, and what they are doing is to exploit the reaction to our policy of military alliances. As we have backed Pakistan, they have backed India and Afghanistan. As we back Thailand, they back Burma.

As we back the so-called northern tier with Iraq and Iran, they back the southern tier with Egypt, Syria and Saudi Arabia.

By making our military pacts with certain countries, supposedly countries on "our side," we have opened the door for the Russians into the countries which are supposedly not on our side.

Reds Back Strong Side.

We are stymied by our own policy. Having discriminated in favor of certain countries by giving them arms, we cannot talk back to the Russians if they discriminate in favor of the other countries.

There is no reason, it seems to me, to hope that the rapid deterioration of the Western position can be arrested as long as there is a contest in which we back Turkey and Pakistan and Thailand while they back Egypt, Afghanistan, India and Burma.

The will almost surely win that contest. For with the exception only of Turkey, they are backing the stronger combinations.

If there is a way out, it would seem to lie in taking a new stand, which is opposed to special military alliances in South Asia, and in the field of economic aid favors regional rather than country by country projects of development.

TENNESSEE ARTISTS
OPEN LIBRARY SHOW

Prize-Winning Painters Are Experimental in Technique and Style.

By HOWARD DERRICKSON

Six prize-winning artists from Tennessee, all experimenters in technique and style, opened an exhibition of 17 paintings and drawings today in the art room of the Central Public Library, 1301 Olive street.

Participants include George Cress, art department chairman at the University of Chattanooga; Frank Baisden, Virginia Dudley and Elizabeth Shumacker, all of Chattanooga; Gray Phillips, Nashville, and Charles Mussett, Memphis.

Cress, whose work was reproduced in color in Life magazine last September, combines pastel and tempera to produce fresh textural and chromatic effects in "Waterfall," otherwise a faint echo of Marsden Hartley.

"Umbrellas," also by Cress, uses the same mixture of mediums, but here representation is reduced to an expressive kind of shorthand, consisting mostly of umbrellas curved outlines jostling one another to suggest quick, darting motions of pedestrians caught in the rain.

Baisden's monumentality and scope in "Mountain Interval" are best appreciated from a distance, which the thoughtful arrangement of the show freely permits. His "Florida Hammock" is a triumph of economy. Both are water colors marked by a personal brand of realism.

The others, all working in varieties of semi-abstract, are chiefly notable for unconventional technique or combinations of materials. Phillips, for instance, is represented by a well-spattered, rough-and-ready sailing scene, "Rough Out," in which flecks of paint have been thrown from some little distance.

Miss Dudley contributes warm-toned oil-on-paper compositions: "Miss Shumacker, a pair of cones," and "Designs derived from architecture," and Mussett two crayon-oil-link pictures that fall midway between free abstraction and suggestion of natural imagery.

The show, which will leave here Jan. 23, is making a national tour under the auspices of the Studio Guild, Redding, Conn.

Lily Pons Star and Honor Guest
At Concert 25 Years After Debut

Opera star LILY PONS being kissed by her mother, MME. MARIE PONS of Paris, after special program at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, last night. Miss Pons's husband, ANDRE KOSTELANETZ, looks on.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (UP)—Soprano Lily Pons, whose name adorns a town, a flower and a locomotive, received the greatest tribute of all last night. She observed the twenty-fifth anniversary of her Metropolitan Opera debut in an unprecedented appearance in which she was both star and guest of honor.

The 51-year-old French-born singer serenaded a packed house with parts of all the roles that have made her famous since she sang her first Met aria.

Miss Pons, who has had careers also in radio and movies, made her debut in "Lucia" on Jan. 3, 1931, at the age of 26 after singing opera in France. She was an overnight sensation, with her ability to hold F above high F for as long as a minute and her dainty appearance on the stage.

The following week, Miss Pons created a furor of another type when she appeared in "Lakme," as an East Indian. Instead of wearing the modest cloak usually employed to hide sopranos' generous figures, tiny Miss Pons burst onto the stage in breast plates and a filmy skirt that left her midriff and stomach bare.

Her slimness made such a costume possible. Other sopranos took note and soon were dieting. Miss Pons is credited with setting off the present trend toward slender singers.

In the audience last night with Miss Pons's husband, conductor Andre Kostelanetz, were her aged mother, Mrs. Marie Pons, and her sister, Mrs. Roger Girardot, who came here from Paris just for the occasion.

The program opened with act two of "Rigoletto," with Miss Pons as Gilda. Then she sang the mad scene from "Lucia" and four of her most famous arias, including the bell song from "Lakme."

services will be at 1:30 p.m. Friday at St. Luke's Lutheran Church, 4532 Alaska avenue, with burial in National Cemetery at Jefferson Barracks.

BUSINESS-POLITICS BEDFELLOWS

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP)—Business men—and those who work for them—have about as much at stake as the politicians as Congress starts its new session.

Most of the issues that will divide the politicians will touch closely on business. There aren't many issues this year that don't have an economic background.

Questions coming up that have a definite interest for business include: Taxes, highway building, foreign aid, farm subsidies, labor and minimum wage laws, public housing, defense production, stock market inquiries, natural gas regulation, atomic and disaster insurance, Social Security extension, legislation on mergers and anti-trust inquiries.

THE LIST OFFERS CONGRESSMEN

PLENTY OF OPPORTUNITY to get rid of any surplus the Treasury might build up through tax collections from prosperous citizens and corporations. Few of the issues will find business men undivided, any more than the politicians. Already spokesmen for various industries are bending the ears of lawmakers pointing out the need for, or the danger in, proposed legislation. Most of the issues will have to be met square on by Congress because present legislation will expire this year. Taxes are a prime example. On April 1, unless Congress acts, the rate on corporate income will drop to 47 per cent from 52 per cent, and the same day the excise on many goods will decline to lower rates. Business men generally are resigned to quick action by Congress to keep these taxes from being eased much, if any. As individuals, however, business men like everyone else look for a cut in personal income taxes as an election year token.

ON MOST OTHER QUESTIONS BUSINESS MEN are pretty well split. Foreign aid is an example. Companies with connections or markets abroad are more likely to see good points about the Administration's proposal for more spending than are business firms who are affected directly only by the chance more foreign aid would just mean more taxes. Highway building programs will find business groups battling each other: Over the amounts to be spent, how much by the federal and how much by state governments, and how the money is to be raised.

The railroads and the trucking firms obviously have different points of view. But there are many other industries with something more at stake than just the prospect of higher taxes. The auto and truck makers and their suppliers, the rubber companies, the gasoline refiners, all are boosters for more roads. But when it comes to paying for the highways they won't see eye to eye on the matter of higher taxes on such things as gas or tires.

MANY OTHER INDUSTRIES are interested in what the new roads will do for them in the way of access to markets or to materials. Companies that produce construction materials or road building machinery will watch closely what Congress does about the highway program. If the business trend should veer downward, and confound the experts, there will be a big cry for more spending on roads as a pump primer. And so it goes all through the list of issues confronting the new session—and behind the debates will be not only vote getting prospects but also the conflicting interests of business men.

RISE IN SPENDING AIDS BUSINESS IN 8TH DISTRICT

Bank Report Says Regenerative Power of Economy Was Shown During 1955.

A demonstration of the regenerative power of the United States economy, failure of booming industry to assure prosperous agriculture and evidence that monetary policy can be an effective tool in helping to maintain economic stability were the economic lessons of 1955, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported today in the January issue of its Monthly Review.

Greater consumer spending was the prime generating force in the rise of business activity in the Eighth Federal Reserve District, as in the nation, the report said. The district covers all of Arkansas, most of Missouri, southern Illinois and Indiana, western Kentucky and Tennessee and northern Mississippi.

"The economy always has been able eventually to rebound from declines," the report stated. "What was of special interest in 1955 was the recovery in so short a time."

The total national output of goods and services increased nearly 8 per cent over the previous year's total, while industrial production expanded one-sixth from its 1954 low point.

The rise in spending was attributed to higher incomes, optimism and rapidly growing consumer debt. Total consumer credit at the end of 1955 amounted to about 36 billion dollars of which 28 billion was installment credit. Residential mortgage debt rose about 18 per cent in 1955.

With a declining foreign market, the hope of agriculture last year lay in a domestic boom, the report stated. Despite industrial prosperity, however, net income of farm families declined during the year by an estimated 10 per cent from the 1954 level.

As to the effectiveness of monetary policy in helping maintain economic stability, the report pointed out that the money supply increased by less than 3 per cent in 1955. The Federal Reserve policy of slowly increasing restraint seemed to achieve its immediate objectives.

"While the slow growth of money supply was no guarantee of the abatement of inflationary pressures," the report stated, "it was considered a good sign."

While the Eighth District generally shared in the national gain, certain business indicators lagged behind those of some other districts.

Power consumption by selected industrial firms in the major metropolitan areas in the district rose less than in the nation. Total construction contracts awarded did not quite keep pace, and the employment gain in the district's major labor markets was slightly below that for the nation as a whole.

The No. 1 telephone man for Missouri talks about our state's growth and prosperity

"We're investing another $50 million in the future of Missouri in 1956"

This is in addition to the $108 million to be spent for operating expenses and taxes

As told to Tele-reporter Don Davis by J. R. Peterson, General Manager of Southwestern Bell in Missouri

"The new spirit in Missouri is growing in intensity. You can sense it in St. Louis... in Kansas City... throughout the state. When Missourians roll up their sleeves, they're hard to beat. That's why we've planned another big construction and expansion program in 1956."

These are the words of J. R. Peterson, general manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone Company in Missouri.

This faith in the people and future of Missouri is largely responsible for his company's decision to spend $50 million gross in 1956 on its continuing construction and expansion program. "Our program for 1956 backs up our expectation that this year will be another big year for Missouri," says Mr. Peterson.

Even though few people have the opportunity to see the big picture of Missouri's growth as he does, Mr. Peterson thinks Missourians are aware of the forward-moving spirit prevalent in the state today. "I've never seen such a tremendous spirit of co-operation. Many business leaders are giving a great deal of their time to civic actions."

Also, the state's growing population is an important factor. This year is expected to be the first year in a cycle which will show a marked increase in the number of new families. This is based on a simple—but important—fact. The number of boys and girls reaching marriageable age is taking a sharp turn upward, reversing a decline since the mid-1940's. This, in turn, is because fewer children were born in the late 1920's and early 1930's.

"These young people are here today," Mr. Peterson says. "They're beginning to start families—and those families will want telephone service."

"As far as the telephone company is concerned, this indicates a steadily increasing demand for our services," says Mr. Peterson. It's the combination of many factors which leads Mr. Peterson to think that Missouri today is on the threshold of the greatest growth potential in history... and that everyone has to be ready to make the most of it.

PLowing in protection. Heavy tractor-powered plow trains move across open country burying telephone cable to stormproof your service. More and more cable is being laid underground to protect against interruption of service by ice, winds, rain, and snow.

WHAT THE RECORD SHOWS

Mr. Peterson supports his opinion with some solid evidence. For example, the gain in over-all business activity in Missouri since the end of World War II has kept pace with the nation as a whole. Missouri's population has steadily increased, employment is up, and total wages paid in Missouri today are nearly three times greater than in 1940.

In addition, there are two other important facts contributing to Missouri's healthy condition. Retail trade has shown a substantial increase since 1945. And Missouri has just completed one of the biggest retail sales years in its history. In the construction industry, 1955 was a big year, and 1956 should be successful also.

ATTRACTIVE TO INDUSTRY

Perhaps the clearest example of progress has been the number of new industries locating in Missouri. Since 1945, some 2,000 new manufacturing firms have been established in Missouri, creating 100,000 new jobs and a $250 million payroll.

J. R. PETERSON, general manager of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company in Missouri, explains some of the thinking behind 1956 telephone expansion plans to Tele-reporter Don Davis. This is the first of a series of advertisements in the form of interviews and feature stories reported by Don Davis to keep you informed of telephone company plans in Missouri.

Such is the quick picture Mr. Peterson paints to back up his confidence in Missouri and its people.

TELEPHONE SERVICE AND GROWTH

But what about telephone service during this period of growth? Has it kept pace? Has it helped the state to make progress?

Mr. Peterson answers these questions this way. He says, "In a growing community, telephone service must not only keep up with progress—it must stay ahead. Fast, dependable communications is the lifeblood of progress. Without it, business and industry would slow down to a horse-and-buggy pace. Social and civic life would have to do without many of the conveniences that modern telephone service makes possible. In other words," continues Mr. Peterson, "expanded and improved telephone service doesn't come solely as a result of community growth. It is one of the key builders of growth."

What is the telephone company's record since the end of World War II? While the number of Bell telephones in Missouri has almost doubled, the telephone company's investment in the state has more than doubled. This means that the company's investment per telephone has increased steadily as more telephones are added at higher postwar prices.

There is now a network of 1,167,200 Bell telephones serving the living and business needs of our state. Long Distance circuits have increased 158 per cent, operator distance dialing equipment has been installed in 29 cities to speed up and improve Long Distance service, 1,345 miles of telephone cable have been laid underground to protect it from storms and ice, 809 miles of coaxial cable and microwave relay systems now lie within Missouri's boundaries—just to mention a few of the telephone contributions to Missouri's postwar progress.

To accomplish this vitally needed telephone expansion, the telephone company has had to invest a huge sum of money—$312 million since 1945. Out of this investment has come another major contribution to Missouri's growth. The telephone payroll is up 165 per cent, and telephone taxes paid to local, state, and Federal governments have almost doubled.

EQUAL TO NEW INDUSTRIES

As Mr. Peterson points out, "We are pleased when a new industry moves into our state. And rightly so. It means more jobs, more payroll, more business for our merchants and manufacturers. But we sometimes forget that much of our best growth comes from within—from established, aggressive companies that think ahead, plan ahead, and invest ahead in the future of our state. That's why we're more than a little bit proud to point out that the $312 million postwar investment we've made is actually equal to the effect of many new industries moving into Missouri."

WHAT'S AHEAD

Where does Missouri stand today? How does the future look? Where do we go from here? "The opportunity to move ahead was never better," says Mr. Peterson. "New scientific advances are just around the corner, including many in the telephone field."

"We have just finished a busy year in 1955 here at the telephone company. We've been planning ahead to 1956 for many months. The money we spend will go into growth and into service improvement. We believe so strongly in the future of Missouri that we're investing $50 million—the largest single-year expansion and improvement program in Missouri telephone history."

WHY WE CAN PLAN AHEAD

"Let me make one thing very clear," says Mr. Peterson. "We've been talking about our faith in the future. Yet that faith alone is not enough to permit us to move ahead with this $50 million expansion program in 1956."

"The telephone business is like any other business. No business, regardless of its beliefs and ambitions, can invest money in the future without being in a healthy financial condition. Nor can we. Expanded and improved telephone service is only possible if the telephone company earns a fair and reasonable profit... if the people of Missouri agree that a financially healthy telephone company is one of the greatest growth builders this state has."

OUR NEW FRONTIER

Missouri has had more than its share of excitement in the past. It was born and grew up during our nation's westward expansion, matured and broadened in our generation. And yet, the new frontier that lies ahead makes these past glories of Missouri seem pale in comparison.

As Mr. Peterson puts it, "If I know Missourians, we're in for some progressive years ahead. The way we're thinking, planning, and working makes our prospects bright. That's why we're putting another $50 million on Missouri's future."

U.S. POLICY ON USE OF ATOM UNCHANGED

Weapons Chosen by Enemy Would Have No Bearing on Decision.

The New York Times News Service.

(Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—A study of records indicated today that the United States remained ready to use nuclear weapons in defense against aggression, no matter what weapons the aggressor chose.

An assistant to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles related that the Secretary had said the New York Times was in "error" in an article published Sunday in regard to an answer to a question about a statement that was made by Soviet Premier Bulganin. The article had said: "Dulles also declared that nothing the Russians had said would cause the United States to alter its policy of not being the first to use nuclear weapons."

The assistant said the Secretary recalled having been asked whether the Soviet statement would change United States policy and having replied only that nothing the Russians had said had caused the United States to alter its policy. Dulles declined to offer any new definition of United States policy on the use of nuclear weapons.

On Jan. 12, 1954, Dulles had reported a basic policy decision by President Eisenhower and the National Security Council "to depend primarily upon a great capacity to retaliate instantly by means and in places of our choosing" to meet aggression.

Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said on Jan. 2, 1955, that the United States "would be ready to use atomic weapons if needed" against renewed Communist aggression in Korea.

When the Chinese Communists were threatening to attack the Nationalists on Formosa, Dulles last March 15 observed that tactical atomic weapons were "replacing what used to be called conventional weapons." He added: "I imagine that if the United States became engaged in a major military activity anywhere in the world that those weapons would come into use."

Used Like a Bullet.

The next day President Eisenhower said: "In any combat where these things (tactical atomic weapons) can be used on strictly military targets and for strictly military purposes, I see no reason why they shouldn't be used just exactly as you would use a bullet or anything else."

A day later, Vice President Nixon said "tactical atomic explosives are now conventional and will be used against the targets of any aggressive force."

The policy was stated another way when the United Nations disarmament commission last Nov. 25 heard Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., United States ambassador, renew a promise that the United States would never use nuclear weapons except in the defense against aggression.

ISRAEL REJECTS SEA OF GALILEE BOAT CURB PLEA

Tel Aviv Asked to Keep Police Vessels Away From Shoreline Near Syria Border.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Jan. 4 (AP)—Israel turned down yesterday a U. N. suggestion that it keep its police boats well out into the Sea of Galilee to avoid alarming nearby Syrian batteries.

Israeli delegate Mordecai R. Kidron stated his country's position in a letter to the U. N. Security Council. The council has been discussing the raid Israel carried out Dec. 11 on Syrian posts just northeast of the Israeli-controlled sea.

Canadian Maj. Gen. Edson L. M. Burns, U. N. Palestine truce chief, in a Dec. 20 report to the council said the raid cost 56 Syrian and six Israeli lives. He said it followed Syrian shelling of an Israeli police boat the day before and suggested that Israel keep such boats away from the shoreline, which is only about 32 feet from the Syrian line. Burns declared:

"The Israeli right to send police boats to patrol anywhere in Lake Tiberias (the Sea of Galilee) would in no way be impaired by a new gentleman's agreement to keep them at a certain distance from shore."

Kidron, in his letter, said this suggestion "seems to be based on the thesis that Israel's rights exist on paper but not on the waters of the lake, where their protection is of importance to Israel and where they have been challenged by Syria." He added: "Israel is determined to insure that its rights shall remain inviolable and unrestricted."

The Sea of Galilee is wholly within Israel's territory, but at its northeast corner a strip of land only 11 yards wide separates the sea from Syria's border.

Burns suggested the police-boat restrictions as part of a "gentleman's agreement" whereby Israel also would let Syrians cross the 32-foot-wide shore strip to get water. Syria would let Syrians apply for Israeli permits to fish in the sea and the two sides would exchange prisoners. He said this pact should supplement the 1949 Israeli-Syrian armistice agreement.

MRS. EISENHOWER RETURNS TO CAPITAL FROM FLORIDA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (UP)—Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower returned yesterday from a New Year's weekend with the President.

Mrs. Eisenhower chatted briefly with reporters after her arrival this afternoon on the presidential plane Columbine II. Mrs. Eisenhower said with a laugh that the South was "sunny, but not so warm." But she quickly added, holding her collar closed against a strong wind, that it was "warmer than here."

Mrs. Eisenhower's mother, Mrs. John S. Doud, flew back with her. Also on the presidential plane was Mrs. Howard McC. Snyder, wife of the presidential physician, who flew down with Mrs. Eisenhower, and Budget Director Rowland R. Hughes.

TEXAS ORDERS AUDIT AFTER RISK SCANDALS

Books of 1400 Firms to Be Checked by 2500 Accountants.

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 4 (AP)—An army of 2500 certified public accountants was recruited yesterday to check the books of each of the 1400 insurance companies in Texas.

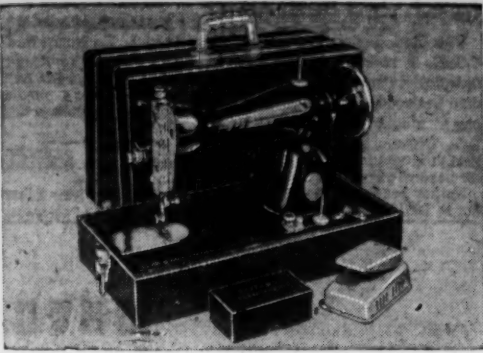

The action followed a series of insurance company scandals, some within the last few days.

One firm collapsed owing creditors possibly $7,000,000. In another case, the state insurance receiver claimed in a court suit that four state insurance examiners conspired to defraud the public in the collapse of another firm. He sued 45 persons and 11 firms for $6,840,000 for the creditors.

The audit is expected to require a year.

Insurance Commission Chairman Garland Smith announced the call for C. P. A. help, saying the board will "expect full co-operation from the companies." The companies will pay for the audit.

"In the event any company elects not to make its records available for examination, the board is to be notified," Smith said. "It will be our policy to suspend that company's license to sell insurance immediately and send our regular examiners into the firm within 48 hours to make a thorough audit."

SOVIET OFFERING LIBERIA AID AND ENVOY EXCHANGE

Mission to Inauguration Stressing Benefits
But African Republic Is Being Cautious.

By LEONARD INGALES
The New York Times News Service

MONROVIA, Jan. 4 — The Soviet Union has proposed an exchange of diplomatic representatives with Liberia. Russia also has indicated to the Liberian Government that it is prepared to give economic and technical assistance to this underdeveloped republic on Africa's west coast.

These proposals have been made informally by members of a Soviet Union delegation that came here to attend the third inauguration of President William V. S. Tubman. The delegation has asked for a meeting with the President to make a formal offer.

The Russian bid confirmed the suspicions of some Liberians who have been wondering why the Soviet Union accepted an invitation to Tubman's third inauguration when it did not accept one to his second term inauguration in 1952.

Liberians Moving Slowly.
There are indications that Liberia, despite its need for foreign aid, will not snap up the Soviet offer and that even the negotiations for an exchange of ambassadors will be approached with caution.

Liberia is particularly sensitive to the problem of Communism. There is no known Communist organization here and there is little sympathy for Communism. Foreign travelers and immigrants are asked specifically upon entering the country whether they have ever been a member of a Communist organization or are Communists.

Thus far Tubman has not set a date for an interview with the four-man Soviet delegation led by A. P. Volkov, chairman of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, but it is understood he will see them later in the week.

Outspoken Offer.

Meanwhile, Volkov issued a public statement here yesterday announcing Russia's willingness to provide Liberia with economic and technical assistance. He emphasized that if the two countries were to establish friendly relations it would be to the benefit of Liberia. He asserted that he believed Liberia could develop rapidly into a strong nation if it has the technical knowledge and assistance Russia is prepared to offer.

He told the Liberians the Soviet Union does not want another war but that this attitude must not be interpreted to mean weakness.

"We are interested in using our nuclear power for the benefit of mankind not for destruction," Volkov said.

During their visit here the Russians have been observed at official gatherings, using the meetings as an opportunity to establish friendly relations with representatives of the nearby Gold Coast.

CUBAN CONSUL TRANSFERRED

Eduardo Crespo, Cuban consul here, has been transferred to Norfolk, Va., as consul at that seaport, it was announced today.

Dr. Enrique Pujals Hernandez, the vice consul, will be in charge of the St. Louis office.

BAR TO PUBLICIZE RIGHTS OF PERSON WHO IS ARRESTED

The Bar Association of St. Louis is preparing a pamphlet for wide public distribution to explain the legal rights of an individual who may be placed under arrest, T. Hartley Pollock, president of the association said today.

JOSEPH WIRTH, PRO-SOVIET LEADER IN GERMANY, DIES

FREIBURG, Germany, Jan. 4 (AP)—Dr. Joseph Wirth, a chancellor of the pro-Hitler German Republic and a proponent of closer German-Soviet relations died yesterday of a heart ailment. The Russians awarded him a Stalin peace prize two weeks ago. He was 76 years old.

A leader of the old Catholic Centrist party, Wirth headed two German governments in 1921-22. He signed the 1922 Rapallo treaty that re-established German-Russian diplomatic relations after World War I. When the Nazis took over Germany in 1933, Wirth left to live in Switzerland. He returned after World War II and founded the League of Germans, a small anti-rearmament group that joined the Communists in calling for close German-Soviet friendship.

East German newspapers frequently mentioned Wirth as possible head of an all-German government if Soviet proposals along this line were accepted.

Nationalist artillery was reported to have returned the fire.

Today's visit to Formosa was Radford's sixth. Mrs. Radford was taken to the presidential residence by Mme. Chiang Kai-shek while Radford left the airport with United States Ambassador Karl J. Rankin who will brief him before his talks with Chiang.

Barges containing 12 of the Navy's non-flying Demon jet fighters moving down river yesterday in a Federal Barge Lines tow bound for Memphis, Tenn. The under-powered craft will be used there as ground trainers. Start of their river journey was a hectic one. The 900-foot tow was caught in a stiff up-river wind as the towboat Lechlan Macleay attempted to turn the load downstream and muddy water churned furiously for an hour before another towboat was called in to nudge the Macleay and enable it to complete the swing.

Looking Back at '55

A Fantastic TV Year With Como at the Top

By Jack O'Brian

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (INS).

AS the good year 1955 ended in a blaze of money and ratings we could look back on a fantastic television year. Fantastic in cash, success, failure, progress, imagination and activity.

PERRY COMO

It was a year Jackie Gleason started at the top of the TV ratings and won a brand new contract for his creative pains. It was announced as something barely short of Fort Knox proportions, then revealed as an $11,000,000 deal, later being trimmed to the still gaudy neighborhood of $7,000,000 before options started to pop.

A deal for Ed Sullivan to stay on at CBS Sundays followed in almost as bombastic terms which, once the fiscal camouflage was cleared, turned out to be a very nice long-term pact calling for $176,000 annually.

Quietly, Perry Como signed a 12-year contract with NBC, and once the restraint and mannerly caution was cut clear, it turned out Perry had signed a 12-year contract for some $15,000,000 or considerably more than $1,000,000 a year.

OUT IN HOLLYWOOD. Eddie Fisher and NBC saw wallet to wallet on a long-term agreement at first pronounced by Fisher's press agents as totaling $15,000,000. Upon checking, the pact turned out just fine for any young fellow of Eddie's age (29), but hardly in the league of Como's cash reserve. Eddie's NBC contract was to be for $1,100,000, the extra $100,000 being the agency's commission, so that Eddie could boast a million-dollar deal. This was to be spread over either 10 or 15 years; if 15, the minimum take-home would be $100,000.

Gleason started 1955 at the top of the 1955 ratings, switched to filmed shows and skidded, both because of the lesser impact of his style of wallowing comedy on celluloid plus the pleasant durability of Como's niceness in direct NBC competition.

IT WAS THE YEAR of Mary Martin as star of "Peter Pan." And there were other elegant evenings, such as "Our Town" with a lovely performance by Eva Marie Saint, a fine popular score by Sammy Cahn and Jimmy Van Heusen, Frank Sinatra sadly miscast and sharply dressed but in warm and intelligent voice, and "Caine Mutiny Court Martial" with the Broadway cast intact, Lloyd Nolan as line on TV as the stage, Barry Sullivan even more so.

"Patterns," high drama in an executive suite, was brilliant enough to be repeated on Kraft Theater with Everett Sloane, Richard Kiley and Ed Begley in fine acting fettle. Producer-Director Fielder Cooke handled author Rod Serling's precious literary cargo so deftly that it was bought for the movies with most of the same creative circle.

"DRAGNET" PICKED '55 to slip out of the top 10, and "I Love Lucy" from its old impregnable No. 1 spot, bowing to a nouveau riche upstart called "The $64,000 Question," in which the country found a series of new crushes on Redmond O'Hanlon, Gino Prato, Catherine Keener, Gloria Lockerman, Myrtle Power, the Rev. Alvin Kershaw, etc.

Arthur Godfrey fired another gaggle of performers including Marion Marlowe, the Mariners, Hialeke, Miss Marlowe's producer-husband Larry Puck, who had been half-fired (from one of Godfrey's other shows) a little earlier.

TV stations climbed to 475 in the United States, with more than 35,000,000 TV sets, less than 25,000 of which could receive colorcasts.

Imogene Coca begged NBC to free her from a 10-year $100,000 annual paycheck even while doing nothing, and NBC reluctantly agreed. "Marty," a Paddy Chayevsky script, won TV prizes and on Hollywood film, was up to its fiscal ears in cash and awards as we went to press.

JUDY GARLAND brought her fine warm personality, her voice in a croak from laryngitis, to CBS channels. For all her shortcomings, she was signed to a three-year CBS exclusive pact before '55 ended.

Hollywood was buying up TV scripts to be made into movies at a rate better than one a week, some of them before they even got on the air.

"Adult westerns" were a TV trend, what with "Cheyenne," "Gunsmoke," "Wyatt Earp" as extension courses for juveniles graduating from Hopalong, Roy Rogers and Gene Autry.

Julius La Rosa went his humble way to the bank, socking away more than $500,000 in the second year apart from his all-fired ex-boss Arthur Godfrey (his first year post-Godfrey brought in $360,000).

But the pleasant success story of the year remained Perry Como, who was high in the ratings, higher in his fans' affection, earning every last penny of his $1,000,000-plus per year, and hero of a magazine cover story which testified in its title to something Leo Durocher never dreamed: "Nice guys do win ball games."

Social Problems

By Emily Post

LETTER tells me: "Last week my husband offered to help a friend and his wife who were moving, by taking some of the things in his car. After he picked up the things to be moved he stopped by for me and I went with him to the new house as we were going to my mother's house afterwards. These people were complete strangers to me and so I did not go into the house but waited in the car for my husband. Shortly thereafter, the wife came out and asked me to come into the house. I said 'no thank you,' that I would wait outside. I didn't think they would appreciate a stranger standing around in the way while they were trying to get things in order. My husband thinks I was very unfriendly and rude not to have gone into the house. I would appreciate your opinion on this matter."

If her request to come in was welcoming then it was rude not to have done so. But if she said it in a perfunctory tone of voice it would not have been rude to explain that you didn't want to interrupt their work and that you'd love to come some time when she could show you the house.

DEAR MRS. POST: How can I show a young man I like very much that I also like a man to look well groomed? There is nothing a girl likes less than being told that someone she cares for is "sloppy." He is very kind, intelligent and a perfect gentleman except in his carelessness of dress.

Answer: I don't know, unless by persistently praising the smartness of men who are neat you can make him gradually aware of his own shortcomings.

DEAR MRS. POST: When leaving the movies or theater, does the man carry the woman's coat up the aisle for her to the lobby and then assist her in putting it on, or does she carry it herself and he merely help her put it on?

Answer: The correct as well as the most practical thing would be for her to be helped into it where she is and wear it up the aisle.

Sports Fashions of the Resort Season

By Sylvia Stiles

THE play suit with its matching skirt is being revived as one of the popular sports fashions of the winter resort season. Co-ordinated separates, bathing suits that are made of unusual fabrics and provide greater coverage, and a variety of hooded jackets are among the new sports items on display in the St. Louis stores. While these fashions are introduced now for the benefit of those lucky few who are planning cruises or winter vacations in warm climates, they also appeal to the woman who likes to buy her casual summer clothes while stocks are complete and styles look new. Illustrated are some of the themes available.

1—The Oriental emphasis is apparent in the pattern of the bordered cotton fabric of which this play suit and matching skirt are made. Color scheme is green and bright blue. The one-piece play suit has a halter neckline and regulation shorts, with bloomers beneath so that the suit also may be worn in the water. Skirt is wrapped to the side and fastens with waistline ties. There are deep pockets hidden at either side.

2—This play suit of a striped Dan River wrinkle-shed cotton consists of camisole top that fastens with a back zipper and may be worn with the peplum outside a skirt or shorts, a dirndl type of full skirt with corded detail, blazer, and plain colored cotton skirt. Made in California, the outfit is available in combinations of yellow and white and beige and white. Slim skirt has the Ivy League strap and buckles at the back.

3—Flowered pants in a large design are made of polished cotton. They fit rather high at the waistline in a modified version of the Empire silhouette. Overblouse hangs loosely from the shoulders and is cut with an oval effect. There also is a plastron front following the same oval lines. Overblouse is of solid colored sailcloth in a shade that repeats a dominant note of the printed fabric of which the pants are made.

4—Chino fabric in the familiar khaki shade is being used extensively for sports clothes. Bermuda length shorts sketched here are of the plain khaki colored chino fabric. The shorts have a nautical emphasis with the panel front. Overblouse in a striped Chino material is trimmed with the plain colored fabric at hip band and neck band. Blouse, skirt, and trousers are available in this same co-ordinated group.

5—This Jantzen bathing suit is made of an elasticized knitted fabric in a tablecloth check combining black and white or red and white. The wide neckline ties at the shoulders. Apron front suggests a tiny skirt.

6—Claire McCordell designed this attractive casual dress of a Gailey & Lord plaid cotton. Fitted bodice extends to a point at the center back to give the dress a long-waisted basque effect. Skirt is gathered full. Neckline that is wide and V-shaped is typical of many casual dresses on display. Sleeves have elasticized arm bands to hold them when pushed up. Bodice fastens with gold hooks and eyes.

Why Many Do Not Say What They Mean

By Fulton J. Sheen

WHEN ONE deals with an honest or a wise man, one must always listen to what he says; when one deals with one who is not, a person pays less attention to what he says, and more attention to why he says it. The reason is that many do not say what they mean, or they give false reasons for what they do say.

For example, a young man in an office displays unusual talents, industry and tact. The boss is in favor of offering him a superior position of trust; but when he consults someone else in the office, he is told: "Boss, I am afraid it will go to his head if you appoint him; I would wait for about five years." What he says is not as important as why he says it—namely, because he is jealous, and, being five years older, would like the position himself.

This psychological suggestion is very important in the subject of religion. Complaints are made against sermons because they are too long, or it is urged that those who go to church on Sunday are not any better than those who do not. It will generally be found true that violent clamors for moral perfection in others are raised to divert attention from the indulgent lives of the complainers. They say the church is not good enough for them, but they never say how good and perfect it would have to be before they would join it. Furthermore, if the church were as perfect as they want it to be, there would be no room for them; they could never get in. It is only because there is place for cockle as well as wheat that they have a chance.

THERE ARE ALSO THOSE who never speak their objections. They are the kind "who reason in their hearts"; that is, the real reasons are held in reserve and never come to the surface. This may be done for several reasons. One is because they are not sure they can express their objections, or else because they have misgivings that their objections would not stand up in the face of a scholar. Though we were made for truth, there is a surprising reluctance to hear that truth if it demands a change. When life is not lived aright, there would be so many things that would have to be surrendered, such as false loves or ill-gotten goods.

GOODNESS AND TRUTH are a reproach to those who are not willing to live straight. The light of truth can be hated much as the safe blower hates the flashlight of the police who reveal his crime. Classic annals tell of an unlettered countryman who gave his vote against Aristides and in favor of his exile, because he said frankly: "I am tired of hearing him called 'the Just.'" Perfect goodness in the face of mediocrity, ordinary evil will necessarily be crucified. The heart with its emotions often governs logic and truth. The strongest arguments in the world can be made, but they lose all their weight in the hidden and concealed atmosphere of emotions.

There is, however, no reason for despair, as long as a man refuses to be an escapist and admits his responsibility. Rough marbles, through the transfiguring pardon of God, can be made into a perfect statue. The real depth psychology is not one that explains away our false judgments through external circumstances, such as grandmothers or grandfathers or lack of vitamins. There is no depth psychology unless one gets deep enough to be honest with himself, his neighbor and his God.

NEW fabrics with metallic threads in them are more striking than ever. Instead of glinting with occasional metal, they sometimes seem to have as many metallic threads as any other kind. Instead of being mixtures, many are quite definitely patterned. And instead of including one metal color, or at the most, two, many flash brilliant combinations of gold, silver, copper, and striking jewel tones, also in metallic yarns. Oriental designs bring much of this new richness. Stripes are notable, sometimes combining an unusual plain color with a heavily metallic stripe and another in an oriental patterning. There are oriental brocades for upholstery and sheer metallic tissues for curtaining.

All this magnificence is more practical than it sounds, because the metallic gleam is provided by threads, which cannot tarnish and take cleaning as well as less eye-catching yarn.

Sprucing Up Sauce

Grated orange and lemon rind does wonders for canned whole cranberry sauce. Diced membrane-free sections of orange may also be added to the sauce with delicious results.

St. Louisans in East For Holiday Visits

By Martha Strickler Kieffer

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.

THERE has been a sharp decline in out-of-town visitors here to "do the town" during the past few weeks, but the gathering of families for the holidays more than makes up for the loss. Mrs. William Douglas Collins came from St. Louis a few weeks ago to be with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nessler.

Mrs. Collins' first great-granddaughter was born in Burlington, Vt., early in December and over the long Christmas weekend Mrs. Collins and the Nessler family went there to see her. They spent the holiday with the infant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Vris (Barbara Johns) and young Tommy and Bobby Vris. Mrs. Collins returned to New York late in the week and plans to remain here through part of January before returning to St. Louis.

In Mount Kisco for Christmas were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Belz III and their three young daughters. Pat Belz and the children came east early in December to spend a few extra weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Percy, and Hank joined them several days before Christmas.

The Percys are in the process of building a new home this winter and are currently living in the cottage, just a few feet from the building site, which will be for guests when work on the larger house is completed.

Hank and Pat plan to join the Percys in San Francisco on the twenty-sixth of next month for a three-week holiday in Hawaii. The Percys made the same trip last year and enjoyed it so much they decided to try it again. The party will fly first to Honolulu for a stay at the Surf-Rider and then on to Maui to be guests at the Hama Maui Hotel.

Carl W. Messingers Are Guests in East.

M. AND MRS. CARL W. MESSINGER were in Chappaqua, N.Y., quite near Mount Kisco, for a part of last week. They took the train from St. Louis 10 days ago and went first to New Haven where they stayed until Christmas noon with Mr. Messinger's sisters, Mrs. Edgar Lackland and Miss Ruth Messinger. From New Haven they entrained for southern points and a visit in Chappaqua with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kuhn Jr. (Polly Messinger), and grandson, Andy, 16 months old. Mrs. Kuhn will be remembered as the former Polly Messinger of St. Louis.

Mr. Messinger returned to St. Louis early in the week but Mrs. Messinger stayed on until Friday. Last weekend she went to Arlington, Va., to be with another daughter, Frannie, and Frannie's husband, the Rev. George Tittmann.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Riggs Cox and their young daughter, Susan Darcy, came into town from Madison, Conn., a few days before Christmas and spent the weekend with Gil's mother, Mrs. J. Stanley Davis. Last Monday evening Gil and Susie were host and hostess at Mrs. Davis' lovely apartment on Eighty-seventh street for cocktails and dinner for several friends.

Christmas this year brought Mrs. Thomas S. Maffitt to New Milford, Conn., for a visit with former St. Louisian Mrs. Dwight Dana. After a week or so in Connecticut Mrs. Maffitt plans to come to New York; en route to St. Louis, for a few days of shopping and seeing friends.

Mrs. Bransford Lewis Hill is back in her Sixty-sixth street apartment after a long Christmas weekend in Darien, Conn., with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lewis Hill, and their two young children. Mrs. Hill's son-in-law and daughter, the Frederick Atkinsons, who also are on Sixty-sixth street, are visiting New York friends in Castle Hot Springs, Ariz., for the holidays.

Holiday Activities of Former St. Louisans.

M. AND MRS. PETER BIRD MARTIN (Julie Gordon) are back in their cottage in Mount Kisco after spending Christmas week with Peter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Thornton Martin, in Wynnewood, Pa. Julie and Pete were living in Johannesburg until a few months ago when Pete took a job here with Time and Life Magazines. Their infant son, William Thornton Martin III, was born Oct. 29 in St. Louis and a month later Julie and the baby arrived here to get settled in their new living quarters.

Julie and Pete had several house guests in the past few weeks—among them friends from Johannesburg and Julie's mother, Mrs. Samuel Fitzhugh Gordon, who flew east for a three-day visit. During the Christmas weekend the Martins drove over from Wynnewood to nearby Haverford to see Jean Drummond who spent Christmas there with her brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. Silas L. Warner (Lee Drummond). Jean was living in New York until a few seasons ago and is back now for the winter.

In addition to writing for Time and Life, Pete has been doing some free-lance work and his story "Cities of the World: Johannesburg" was published recently in the Saturday Evening Post. His father, who writes under the name of Pete Martin, has been a favorite of Saturday Evening Post readers for many years.

Visitors Entertained at Parties.

M. AND MRS. RALPH E. NOWLAN, former St. Louisans, returned to their home in Washington, yesterday, concluding a holiday visit here with their daughter, Miss Patricia Nowlan, 253 Elm avenue, Glendale. With the family were another daughter, Mrs. Roger Kenneth Wasson, and Mr. Wasson from Kansas City.

Luncheons were given for Mrs. Nowlan by Mrs. W. Sidney Brown, 556 Bedford avenue, University Hills; Mrs. Leo M. Geissal and Mrs. Albert B. Wheeler, 8 Lindbrook drive, Ladue; Mrs. Lawrence Schleicher, 7269 Greenway drive, University Hills. Mr. and Mrs. John S. Schreffler, 10135 Jepson drive, St. Louis county, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hazel Jr., 560 Bedford avenue, had dinner parties for the visitors.

Another party was a tea given by Mrs. Robert Hamilton Lees, 557 Purdue avenue, University City.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis L. Brown returned home to Duncan, Okla., today, after a holiday visit here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Valle Janes, 5 Apple Tree lane, Ladue.

Manassa - Deibel Wedding Is Event Of The New Year

MRS. MARY LOUISE SIEGEL DEIBEL and Charles Ruthven Manassa Jr. were married yesterday morning at 10 o'clock by Circuit Judge Ivan Lee Holt Jr. in Judge Holt's chambers in the Civil Courts Building. Late yesterday afternoon a service of blessing was conducted by the Rev. Dr. J. Francis Sant in the chapel of the Church of St. Michael and St. George. After the 5:30 o'clock ceremony, the families were entertained at dinner at the home of Mrs. Manassa's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy R. Siegel, 1 Deacon drive, Huntleigh Village.

The bride wore a gray wool costume suit, a black velvet hat and a corsage of white spring blossoms. Mr. Manassa's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold R. Wadum, were the attendants.

Mrs. Manassa, a former Mary Institute student, was graduated from the Garrison-Forest School, Baltimore, and attended Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, N.Y., for two years. She is the mother of a daughter and son, Tinsley Lucille and Edward F. Deibel Jr., by her first marriage.

Mr. Manassa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Manassa, 427 Yorkshire place, Webster Groves, is a graduate of St. Louis Country Day School and Princeton University. At Princeton his undergraduate club was "Terrace." He and his bride will live at her home, 38 Washington terrace.

My Day A Southern Fight Against Rule by Law

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK. I WAS very much interested the other day to read that there had been a secret meeting in Memphis, Tenn., of delegates from 12 southern states, who gathered together to complete the formation of a national organization to fight racial integration and what were termed "other efforts to destroy the Constitution."

Among those meeting were United States Senators, governors, ex-governors, and state representatives—all people who have sworn to "preserve" the Constitution. It is surprising to have one among them quoted as having made a speech in which he called upon this group to "fight the (Supreme) Court, fight the CIO, fight the NAACP, and to fight all conscienceless groups who are attempting our destruction."

THIS SEEMS a very strange attitude, since the Supreme Court is the highest legal authority in our land and we are supposedly a people who have elected to be governed by law and not by force. You cannot flout the decisions of the highest court of the land and obey the Constitution of the United States. Nor can you be living up to the standards of being a nation that lives by the rule of law and not by the rule of force, which is supreme in the jungle.

This severe organization certainly seems to be contrary to the basic beliefs of the majority of the American people. We always have been able to organize to fight to change laws by peaceful means and to argue about our points of view. We are, of course, free to meet in any place, at any time, but we are obligated to observe a law until it is changed.

WHILE A LAW is in force it should be lived up to. You have a right to try to change it, and if you can persuade the majority that it should be changed then it will be changed. But you must abide by a law until it is changed or you will be flouting the fundamental things that make us a democracy and a law-abiding nation.

This organization affects not just the South but the whole country. It affects the principles and the whole form of government by which we live in this country.

I HAVE just finished a book

Sister Bertrand of the Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul will be guest speaker at a meeting of Fontbonne College Mothers' Club, Jan. 12, at 1 p.m.

called "An Episode of Sparrows," by Rumer Godden. It is a charming book, told with simplicity and deep feeling, and drawn, I am sure, from experience.

The scene is laid in London. It might be laid in anyone of hundreds of big cities, however. You will find it easy to read, you will not want to put it down, and when it is finished you will find yourself thinking of the characters in the book who are so like many you know in real life.

This book will help you stretch your imagination, and if the life described is not one that you have lived, it will help you to understand those who have to live it.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Dear Martha:

I GUESS this is a silly question but how can you tell when you can really trust a person? I am 24 years old and I have been in love with a certain girl since we were in high school. Later she moved away but we saw each other as often as possible and planned to marry. A year ago we set the date and she was to come here with her parents so we could select a place to live and buy our furniture. As soon as she arrived, she told me it was all off. She said she had been dating several boys in this other town and didn't want to marry now, although she wasn't in love with anyone else. I was really hurt and upset so I started dating other girls but I couldn't forget this one. Then a month ago I met her on the street. She had come back to visit a friend. We talked for a long time and that evening we had a date and the next day I saw her again. She told me she really loved me and that she was sorry she had turned me down. Can I trust her or will I be hurt again if we make plans to get married?

No one in the world could predict that. If we could look into the future with any certainty, there would be far fewer unhappy marriages. But on the other hand, a man and woman who have a deep love for each other, as well as the essential qualities of sincerity and integrity and a determination to make their marriage good, must augment that love and determination with faith in each other. It may be that your girl just wasn't ready to marry a year ago and today would prove to be trustworthy and loyal. But perhaps, as long as you do have this doubt in mind, it would be better to wait awhile until you both are sure it would be right. And incidentally, if you do marry, don't keep reminding her that once she hurt you by calling off the wedding plans. That would only build a feeling of resentment which would poison your marriage.

Dear Martha:

I JUST COULDN'T DO a day's work today without sending a reply to "Working Man" who wrote last week that his wife wanted him to get a "white-collar" job. Our trouble is just the opposite. My wife wishes I were a tradesman or some sort of machinist so I'd make more money. Confidently, I agree with my wife even though I have two years of college and I'd give anything if I never had seen an office. I believe in doing all I can for our firm and efficiently, yet not all of us can be executives so I'm stuck with no chance for more salary or advancement. If I weren't 38, I'd try my luck at something else. It's my office job that ruined our marriage as I never earned enough to buy my wife the choice furnishings she wanted and she got them by going to work. Now she's independent and has no need for me or the children. My advice to "Working Man's" wife is to let him be as he is, and when he gets home perhaps he could shave and change clothes and look the handsome gent she prefers. It's no sin to have dirt on your hands if it's an honest way to make a living.

WISHING I WERE WORKING MAN.

Your own sense of fulfillment and resentment can be as hard on your marriage as your wife's insistence that you earn more money. No one likes to feel he has arrived at the end of the road in his career and can go no further and earn no more money. You're certainly not too old to try to find similar work in another firm where the opportunities might be greater. Don't assume you can make no more progress in your work and that your marriage is ruined. Both you and your wife should learn to recognize that a good marriage doesn't depend upon an elaborate house and that even though ambition and financial security are important, they should never outrank love for each other, mutual confidence and a desire on the part of each to make the other feel his worth as an individual, not only as a breadwinner.

Send today for Martha Carr's free leaflet of prayers for children and grace to be said at table. Please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Broken Engagements

By Amy Vanderbilt

OVER the holidays many engagement rings were slipped on willing fingers. Often then we realize a fairly large proportion of those rings will be given back and the engagement broken.

What is the procedure when an engagement is broken? If a girl returns the ring after notice of the engagement has appeared in the newspaper, it is unwise to send additional notices to the newspapers announcing the broken engagement—at least, not until a little time has elapsed.

To one's friends the formally engaged girl says casually in conversation or in letters something to the effect that "by the way, Bert and I broke our engagement recently." It is neither necessary nor wise to go into the reason for a broken engagement outside of the immediate family circle.

ANY GIRL WHO KEEPS her engagement ring once she has terminated the engagement may be called, quite flatly, mercenary. Legally it is hers, but socially for her to keep it is indefensible. If, however, the fiancé of an engaged girl should die before the wedding, then she does keep her ring and should she subsequently marry she may have it set in some other way. Or she is, of course, free to do anything she wishes with it. Should the ring be a family heirloom of her former fiancé she would, decently, return it to his family or at least offer to do so.

Beauty After 40

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

DO you think of retiring as something to dread? Do you think that your retirement will be an unhappy period in your life? Do you say to yourself, "I just don't know what I will do when I no longer have my teaching job, or go to the office, or work in the store?"

If you think in this manner, snap out of it but quick. You need a different kind of attitude. You should think and say, "When my job of work is over in the business world I am going to have time to do things for which I never had the time."

Retirement can be living again a new kind of life. If you have never developed hobbies you ought to start now because nothing can give you so much pleasure.

If you need or wish to, you can make money out of a hobby and many men and women are doing just that. If your husband is the one who is going to retire, don't dread it. Discuss it and plan for it.

If you're enthusiastic about life you'll never grow old.

Your Food Problems Dressing as a Main Dish

By Edith M. Barber

TURKEY OR OTHER DRESSINGS CAN BE USED FOR THE MAIN DISH OF A MEAL, AND ARE ESPECIALLY DELICIOUS WHEN COMBINED WITH LEFTOVER MEATS, GRAVY, AND OTHER FLAVORING.

It is quite common after the holiday season to hear a comment such as "I am tired of turkey." I never heard any one say, however, that he was weary of stuffing.

There are other meats that can be used, of course. A shoulder of lamb or veal, boned, so there will be a pocket as a holder for good choices. Another suggestion is to use a mixture of the usual ingredients, but to bake it separately for service with a roast. A particularly good idea for a second day service.

A small or large amount of leftover gravy may be mixed with the crumbs that have of course been well buttered and seasoned. You may add a little liquid if you like a moist stuffing. Perhaps this mixture should be called dressing rather than stuffing, as it is baked in a casserole.

Any leftover meat may be diced or chopped and mixed with the crumbs. The seasoning will be varied accordingly. Place ham and half of the sauce into bottom of a (one-quart) casserole. Top with dressing. Slowly pour remaining sauce over stuffing. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 30 minutes. Yield: four servings.

Baked Dressing.
One medium-sized onion, minced. One-half cup minced celery. One-fourth cup butter or margarine. Four cups bread crumbs. Salt. Sage. Gravy or water.

Cook minced onion and celery in the butter or margarine over low heat. Add bread crumbs, salt and sage to taste. Stir in gravy or water to give desired moisture. Place in greased shallow casserole and bake about ten minutes in moderately hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit).

Note: If desired, diced leftover meat may be mixed with the crumbs.

The Little Woman 'Socializing' the Child by Eating Out

By Clarissa Start

BEFORE we were parents we had some pretty definite ideas on rearing children. One of the pictures that caused us to wince most of all was the sight of an untrammelled child in a restaurant. How we would shudder when we saw them standing on pastel leather seat cushions, hanging over into the next booth, sliding under the table, tossing rolls, clinking glasses.

"No child of mine would ever—" we used to say.

And to date our child has eaten out every little. That's because we eat out very little. The working wife who's had one meal, wearing hat and girdle, is less likely to want to dress up and go out to dinner than her stay-at-home sister. The working couple usually agree on the charm of home cuisine.

BUT THEN COMES the time when someone suggests that it does a child good to eat out. "Socializing," they call it. And a friend asks you and your son to have lunch with her and her son and it's a week when you're at home and haven't eaten out for four days and the idea appeals to you. It enchants your son.

You arrive at the restaurant at 12:15. Your friend and her bright bouncing boy already are ensconced in a booth. From the looks of their neighbors, the boy has been bouncing for some time. He and your offspring greet each other with joyous cries of recognition.

"Shh, shh," you warn. "We don't make so much noise in restaurants, do we?"

"Well, what's new with you?" asks the other mother. "No, dear, absolutely not another sugar cube, you've eaten three."

"This," she says apologetically, "is one of those things you start on a night in a strange town in a hotel when it's too late for his dinner anyway and the service is slow and it's anything to pacify him and then it becomes a habit."

Your son quickly acquires the habit.

"No, no, dear, not a handful," you admonish. "Well, what's new with you? No, no, dear, the glasses might break."

But the little boys are happily playing "skol," bashing their glasses together and then taking long thirsty gulps. The other mother mutters something about the impression on lookers must get of your young life. The little boys are happily screaming at each other and then going into paroxysms of laughter.

YOU ORDER the children's luncheon, hamburger, their favorite. The hamburger is not on a bun and besides your child likes what you have better. You do a quiet trade. The other child refuses to eat a bite. He is standing on the pastel cushions, leaning over into the next booth. Then both of them decide to slide under the table. You extricate them several times, then rationalize that they're safe there anyway. A scream from the next booth proves they weren't.

The cocoa arrives. Your son tells everyone within a radius of a block that he doesn't like whipped cream on cocoa. Finally you leave, having shelled out a much larger tip than usual. You drive away, the little boys sitting in the back seat in docile angelic silence. You pass an attractive restaurant.

"Isn't it nice," says the other mother, "that we live in a big county so we can do this lots of times without ever going back to the same place?"

Why Can't We Just Be Ourselves?

By Josephine Lowman

IN 1751 Samuel Johnson wrote in The Rambler: "Almost all absurdity of conduct arises from the imitation of those we cannot resemble."

How true that is! Think of the middle aged woman who is trying to act like a girl, the older man trying to play the part of a Don Juan, the teenagers trying to look and act sophisticated, the naturally shy soul trying to cover up with a lot of bluster, the fat woman wearing clothes which were planned for the slim women only, the pip squeak in business trying to act like an executive, the woman who screams for her rights in an attempt to appear important, and so on and so on.

WHY ARE WE so anxious to be like almost anyone else but ourselves? Most of our mistakes come from not being ourselves. We also should remember that personality, like a face, must have some irregularity, some quirks that are individual in order to be truly beautiful or fascinating. Why then this wish to be like all other peas in a pod?

Every man and every woman has the chance for individuality from fingertips to appearance and personality; some characteristics which are completely their own; an unusually understanding perception, a marvelous sense of humor, a high degree of kindness, a reliability, a crooked nose, high cheekbones, slanting eyes or a high forehead and so on. When these are highlighted magnetism steps in.

Be yourself—Develop your own talents no matter how small they may seem to you. Live and feel and act according to your own lights! Do not forsake your own individuality!

Everyone has something to give, something to add to life, some valued qualities and talents. Shakespeare wrote, "Out of my life, my liberty ability I'll lend you something."

By for and about Women

Avoid Peculiar Names

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

CHILDREN go through a long period during which they don't want to be "different" from their fellows. This goes for clothes that do not follow the juvenile "fashion," and, particularly, it applies to names which may make them conspicuous and the butt of jokes. The child may be harmed severely by an outlandish name his parents thought cute or unusual. So, to a correspondent who shall remain nameless, and who wants my opinion of his intention to give his first-born a name he considers amusing, I say, "Don't do it!"

A RECENT STUDY by Albert Ellis and Robert M. Beechley has now been published in the "Journal of Genetic Psychology." Ellis and Beechley examined 1682 case histories at the Northern New Jersey Mental Hygiene Clinic. "Peculiar names, for the purpose of this study, were considered to be names which appeared only once or twice in the entire series of cases and which also had something of an odd or aberrant sound in our culture. For example, such male names as Zenko, Carmello, Arene, Rockwell, Allerton, Barrett, Pinkney and Freeling were considered peculiar; as were such female names as Glenneth, Philomena, Lauris, Alverna and Enis."

THEY FOUND proportionately more boys with peculiar names were seriously disturbed. The difference among girls was in the same direction, though not so marked. Of course, Ellis and Beechley point out that this does not

Jan said angrily, "You were reading the racing form when I called."

Jan said angrily. "You were reading the racing form when I came in. You had been drinking. When I turned away from the safe you grabbed me and kissed me, and then begged me not to tell Clessa. I said I wouldn't tell her, but that if you ever touched me again she'd know it, because I'd mark you up so that she wouldn't miss it."

Turning to Clessa, Jan said: "I'm sorry Clessa. I didn't want to hurt you. But Lew is lying. He remembers very well."

"Is this girl telling the truth?" Knight asked Lew.

"Aw, I was just clowning. I didn't really kiss her."

"I don't care about that, but did she put the keys in the safe?"

"Yes, she did."

"Well, why didn't you say so? I don't like your attitude," Knight growled.

"Now, did you lock the safe, Miss Smith?"

"No, I never lock it. Only Miss Clessa and Sarah have the combination."

"What did you do?" Knight asked.

"I ran out of the office before I completely lost my temper."

"And left Reynolds here, in the office with the keys in the safe and the safe unlocked?"

"Wait a minute, sergeant," Clessa said. "I'm willing to cooperate with you in every way I can, but Mr. Reynolds is so fiarant, and I think you should apologize to him."

"He should apologize to Miss Smith for trying to leave her holding the sack about those keys," Knight replied.

"Then he turned to Lew. 'Reynolds, go out in the store until we call you. And don't leave. We want to talk to the ladies. Later I'll talk with you.' Reynolds went out."

"Now, Miss Turner, if you'll open the safe and let us see the keys," Clessa spun the combination and opened the safe. She handed the keys to Knight.

"Take down these addresses," Knight said to Perkins.

Near June 4-January weather in St. Louis is expected to continue tomorrow and Friday, Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren said, with fair skies and mild temperatures tomorrow and partly cloudy skies and continued mild temperatures Friday.

Lack of precipitation in St. Louis since Dec. 2 is currently reflected throughout the state.

Only Columbia and Kansas City had slight sprinkles yesterday. Nationally, rain fell in New England, the Northwest, and the Southeast.

No snowfalls were recorded yesterday, but 90 inches has accumulated on the ground at Mullan Pass, Mont., and 30 inches at Houghton, Mich.

Record high temperature in St. Louis for this date is 65 degrees in 1883, and the record low is 9 degrees below zero in 1879.

Maximum temperatures in Missouri yesterday ranged from 45 degrees at Kirksville to 55 degrees at West Plains, Joplin and Malden. Minimums this morning ranged from 19 at Kirksville to 36 at Joplin. Nationally, temperatures yesterday ranged from 10 at Devils Lake, N. D., to 81 at Brownsville, Tex.

Only a few people had access to those keys. Anyone else that has the run of the office besides Reynolds?"

"Just the help, Sarah and the delivery boy."

"That will simplify things. You're sure those keys never left your possession while you were out of the office, Miss Smith?"

"I'm very sure."

"Then send in Reynolds. I want to talk with him."

Jan went to the sales room and came back immediately.

"He went out to make a phone call. Said he'd be back," she told Knight. Knight started hurriedly out of the office.

MILLIONS of sheep browse the pastures of the world—and many of them are allowed to roam where they will. For months at a stretch, they may live and rest far from any barn or shed.

Q. Where do sheep spend the night?

A. When sheep have their own way, they tend to seek high ground at night. If the pasture affords only a small hill, they go to the top—or near the top, to take their rest. On the side of a mountain, they go far upward and stay until morning.

Q. Why this instinct?

A. This instinct doubtless comes from the wild ancestors of sheep, which are believed to have done the same thing long ago. We can gain a good idea of what the ancestors of domestic sheep were like by observing wild sheep which live today.

Q. What is unusual about Barbary sheep?

A. In northern Africa are the wild Barbary sheep. They live in the Atlas Mountains and other highlands. While most sheep have short tails, tails of Barbary sheep are long.

Q. Where can argali sheep be found?

A. In the mountains of central Asia live the great argali sheep. These are the largest of all sheep. Certain of these have a height of four feet at the shoulders! The rams have huge horns.

Q. What are wild sheep called in North America?

A. On our own continent we have wild sheep, the bighorns. These live on western mountains. From British Columbia down to Mexico are many areas in which bighorns are found. Thanks to public laws which protect them, their race has been kept alive. Without such laws, hunters might have killed the last of them. A bighorn ram may weigh 300 pounds, and may be three and a half feet tall at the shoulders.
